

NU Clashes With I.S.C. Monday Nite

Meet Cyclones On Ames Court

Moving northward after their Saturday night clash with Missouri at Columbia, Nebraska's Cornhuskers tangle with loop-leading Iowa State at Ames Monday night in the second game of the season between the two clubs. The Cyclones trimmed the Huskers 56-24 at Lincoln early in January and since then have gone on to assume the lead in the Big Six conference, sporting a record of six wins against no defeats. The Huskers, who considerably improved since their first meeting with the Iowa Staters, are given little better than an outside chance against the naval trainee-spiked Cyclones.

Dworak to Be Absent

Nebraska will be weakened in the Ames game by the absence of Tommy Dworak, naval dent student who must leave the team at Columbia and journey back to Lincoln because of a 48 hour leave restriction. Elza Kuhlman, Falls City forward, will likely replace him in the starting lineup.

The Cyclones may be missing the services of James Myers, regular guard, who is suffering from an attack of the grippe. If Myers cannot start, William Block will replace him in the opening lineup.

Probable starting lineups:

Iowa State	Nebraska
Ray Wehde	E. Kuhlman
Roy Wehde	A. Artman
P. Brookfield	K. Hollins
J. Myers	D. Nelson
G. Oulman	A. Kirlin

Track Triangular Here Saturday

Nebraska, Kansas State, and the University of Kansas will tangle in a triangular indoor track meet in Lincoln Saturday, February 19. Track Coach Ed Weir announced yesterday.

This meet will be the first competition of the indoor season for the Huskers and should give Weir a line on what to expect from his charges in the annual Big Six indoor championships at Kansas City, February 26.

During the past two war years the University of Wisconsin has trained about 7,520 service men and women, and the university is now training continuously approximately 3,300 for the armed forces, a year end survey reveals.

Alpha Tau's Nip Betas Palace Beats Sig Chis

In the first intramural game played Thursday night, the ATO's nudged the Betas 22 to 20, while in the second game the Brown Palace won over the Sig Chi's 31 to 26.

ATO-Beta.

The ATO's scoring centered around Barry, who racked up 10 pointers. The Betas used a fast break with Pinney as their key man. The first half was very slow with neither team scoring many points. The score at the half stood Betas 9, ATO's 7.

The second half developed into a fast game, both teams using a fast break to score. The ATO's soon had the score tied and the game became a hotly-contested match with both teams piling in baskets. The final whistle found the ATO's on the top by a narrow 22-20 margin.

Fem Fun

Basketball tournament, beginning Feb. 21, promises to include some rather odd games. In a practice game last week, for example, two teams played 15 minutes without either side getting a basket.

Practices, starting Monday, will be at 5 each evening. Every player must have completed two practices, one this last week and one the week of Feb. 14-19.

How surprised the Delta Gamma's were to read they had won the intramural series in football! They claim it should be Nebraska-hall they won by beating the Tri-Delts. One remembers, however, the football game between the Theta's and the Fiji's. Maybe a game between the DG's and those pledges should be arranged.

Even with snow and cold weather making snow-balling the favorite sport, swimming practices are continuing. One more Saturday, Feb. 19, is left for the required 35 minutes practice.

Most of the 15 booths designed and set up by the organized women's houses had as their theme St. Valentine. Sigma Delta Tau played up the 1944 leap year with their "Marry-go-round." Delta Gamma's "Kiddy Korner" found soldiers adept at playing jacks. Kisses were plentiful at the Alpha Xi Delta booth.

Helen Johnson and Gloria Mardis were co-chairmen of the carnival. Miss Pat Lahr, Prof. Karl Arndt and Dean Nels A. Bengston were the judges for the booths.

Second Guessing

with

Harold W. Andersen

Dr. Forrest C. "Phog" Allen breaks into print again with his suggestion that the goals in basketball be raised to a height of 12 feet above the floor so that the "seven foot gargantuan stratosphere giant" will no longer be able to monopolize play under the basket. "There is nothing sacred about the ten foot goal height for college players," according to Dr. Allen. Install the 12 foot goal, says Phog, and the seven-footer "will have plenty of trouble shooting the ball into the basket, the same trouble that any shorter player will have."

Dr. Allen makes the point that the average height of basketball players has increased from an inch to an inch and a half a year during the past ten years and that, therefore, it's high time that the game be taken away from the tall men and given back to all the players.

It will be remembered that the now universal fan-shaped backboards, introduced some four seasons ago, also created quite a furor in coaching circles and were adopted only after a hard battle against the more conservative coaches of the nation. Now that the fan-shaped boards are in use, however, they have proved highly popular and seem destined to remain as the standard type backboard.

The issue raised by Dr. Allen is admittedly a more radical change than the introduction of the fan-shaped backboard, but the fact remains that there is a real need for a good solution to the problem of the stratospheric basketball player. Phog has been in favor of the change for some time and can be counted on to keep plugging for its adoption.
