Prof. Filley Marks Notable Career By New Publication

Professor H. Clyde Filley's most recent book, "The Wealth of the Nation," which has been published by the university press, adds to his notable list of textbooks and other publications.

Filley is professor of rural economics at ag college.

Professor Filley, who can legitimately claim that his ancestors came over on the Mayflower and whose parents settled in Nebraska in 1874, looks back on a distinguished career as agricultural economist and author of textbooks as well as numerous scholarly publications, bulletins and articles.

Filley graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1903, took his MA in 1911 and later took graduate work at the University of Chicago. He holds a Ph.D. degree from the University of Minnesota and has been con-connected with the University of Nebraska since 1911.

Grange Member. A member of the Grange, the American Economic Association, the Farm Economic association and a great number of civic and professional clubs, Filley is widely known over the state of Nebraska because of his consulting work with the Farmers Ntls. Grain Dealers association and as chairman of the department of Rural Economics, in which capacity he is continuously consulted by Nebraska farmers. In 1911 he was elected to the State Legislature and served as the youngest member of that session.

In "The Wealth of the Nation," Professor Filley has expressed philosophy, based on the experience of 40 years of watching and studying the economic life of the nation. He supports his well-chosen illustrations with a wealth of important data for the first time assembled in one book.

"The Wealth of the Nation," cloth bound, 174 pp., was released on Jan. 1 by the publishers and is on sale in local book stores. Price is $2.00.

at the office of the University Extension Division, Room 202, former Museum building. Advance registration is desirable but not required. After February 10 a late fee of one dollar will be charged for each week that has elapsed.

Other courses of interest to registrants will be arranged by the Extension Division if a sufficient number of students make their desires known to the instructors.

This Week At War

By Albert Reddish

General Douglas MacArthur Tuesday carried out his determination to return to Luzon in the Philippines, taking with him in landings on the Lingayen gulf coast tens of thousands of U. S. Sixth army forces commanded by Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger.

The landings on the same coast the Japs selected for their invasion of the Philippines three years ago apparently took the enemy by surprise. Beachheads were firmly established on a 20-mile wide coastal area by Thursday as exceedingly light opposition was encountered in the first hours of battle.

American forces have battled 25 miles inland, only 95 miles from Manila and have captured over 30 towns and an airdrome, which army engineers expect to have repaired soon. The central plains between Lingayen and Manila are expected to be the site of the most bitter battle between Jap and American forces thus far in the war, as Tokyo has declared the safety of Japan depends upon successful defense of the Philippines.

B129s Hit Tokyo.

Further trouble for the Nips is seen in the air war as more B-29s and the new B-32 Dominators join the bombing missions on Tokyo and Japan's military and industrial centers. The air forces are now developing the B-35, B-36 and B-42 for long-range missions against Japan.

The manpower situation is attracting the most attention on the home front. In his annual message to congress, President Roosevelt reiterated his request for a national military service act. High war and navy department officials, as well as was manpower directors, are energetically backing the president's request.

The manpower situation today is critical, both in labor and in the fighting forces. War Mobilization Director Byrnes is revising the list of essential industries to release more men for the draft boards and the more essential jobs. Tho there has been much criticism of Roosevelt's request, many republicans, led by Austin, are joining administration leaders in demands for all-out mobilization.

A bill already is before congress giving selective service the right to draft nurses. Men deferred because of essential work who quit their jobs without manpower commission approval are receiving calls for the draft, the first 10 in Nebraska being former Martin employees.

FDR Gets Missed.

Passed by because of discussion of proposed national service legislation were Roosevelt's remarks on the possibility of world peace. Turning to American history for illustration, the president pointed out that an organization for world peace does not have to be perfect in its original form. The plan can be modified and added to as it is necessary, he emphasized, as the world gradually finds lasting peace. The important job before the united nations today is to provide the foundations upon which lasting peace can be built.

Reports Thursday were that Germany's Ardennes salient, carved out in the costly December offensive, is crumbling as First and Third army forces plough forward thru bitter opposition. Allied forces are continuing their stout defensive at Strasbourg on the Seventh army front.

British and E. L. A. S. leaders are still seeking acceptable armistice terms in Greece, as Premier Nicholas Plastiras promises a general election at the earliest possible moment.

American casualties since Pearl Harbor as announced by the war department Thursday amount to 646,380, which does not include any figures from the western front since the German offensive began.

tered the fundamental principles of English and for individuals who wish to advance and succeed in their jobs, will be conducted by Mr. M. C. Peterson.

Offered at the request of many students, "Elements of Ethics," will be taught by Mr. C. H. Patterson. According to Mr. Patterson, the field of philosophy is not only the particular province of the learned scholar but also a fundamental guide to the average person in his daily living. The course, therefore, takes up problems of individual and social conduct with an emphasis upon the sound ethical principles of every day life.

"First Aid," under the instruction of Dr. R. A. Lyman, is presented for housewives and all those persons upon whom the responsibilities of home nursing is falling most heavily.

The Department of Art is offering six classes in art which will appeal to all levels of skill, from the beginner to the advanced student. The work includes courses in drawing and sculpture. Mr. Yonny Segel, talented New York sculptor, will supervise all courses in sculpture. The work in art is on an individual basis.

"A Survey of World History to 1500" will appeal to all people who are interested in the historical background of world events. Miss Blanche Lyman teaches the class.

"Psychology 280-c," offered for those interested in the guidance and counseling of returning war veterans, will be taught by Mr. A. F. Jenness.

The emphasis placed by journalists in recent weeks on Russia's effect on world affairs has created a demand for a knowledge of the Russian language. "Russian 195-c" and "Russian 196-c" are courses offered by Mr. J. E. Alexis to meet this need.

Other courses available in evening classes include Astronomy 77-c, Typing 25-c, 26-c, 27-c; Economics 12-c; Engineering Drawing 1-c, 2-c, 3-c, 4-c; English 2-c, 22-c; Design 2a-c; Illustration and Commercial Art 105e-c; American History 9-c, 10-c; Algebra 11-c, Trigonometry 12-c; Physiology 10-c; and Political Science 2-c.

Sociology 54-c; Spanish 52-c, 53-c, 54-c; Speech Improvement; Public Speaking 109-c; Business and Professional Speaking 111-c; and Radio Announcing and Broadcasting 75-c, 76-c.

Students may register for evening classes, beginning Thursday, January 25, by mail or in person
