

Husker Team Takes Road For Kansas

... Today

An eleven-man Husker cage squad departs this afternoon on a southbound trip, which will find them clashing with the Jayhawks of Kansas university at Lawrence tomorrow night and with Oklahoma's Sooners at Norman on Monday. With Warren Eisenhart and Rex Mitchell lost to the army air corps and Morris Galter receiving his V-5 call, Coach Lewandowski was forced to scrape the bottom of his manpower barrel to assemble a squad for the trip, which brings the Scarlet to grips with two of the conference's top quintets.

Named by Lew for the jaunt were Al Artman, Tom Dworak, Bob Tangeman, Pat Rooney, Buzz Hollins, Byrne Swiggert, Russ Leger, Max Johns, Harry Johnson, Gordon Baker, and Doug Nelson. Dworak and Nelson, however, will return to Lincoln after the Saturday clash with K. U. Dworak is a Naval dent student and consequently cannot be absent from the campus for more than 48 hours, and Nelson must return in time for Monday classes.

Stress Offense.

The Huskers have been stressing offensive drill in this week's practice sessions, and Lew has been driving his boys thru frequent scrimmages. The squad wound up preparations for the week end excursion by hustling thru a hard work-out and scrimmage last night.

Lew expects both the Jayhawks and the Sooners to be plenty tough, with Bruce Drake's Oklahoma squad particularly strong. Both clubs are heavily spiked with Naval trainees and hence must be given a decided edge over the inexperienced Huskers. "If we can get to hitting the hoop more consistently, tho," says Lew, "we can cause both Kansas and Oklahoma a lot of trouble."

The traveling squad departs at 4:15 this afternoon and returns to Lincoln at 7:00 Tuesday evening.

Randolph-Macon Womens College is opening an evening nutrition course open to students except freshmen, faculty, and townspeople. The course will be completed after ten weeks.

Second Guessing

with

Harold W. Andersen

We see that Phog Allen, Kansas University's gift to the coaching world (yes, Mabel, the coaching world is trying to give him back), has issued a challenge to eastern cage squads to come out and meet western teams on their own courts. Phog asserts that basketball belongs to the west and stands ready to prove it to any eastern team which will venture out this way. Playing eastern teams on their own courts, as western teams usually do, is a decided handicap, according to Dr. Allen, who further claims that eastern officials allow much too much rough play. Phog is so confident of the west's superiority that he is willing to let the eastern teams bring one of their own officials along, a procedure which is highly unorthodox, to say the least (but then Dr. Allen is hardly an orthodox character).

There seems to be a great deal of truth in Phog's assertions, despite the vitriolic terms in which he expressed them. Iowa's Hawkeyes and DePaul University, both strictly midwestern clubs, stand at the top of the nation's college teams, with Camp Grant, in Illinois, the leading service team in the country. On their recent eastern trip, the DePaul cagers beat the very best teams that the east had to offer, and on their own courts.
