

STARS Make War Maps Of Europe

At the engineering building on Ag campus, STAR soldiers are busy making and painting maps of Europe.

Under the direction of Prof. Phil Colbert of the engineering department, trainees that have been classified and who are awaiting shipment are forming maps out of volcanic ash, plaster of Paris, and Portland cement. Rivers and main communications of the war fronts are painted with showcard paint and the relief is done to a scale.

Col. Arthur Lobdell has used the maps to illustrate his speeches before various organizations. The largest map on display shows day by day changes along the European Mediterranean areas, revealing the current positions of the invading allied armies.

Civilian and naval students on the Georgia Tech campus are conducting a contest to name the queen of all Techmen's girl friends. The winner will be dubbed: "The Girl I'd Rather Be Restricted With."

Are you feeling run down? Do you feel as though you haven't had a good time since you left home? Do your G-eyes follow the coed to and fro? (Silly question!) If you do, call 2-7371 and ask for Murt. She doesn't live there but you may be able to promote a date with the operator.

Out of the still of a Saturday morning, piped a voice. "Will books be on the top or bottom shelf for tomorrow's inspection?" Top! Bottom! Top! Bottom! came the rapid responses. This controversy continued until a compromise was reached; half of the men put theirs on the top, the other half put theirs on the bottom. (And all passed inspection.)
