

Third Awgwan Issue Presents Novel Features

Coming out by Monday, the third issue of the Awgwan, campus humor magazine, will introduce several new features, according to Phyllis Johnson, editor.

Delivery will be made to organized houses of the third issue and unaffiliated subscribers may obtain their copies at the booth in the Union when the magazines does come out.

"Feebleman" will make his first appearance in this third Awgwan. Portraying a man who cowers from every threat, the cartoon is drawn by two students.

Campus Comments.

A second innovation is the introduction of comments on campus life covering two pages. Written by Phyllis Johnson and Bill Miller, these pages are patterned after The New Yorker's "Talk of the Town."

Dewey Ganzel has written a play for the Awgwan, taking lines from plays produced by the University Players and using characters created by them in these plays.

"This Modern Degeneration" is another of Bill Miller's articles exposing American youth.

Fourth Issue.

May 17 is the issue date for the fourth and final Awgwan. Miss Johnson asked that students who were leaving for home before then turn in their home address at the Awgwan office and copies would be mailed to them. Copies will be delivered to organized houses as usual and students not living on the campus who will be here may obtain their copies in the Union.

The fashion pages in this final issue are written for men as well as well women. Jo Kinsey interviewed the men on the campus and discovered what men would like the coeds to wear. She promises startling news.

Also included in the fourth Awgwan are the minutes of a typical Student Council meeting, and the campus comments.

Kappa Phi Elects Lavawn Johnson As '45 President

Lavawn Johnson was elected president of Kappa Phi, Methodist girls' club, at a meeting Wednesday evening. Betsy Kovanda is vice president for the coming year.

Other officers elected were Alice Rife, program chairman; Helen Fricke, membership chairman; Val Hall, treasurer; Eva Crangle, recording secretary; Dorothy Stevens, corresponding secretary and Shirley Thompson, historian.

Margaret Dressler, properties chairman; Margaret Iwata, chaplain; Marian Hatten, art chairman; Elna Kent, stenographic chairman; Phyllis Lowe, publicity chairman; Ruth Lebo and Lola Everingham, music chairmen; and Margaret Stacy and Gloria Eberhardt, social chairmen.

Plans are being completed for the annual spring banquet to be given May 4 at 5:30 o'clock in the Student Union.

Home Ec Group Compiles Recipe Booklet for Sale

Urging all students to place copies of their favorite recipes in the box on first floor of the home Ec building on ag campus, Monica Ann Alberty, president of home ec club, announced that the recipes were desired for a booklet which will be sold next fall by the club.

Last winter the booklet of recipes sold by the home ec club at Christmas time was so successful that they are publishing a new edition, according to Miss Alberty. She stated that the number of servings per person should be included with the recipe.

Anyone who has a copy of the booklet of recipes published last fall is asked to turn it in to Marolyn Hartsook, Carol Bridenbach or Monica Alberty, and their money will be refunded. The booklets are requested because alumnae have asked for the recipes, stated Miss Alberty.
