

Noted UN Ex-Coach Is Dead

The grand old man of the University of Nebraska, Henry Frank Schulte, famed as a track and football coach at UN passed away Wednesday morning after six years of illness. "Pop" Schulte came to the university in 1919 to take over track and football mentoring and grew to far-heralded heights in both fields. For 19 years he served the university in these coaching capacities.

Born near St. Louis in 1878, the grand old man started his athletic career at the Smith academy in St. Louis starting on the academy team. From the academy he moved to Washington university where he continued his playing career, but still not contented, he went on to the University of Michigan where he spent four seasons playing guard on Fielding Yost's "point a minute" team and received All-American honors while there.

Michigan State was the first coaching site of Schulte where he took over football, baseball, and track teams. Leaving the coaching profession for a short time, the famed coach edited a magazine at Ann Arbor, Mich., for two years following which he turned back to the coaching game and took over athletics at Cape Girardeau state college in Missouri. In 1913 he returned to Michigan as an assistant to the great Yost.

Staying at Michigan as assistant football and track coach for only five years, Schulte had gained a middleaged status at the time he came to the University of Nebraska in 1919. For the first two years of his career here he was head football coach but then another head was named and he continued as line coach developing the most famous lines in Husker history. He retained his track duties during this time, also.

It was in 1921 that Schulte's first track team met with its first league crown. In the intervening years before his retirement in 1938 the grand old man produced ten outdoor league titles and nine indoor championships. Most famous of his proteges was Roland "The Gipper" Locke, a world record setter in the dashes.

The success attained at the university won him a place on the coaching staff for the 1928 Olympics at Amsterdam and afterward he toured European nations giving instruction to both coaches and athletes. 1929 saw the great figure of UN sports returning to Europe at the request of Germany, France and England to teach physical education instructors vital points of training for track.

High offices in national coaching organizations and writer of many track and field guide books were other attainments of the great coach.

High school coaches remain indebted to him for establishing the state wide high school scholarship system. This was only a slight showing of the interest the grand old man held for high school athletes as he was constantly concerned with them.

Library Shows Election Cartoon Exhibits of Past

With November 7 but a few weeks away, the reference department of the University Library has prepared an exhibit for the main hall case which shows interesting presidential election cartoons for various years.

The election of 1884 is represented by James K. Polk, the first "dark horse." In 1856 the "Know Nothing" party came forth with a candidate so the cartoons caricature the three candidates, Fillmore, Fremont and Buchanan.

In 1860 the cartoonists' pens turned toward Abe Lincoln and the Civil war. The donkey and the elephant first appeared together bearing their representative symbols in the election of 1880. Namas Nast drew the cartoon for Harper's Weekly. Harper's Weekly also provides the cartoon for the famous disputed election of 1876.

Jayhawks in Preparation For Huskers

LAWRENCE, Kas. Oct. 19.—After a 25 to 0 drubbing at the hands of the Iowa State Cyclones in Ames Saturday the University of Kansas Jayhawks began Monday to prepare for the all-important tilt with the Nebraska Cornhuskers in Memorial stadium. This will be Homecoming at Mt. Oread and a large crowd is expected to attend the game.

Coach Henry Shenk reports that the Iowa State eleven is vastly improved over last year's crew and also the Jayhawks did everything wrong in the game.

Danneburg Injured.

Kenneth Danneburg, who was left in Ames with Coach Elmer Schaake Saturday night because of an injury, will probably be out of the Nebraska game Saturday. Shenk said he didn't think the injury was serious but he doubted if the Kansas City youth would be ready to play against the Huskers. Danneburg arrived home Monday morning.

The Kansas coaches will spend this week trying to develop a scoring punch. In the last four tilts the Crimson and Blue crew has scored only two touchdowns while their opponents have run up 10. Coach Shenk said he was going to give his athletes plenty of work this week.

With the exception of Danneburg the Kansans came through the game in good shape. Barring injuries in practice this week the team will be ready to battle the tough Cornhuskers. The Jayhawkers last defeated Nebraska away back in 1916. That was before the present crop of Kansas players were born.

UN Won.

The game last year ended in a 7 to 6 victory for Nebraska in a game played in a driving rain. The Huskers scored early in the game when a fleet-footed back returned a punt for a touchdown.

The extra point was made. In the third period Charles Moffett scored a touchdown for Kansas but the Scarlet and White forward wall blocked Bill Chestnut's try for point. The Jayhawkers were knocking at touchdown land again just before the end of the game.

Sam Hunter and John Schimenz injured in the Tulsa game, may be ready to play against Nebraska. Neither of these players made the trip to Iowa State.

The Jayhawkers will be given plenty of passing and punting practice this week. It was a pair of poor kicks that paved the way for a couple of Iowa State touchdowns.

Shenk said he planned no changes in the line-up this week for the Nebraska game unless someone is injured. The Mt. Oread eleven will also get plenty of drill again this week on pass defense. The Iowa Staters counted a pair of touchdowns through the air.
