The Sad Successor To Engineer, Statesman

The grand dispute over who is less fitted for a place at the peace-table, the engineer or the statesman, is not settled, but one thing appears certain: Neither is the worse; that questionable honor must be given to the journalist.

That is, if Col. Bertie McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune is representative of the journalistic approach to the matter of the post-war world.

The Colonel's Chicago publication last week suggested a way to organize the world. That paper pointed out that the United States Constitution permits annexation of territory to the Union. And moreover, the Constitution guarantees "every state in the Union a republican form of government."

"That's all there is to it," opines the Tribune.

Colonel McCormick can not see any reason why the British Commonwealth of Nations, other allied countries and even the defeated powers would not be willing to lose their identities for the sake of a post-war world by becoming states in the United States.

And the United States should not mind the addition of such great powers as part of the Union. The principles of the republic would be spread throughout the world.

Yes, the plan is simple, though there might be some flaws in it that even an engineer or a statesman could find.

POOR FIRST IMPRESSIONS

Giving a good impression when you first meet people is a bad habit, folks. A good first impression leads to new friendships. And new friendships lead to invitations to teas or parties which are as boring as De DePutron's diary.

Unfortunately, such parties are plentiful and tiring. As plentiful as flies on Fred Metheny, and as tiring as chasing Paulette Goddard with your legs tied together.

Most Huskers are trained in culture. Unlike George Abbott, they honestly and sincerely don't know how to make a really rotten first impression.

Therefore, we quote from Joe Byler's best-seller, entitled: "I Don't Like People Because There Are Too Many Of Them," or: "I Was Pestered Constantly By Beautiful Women Until I Stopped Taking Baths."

Perhaps the best device in the art of making people hate you instantly is "The Snarl." Everyone hates a snarler.

SNARL when you get up at 5:45 in the morning. SNARL when your girl asks you to buy her a coke. SNARL when you receive your greetings from the Selective Service Office.

If you have a pleasant disposition and find it difficult to throw out a truly hideous snarl, then think of something decidedly nasty. Think of vicious, black spiders. Think of filthy, repulsive hogs. Think of Bob Hyde.

Each of us can be genuinely disagreeable if we put forth the effort. Remember: "Making people dislike you is the same as milking a Jersey cow. It's in the bag."

Music School Offers State Summer Class

Registrations have started to come in for the annual all-state high school music course that will be offered by the university school of music from June 10 to July 1.

Open to persons who have studied music in high school the past year, the program includes private lessons in vocal and instrumental music and practice with ensembles. The student groups will present several concerts and will participate in a supervised social program.

The course, including housing and food, is offered for $40.

Bizad Honorary Initiates Twelve

Phi Chi Theta, honorary bizad fraternity, held its second initiation banquet last night. Thirty persons attended the banquet according to Virginia Turner, president of the organization.

The 12 girls initiated were: Evelyn Leamer, Estelle Lenneman, Dortha Lemon, Joan Herndon, Mary Hanson, Pat Gilligan, Mary Sinclair, Jane Young, Marjorie Mengshol, Veora Endres, Shirley Jenkins.

Dean and Mrs. Le Rossignol and Professor and Mrs. O. R. Martin were guests at the banquet.

How Bus Travelers are HELPING WIN THE WAR

They plan trips in advance

You'll have a better, more comfortable wartime bus trip if you let your agent plan it—in advance.

They buy tickets in advance

Only by advance ticket sales can we judge how many will travel on a trip, and how to make them most comfortable.

They are on time

With speed restricted and tires and gas rationed, time can't be made up. One late passenger delays everyone.

They carry only one bag

Luggage is weight—it uses gas and rubber. Tag your bag and be sure to claim it at destination.

THEY TRAVEL IN MIDWEEK

Leave the week-end travel for the fighting forces. Traveling in midweek makes seats do double duty—and you'll be more comfortable, too.

● We are intent on doing our share of the immense war transportation job—in spite of restrictions and shortages. With your continued cooperation, we can do it. Thank you.

Reserves . . .

and veterinary medicine who are called to active duty and who are finally selected for pre-medical and medical training under the army specialized training program will not be required to take the basic military training.

Professional or pre-professional students in medicine, dentistry, or veterinary medicine who have commissions in the medical administration corps or who are first and second year advanced ROTC will be invited to submit letters of resignation from such commissions in order that they may be enlisted in the enlisted reserve corps and be called to active duty on or before June 30 as privates.

A restricted number of possible vacancies in approved schools of medicine, dentistry, and veterinary medicine, according to a recent war department memorandum, precludes an assignment in the near future of many who are qualified for pre-professional or professional training. Lists of such enlisted men who have been recommended by army specialized training program selection boards for pre-professional or professional training will be forwarded to the adjutant general, attention of the classification and replacement branch on the following basis: (1) Enlisted men who are enlisted for the basic phase of pre-medical, pre-dental, and pre-veterinary only, (2) Enlisted men who have completed one or more years of pre-dental pre-medical or pre-veterinary collegiate education and have been accepted for matriculation in an approved school of medicine or dentistry, and (3) Enlisted men who have completed one or more years of education and who have not been accepted by a medical school. These enlisted men will be ordered to STAR units for classification and assignment as directed by the war department.

If the procedure previously used is followed in ordering men to active duty, the orders to active duty will come to the armed services representative, 104 Administration.
