CLASS 9 DEPARTS

This week another contingent of aviation students from the 348th College Training Detachment departed for Santa Ana Army Air Base, Santa Ana, California, after completion of a three month course here at the university. In addition to their academics, the course consisted of flying instruction taken by the men at the Union Air Terminal.

Requested to present a summation of their life at the University of Nebraska, the following report was submitted:

"Sir, the aviation students of Class 9 report to make a statement:

We will remember—The Corn Crib with its cokes and chatter; the turnpike and that tall Theta; the Cornhusker Sweet Shop on Saturday night; the reveille at 5:30; black as pitch; cold as h—l, and lining up by the North Star; the coeds calling us the "library boys," available for circulation without lines for being overdue; the drilling that produces results . . . "six to the front, three to the rear;" the Nebraska moon thru the barracks window; the minutes, 20 per day, we had to pick up laundry, have a coke date, and buy a bar of soap; the gigs we got for turning our head in ranks . . . that coed in red would pass;

The bewildered civilian . . . "Are you a captain in the Swiss navy?" . . . "I'm just a student officer at the university;" the tense moment in the air . . . "You mean you want me to land the plane by myself?"; the "Pot of Gold" number . . . 2-7371; the lowly underclassmen, to whom we leave . . . "All this and Heaven too."

You may remember: The "Honest, I'm not married and I haven't a girl at home;" the "I like Lincoln but I like the coeds more;" the "I'm sorry I can't make that date Saturday . . . I'm on guard duty;" the "After four weeks restriction, moved up a class . . . this is my one and only weekend . . . a raw deal here;" the "She's gottem . . . she's gottem . . ."; the "You're almost as pretty as my girl back home;" the G.I. coiffure . . . a surrealistic nightmare by a sadistic barber.

These are our thoughts as we leave the university. For many it was our first taste of college life. The patience and help of our instructors, the pleasantness of our surroundings, the charm of the coeds are soon to become but memories. We, the Aviation Students who are leaving, wish to thank you for these memories which will be among the nicer ones of our army life.

ganized houses will receive their book IV through their house mothers and chaperones. Students not living in organized houses, but who do live near the campus may register at the Bancroft elementary school across the street from Morrill hall. Other students may register at the elementary school nearest their residence or at Bancroft school.

In order to get book IV, the applicants must present their book III to the person taking their registration. All data on book III must be filled out before applying for book IV, and no book IV will be given out except on receipt of book III. Application blanks will be distributed only at the schools.

Army Quintets Play Tomorrow

Army intramural basketball rivalry will reach a new high tomorrow evening when Lt. Hesler's Huskers from Company B in Love Library take on Lieutenant Shaffer's Field House team in the Coliseum at 7 p. m. for the engineers' title.

The 3rd Bn. team will be built around Bill Casson, Bill Meckling and Charlie Miles. Casson played with the University of Arizona, while Meckling was on the Westminster (Pa.) College five. Miles was an All-State high school player in Illinois.

Lieutenant Hesler's aggregation boasts both experience and height. The five starters range from 6' 1½" to 6' 4". Jack Baker was a member of Camp Crowder's service team last year and also played college ball. Bob Schuer hails from C.C.N.Y.'s team, and Ellis Jessen and Arder Larsen both were all-state high-school players.

Star Notes

BY SGT. C. D. SHOKES.

Last Saturday night, the STAR Battalion held its first all-STAR dance, with music by a band from the Lincoln Air Base, and girls from UN and Wesleyan university. Good music, refreshment, and bed-check postponed until 12:30 added to the "good time had by all." The men are now enthusiastic about the possibilities of a Hallowe'en dinner and dance.

A nucleus for a STAR dance band can be found among some recent arrivals. Almost at every lunch hour or evening can be heard melodies and plunkings from odd corners. Among the STAR musicians who keep the men entertained are: Dean Taylor, accordionist; Robert Pace, pianist studying at Julliard; Andy Yakovetic, tenor saxophonist; Allen Park, violinist from Curtis Institute; Angelo Rico and Isaac Smith, two more fine violinists; and Robert Moore, trumpeter and drummer. Hopes for a speedy recovery and quick return to his work are extended by the STARmen to their Battalion Commander, Major Marvin T. Edmison, who is in the Lincoln Air Base hospital for a minor operation.

BOUQUETS TO JAKE MONDURAS

Our bouquets for today go to a young lad by the name of Pfc. Jake Monduras for the good deed he did the other night for some of us weary GI newspapermen. One of Hollywood's loveliest starlets was passing through Lincoln and stopped off to see Jake, who had been an old childhood sweetheart of hers. Realizing how we other GI's felt about such things, Jake gave us all a real thrill by introducing us to her. We're keeping her name a secret for Pfc. Monduras' sake, inasmuch as he doesn't want any publicity about his old romance.

While we're on the subject of Jake Monduras, we would like to add that he has consented to write something for the Army page very soon. That's awfully good news to us because Jake was one of New York's better-known police reporters ante bellum.
