Indiana Halfback Passes to Victory

BY JOHN BENTLEY.

Before a small, but colorful crowd, the speedy Hoosiers of Indiana ran and passed the Cornhuskers right into oblivion. Led by Bob Hoernschemeyer, the Bomers took to the air for a steady stream of touchdowns. Hoernschemeyer threw six touchdown passes to his teammates, and aided in setting up two more, for a grand total of a 54 to 13 victory over the Huskers. Altho Bob played his usual brilliant game of ball, he was not to be outdone by the rest of the boys in the Indiana backfield. Mangold, Allerdice, Sanders and Schienbein all played dazzling football. A Husker sub also stood out for fine backfield playing. Bill Miller, slight 140 pound sub backfield man, made both of the Husker's two touchdowns.

The Hoosiers, green, outweighed, and all around outplayed, showed considerable improvement over last week, and were a determined band from start to finish. However, it was Indiana's ball game all the way; the Hoosiers just had too much speed, power and Hoernschemeyer. Bo McMillin, silver thatched Indiana coach, presented a team that was almost perfect in blocking and tackling rudiments. The Hoosiers' open and downfield blocking was masterful

Students, Army Men Rally For Husker-Hoosier Game

... Wind Up at 'Y' Mixer

Four hundred students and soldiers supported the Indiana game rally Friday night with long and lusty cheers, doubling the noise and the number present at the Minnesota rally. Tassels prepared the way for the rally by invading every organized house and dorm on the campus during the dinner hour to announce the rally and the YW-YM Mixer which followed.

At 7:15 cheerleaders Rod Shindo, Ivan Walters, Bernie Ulrich, and Norm Leger, and assistant cheerleaders and Tassels, led a procession from the Union to all the houses and the dorm. The parade ended on the front steps of the Union where Coach Ad Lewandowski was introduced and made a short pre-game speech. Bert Gissler, team captain for yesterday's game, was also presented and spoke briefly.

460 Sign For Coed War Work

Approximately 460 upperclassmen girls registered for university sponsored war work during the War Council registration last week. This number represents a majority of the sophomore, junior, and senior women on the campus.

Most favored of the numerous varieties of work offered were surgical dressings being sponsored by the YWCA and the Lincolnettes and War Council hostess corps.

Other groups which will function throughout the semester are Rag Tags, emergency relief work, war stamp sales, social dancing, classes for servicemen on campus, home nursing, food and nutrition classes, and a talent troop for "Red, Hot, and Blue" shows.

In accordance with a university ruling which bans freshmen from activities during the first six weeks of the school year, freshmen were not allowed to register for their war work during this registration.

A special registration will be held for them at the termination of the current six weeks period.

Romberg Tells Press of No Need to Write March Music

... 'Can't Dance to It'

BY GHITA HILL.

"This is a marching war," said Sigmund Romberg in his press interview Friday morning, "and there is no need to write marching songs. Since it is a global war, writers keep on writing about apple trees and the girl we left behind. You can't force people to dance to a march. Songs must be something you and I want, something we can dance to."

Romberg appeared here in a concert with his orchestra Friday night at the coliseum which started the series of Lincoln symphony concerts. He has been touring since the first of the year making this his 146th concert. His tour will continue until December 21.

Music Came Second.

Until he came to America in 1909, music was his avocation, for he had been trained at the University of Bucharest as an engineer to build bridges. On his arrival in this country, he switched to music for a livelihood. He first played the piano in Hungarian orchestras, but soon began a successful career as composer of light music for the stage. He has written more than 70 operettas, some of which are "Blossom Time," "The Desert Song," "Maytime" and "The Student Prince," and he has been called "the most successful composer of popular music who is not a writer of jazz."

New Show.

"Typical Romberg love story," is what he calls his new show "Sunny River" which is now playing
