

Aircrew Return Invitation

Give Union Dance Saturday for Coeds

Tuna about's fair play, and so the air crew is throwing a dance for the Nebraska coeds this Saturday night from 9 until 12 in the Union ballroom.

To the swingband of Jack Swanson, an Omaha rhythm specialty, air crew private and their dates, and the staff officers will step out in tune. And for those couples who do not wish to dance, the Union game room will be open.

Asked about the band, new to the university campus, Lt. W. R. Marshall, special services officer, commented enthusiastically, "He's really solid!"

Jack Swanson leads an eleven piece orchestra with a featured vocalist, and has played consistently at the Athletic club, Hotel Fountenelle, and the Paxton Hotel in Omaha, and has played at King's Ballroom in Lincoln. This will be his first appearance at UN.

Free Refreshments.

Punch and refreshments, will be furnished free of charge throughout the evening in the ballroom.

Chaperones for the affair are Lt. and Mrs. Marshall, and Lt.

and Mrs. John T. Syllivan.

The dance will be a double celebration because it will mark the first formal appearance of the army's "suntans," or summer uniforms. May 15 is the first official day for the donning of these uniforms, and all air crew members have been looking forward to that day.

RC Workers Hold Rally Tonight at 8

Six coeds who have been working on Red Cross surgical dressings will take part in a Red Cross rally and pageant held in the Cornhusker ballroom tonight at 8 p. m. The entire program will (See RALLY, page 2.)

Marjorie May, Betty Hohf Named to Editorial Posts

University student publications will be largely the products of feminine minds and hands, it was apparent following selections of editorial and business staffs by the board of student publications Wednesday afternoon.

Except for election of Bob Henderson of Lincoln as business manager of the Cornhusker yearbook and Henry Fishback of Covina, Calif., as sports editor of the Nebraskan, all paid staff positions went to girls in the biggest landslide ever scored by feminine aspirants to publication jobs at Nebraska. The reason was obvious—there were too few boys applying who could give assurance they would not be in military service next fall.

Marjorie May is the new editor of the Nebraskan and Betty Hohf is editor of the 1944 Cornhusker. Both were advanced from managing editorships.

Business manager of the Nebraskan is Charlotte Hill. Managing editors of the Nebraskan are Patricia Chamberlain and June Jamieson. News editors of the Nebraskan are Marylouise Goodwin, Mary Helen Thoms, Ghita Hill and Jean Grotfelty. Myra Colberg and Kay Detweiler were elected managing editors of the Cornhusker.

Joan Martz was elected assistant business manager of the Nebraskan.

The Nebraskan, published five days a week heretofore, will be cut down to three publications, the board decided.

Curtis Bok Talks On May 24th

...Commencement

Curtis Bok, president judge in the court of common pleas in Philadelphia will be the speaker at the university commencement exercises on Monday, May 24.

Bok is the son of the late Edward Bok, who was editor of the "Ladies Home Journal" for many years. Bok's wife is the former Nellie Lee Bolt, Falls City. She received her master of arts degree from this university in 1922.

Baccalaureate services are to be Sunday afternoon, May 23. Bishop William C. Martin, head of the Methodist church in the Omaha area will deliver the sermon. Both baccalaureate and commencement services will be held in the coliseum.

The two speakers have not yet announced their subject, according to R. J. Pool, chairman of the university senate committee on commencement.

BABW Honors Barb Activity Women Tonite

This evening at 7:30 the XYZ parlors will be the scene of a recognition meeting sponsored by BABW. The purpose of which is to honor those active in barb work this year.

Pins will be presented to the members of Interhouse Council who have earned sufficient points by extra curricular activities. The outstanding barb freshman woman of the year will be honored.

Red Cross home nursing certificates will be presented at this meeting. The home nursing class has been sponsored by BABW.

ADVANCED ROTC LEAVES MAY 25

That the advanced course ROTC will leave the campus for Fort Leavenworth May 25, appeared eminent as a result of a telephone conversation yesterday between Col. J. P. Murphy and the 7th Service Command, directors of the ROTC.

Advanced course men cheered last night as the following telegram, sent to the War Department in Washington by the 7th Service Command and forwarded to UN authorities, was read to them just before taps last night.

"The second year advanced course ROTC students at the University of Nebraska who were in the ERC and have been called to active duty at the institution:

"These advanced course students are scheduled to complete the second year advanced course at the University of Nebraska on 24, 1943.

"Request authority to order to OCS 97 infantry, 30 engineering, 62 field artillery, 1 chemical warfare, 2 signal corps, and 1 air corps men in order that this headquarters may order these students to reception centers about May 25, 1943, for processing prior to reporting at OCS."

Members of the Nebraska military department said last night that Fort Leavenworth would be processing center for UN students. Telephoned information to 7th Service Command, directors of the ROTC by Colonel Murphy today indicates that the telegram refers to first year advanced students as well as second year.

It is assumed furloughs will be granted to the men at the reception center in order that they may visit their homes before going to duty.

Dorm Elects New Prexy: Gerry Lyons

Gerry Lyons was elected president of the women's residence halls on the down town campus.

The election, which had been postponed for several days because of the uncertainty of the dorms being open for civilian use next fall, was held at a mass meeting Tuesday night.

Other officers are Selma Pfingston, vice president; Betty Bradley, secretary; Beverly Bida, treasurer; and Anne Wellensitck and Amber Hasty, social chairmen.

Students Sign Now For Mailing Lists

Students who wish to be placed on the Cornhusker mailing list should sign names and addresses on the alphabetical lists provided outside the yearbook office in the Union this week, according to Dave Walcott, business manager.

The books will be out May 28th, and anyone remaining in town long enough to pick up their copy, or those students living in Lincoln are asked to pick up their own book.

Phares Wins Foundation Essay Contest

Malcolm Eugene Phares, Central City is this year's winner of the annual high school essay contest sponsored by the Nebraska Student Foundation, Polly Petty, president, announced yesterday. This is the second year of the contest, which is conducted in Nebraska high schools for all seniors. Phares will receive $45 first prize, to be applied on tuition at the university when he matriculates here. His essay was "Let's Go to College."

The two second prize winners will receive $25 each, also to be awarded only when they register in the university. They are Paul T. Rosewell of Teachers college high school, Lincoln, who wrote on "Why I Should Choose to Go to the University in These Times," and Fern Clymer, David City, whose essay was entitled "Why I Should Like to Attend the University of Nebraska in These Times."

Professor James L. Sellers and Professor Harold C. Vedeler of the history department, and Miss Louise Pound of the English department were judges for the contest.

All Military Units Parade Today

Marching men — approximately 2,000 of them—will mass this afternoon at 5 o'clock to ceremoniously bring to a close the military department's activities for the semester.

With first call at 4:50 and assembly at 4:55, the parade will consist of four separate marching units: the advanced course ROTC battalion, the basic course infantry, engineer and artillery battalions, the STAR unit, and the Air Force Training battalion.

Form on T Street.

Both the advanced course and basic ROTC contingents will form on T street from west to east, according to the official plan of formations released by the military department. The activated advanced course will march in a separate unit, while the infantry battalion will consist of four companies C, D, E and F made up by combining existing organizations as follows:

- Company C companies B, C and F.
  - Company D companies A, D and E.
  - Company E companies G, H and M.
  - Company F companies I and K.
- The engineer battalion will consist of three companies A, B and C made up as follows:

- Company A companies A and B.
  - Company B companies C and D.
  - Company C companies E and F.
- The field artillery battalion will consist of three batteries A, B and C made up as the unit director sees fit. They will form in the area south of the tennis courts and east of 12th and T sts.

The parade will be viewed by all members of the military staff assigned to the university, Chancellor C. S. Boucher, cadet brigade colonel, Richard Arnold; honorary colonel, Ann Craft, and the public. Medals and other awards will be made during the parade to the various individuals and units meriting them.

In the event of inclement weather the parade may be cancelled upon further announcement of the military department today.
