

Muddling Through

With
John C. Bentley

Well, now that the Minnesota fracas is over, and forgotten (we hope), Coach Ad Lewandowski has the Indiana game to look forward to. Indiana, like Minnesota, is another tough outfit. The Hoosiers are packed full of scoring power and have a line that is almost impossible to penetrate, as the Wildcats of Northwestern found out. The Northwestern boys found it tough going against Indiana, and as the Wildcats will be one of the top ten teams of the nation this year, the Huskers will have it pretty rough next Saturday.

Last Friday, we, meaning me, had one of the finest columns we had ever, or probably ever will write, written. Boy, did I lay it on thick. I mentioned what a dandy football player Joe Kessler was, and how he reminded me so much of Bullet Brown, the old Nebraska great. I ought to know, because Bullet was my coach through three tempestuous years of high school football. Well, all of that was knocked in the head. Junked, or garbaged as it were, they had a lot of advertising, and that has a better priority than this column any day. But, to get back to the subject. I still think that Joe Kessler is a fine football player, but that makes no difference, as Mr. Kessler has been declared ineligible because he didn't have the required hours last term.

We also had a lot of football predictions doped out last week, but I suppose that it is just as well that we didn't run those, although our old Oulja Board as bad as a lot of the dopesters. If I can dig up the average Oulja Board out of the basement Bob Lienert and I will have some more of them this coming Friday.

The erratic 1943 football season is starting to take on a little shape. This coming Saturday should loom large in the final outcomes of the season. Some of the most powerful teams are matched, and a couple of the games should decide who is going to be the victor in what league. The Michigan-Notre Dame game, from all outlooks, should provide an early season National Football Champion. These teams have been picked as the two top contenders, and the winner of the Ann Arbor tilt, all calculating right, should go through to the end. But, as we have said before, this is a screwy season, and anything is liable to happen. Just keep your eyes open, hang onto your hat, and don't make any bets.

Husker Squad Revamped

With the Indiana game but a week away, Coach Lewandowski shook up his starting lineup, and cleaned house. After viewing the results of last Saturday's game, Lewandowski shifted four men from second, third and fourth strings, to starting lineup positions. Biggest surprise in the new lineup was the shifting of Alan Trant of Omaha, to the left half-back spot on the first unit. Trant, who was one of the few standouts in last week's defeat at the hands of the Gophers of Minnesota, replaces Clark Beaver. The same Alan Trant, was just about left at home last week as the Huskers went to Minnesota. He was taken only after Joe Kessler was declared ineligible for the Gopher tilt.

Tuesday's practice opened with only light pass and kicking practice, but dummy scrimmage found other new faces in the Husker first string line up. Kenneth "Buzz" Hollins was running at fullback, replacing big Jim Hansen, who, after starting against Minnesota, was moved to the second string. Two new guards were also working with the first string, Arden Means of Lincoln, who replaces Hazard, and Lyle Kops of Bassett, who filled in the hole left by Jerry Jacupke. Jacupke was moved to first string tackle in place of Bob Patton.

Lewandowski spent Monday and Tuesday putting his green Husker squad thru light passing and kicking drill. While the boys were busy working out the kinks from last week's tough opener with Minnesota, Lew took advantage of the opportunity by showing movies of the Gopher route. He pointed out

"Quite naturally we made a lot of mistakes last Saturday, but I think the boys learned a lot." Ed Wier, line mentor, hoped to tighten up a few of the loose spots with new replacements, before running into Bo McMillins speedy Hoosier backs.

Last Saturday, the Hoosiers ran over a hapless Wabash 52 to 0, and the previous week, held a strong Northwestern team 21 to 6. The Indiana outfit boasts many fleet and experienced backs, with several old-timers back in the lineup. End Pete Pihos, one of the finest ends in the country, and Capt. John Tavener, center, are two of the mainstays of last year's Hoosier team, and freshman back Bob Hoernhchemeyer makes a formidable threat to the Cornhuskers. Hoernhchemeyer played a brilliant and dazzling game both against Northwestern and Wabash, and is expected to be one of the outstanding backs in the nation this year.

Indiana's probable starting lineup, will consist mainly of freshmen, augmented by Pete Pihos and Tavner.

Fem Fun

By Jean Whedon.

Trouble, trouble, trouble—over this and that seems to be the thing over WAA way of late. Shoes for the freshmen to wear in gym classes have not come in in huge numbers in spite of the plea which appeared Wednesday in the Daily. The freshmen still need the shoes and the WAA office will be glad to act as middleman between buyer and seller.

Then there is the fact that the Army has taken over the practice fields. It seems that the girls' phys. ed. classes want the fields a few hours every day and the Army, as always, has a higher priority. We shall be interested to see how things work out.

Several field hockey enthusiasts have approached us on the possibility of having a field hockey tournament this fall. They agree that there will probably be no more than enough girls for two teams interested, but the WAA is willing to sponsor the tournament for only two teams if necessary. All girls who play field hockey and would be interested in playing in the tournament should bring their names to the WAA office. WAA participation points will be given in this, as well as all other tournaments.
