SNIPES HUNTIN'

with JUDGE MASON

The guy who said the "old days" would never return was looney as a bedbug. Yesterday afternoon's game was enough to make a liar out of him and all his cohorts—what a fight! Course we didn't score on them but what's a coupla numbers here and there—Potsy could answer that! As Alex Fink said when he came out of the fracas, face skinned and panting for all he was worth, "boy, it's rough in there!" But matching the spunk of the team was the enthusiasm of the crowd. Old days—here we come!

We were happy to see Truk Williams and Don Sailors on the field and out of mischief. If football would just take up a little more of their time perhaps they would stay out of strange people's cars at night—anyway, we don't know much more, but how about that, fellas?

It has always been a big mystery to us what goes on in the press box at a football game. Do the reporters get all excited like the crowd or do they sit back calmly chewing their cigars and smoking their pencils? Does Greg McBride ever turn over backwards in his chair and does Walt Dobbins ever swallow his cigar?

We wandered up yesterday afternoon to find the answers to these questions but upon opening the door we were met by an inferiority-complex-in-

Nebraska may have lost a football game yesterday, but it gained something that we haven't seen on this campus for a long time—spirit.

Football season has always been a romantic time of year. There is a feeling about it all mixed up with hot dogs, a packed stadium, bands, pennants, and cheering, win, lose or draw, that can't be found in any other sport. For that reason the past few years have been a little disheartening. It never seemed right to walk into the Memorial Stadium and finding a couple of thousand unenthusiastic spectators sitting disconsolately here and there, with no cheering section. That's why yesterday was such a great day. Approximately 18,000 people watched the game. It was music to our ears to hear the ushers tell late-comers they would have to go down to the 5-yard line for a seat. It was football weather, it was crowded, it was noisy, the concessions stands ran out of food before the half, and nobody cared. That intangible thing called "spirit" ran rampant class being the largest. Registration for any of the night classes may be done any time this week without payment of the late registration fee.

Speaking of old times, we saw some old timers' faces sitting in the stadium (that's quite a trick if you can do it.) Paul Svoboda, former Nebraskan editor and now a captain in the marines, was back in his old place in the student section yelling for the team. "Buss" Black and Deuel Andresen, top campus picnic dates of three years ago, were also rooting for the scarlet and cream. Ed Nyden, '42 Husker end, was there with his wife and also Bill Robinson and his o. and o.

The stadium really rang and the old forgotten ghost, "Husker Spirit" rose from his grave to see what was going on. Maybe next week hell get up enough action to give the Gophers a swift kick where it will do the most good.

Win, lose, or draw, if the Nebraska spirit at the rest of the games matches that of yesterday, it's a great day.

LETTERIP

This is to clarify the CORNHUSKER-Tri Pi situation:

Recently, one of the two missing Cornhusker receipt books was recovered, leaving a balance of $5.26 which can be understood as only a normal error when Cornhuskers are sold at fall registration.

 quers, Miss Holcomb attended George Washington university in Washington, D. C., and last year worked on stagecraft at Nebraska. A member of the varsity debate squad, she has appeared in on other major productions.

The full cast for "Blithe Spirit" includes: Ruth, Sally Whiteman; Elvira, Betty Russell; Charles, Howard Henry; Madame Arcati, Marthella Holcomb; Edith, Blanche Duckworth; Mr. Bradman, Laurence Gillman; and Mrs. Bradman, Mildred McAdams.

Sophisticated Humor.

Set in modern England, "Blithe Spirit's" sophisticated humor is bound to delight University theater audiences. What happens when a man living happily with his second wife suddenly discovers his first mate's spirit has dropped down for a visit is far from dull.

Scheduled for November 1, 2 and 3, "Blithe Spirit" is included as one of four major productions during the season and is listed as one of the plays on the season tickets on sale by Tassels, Nebraska Masquers and members of the Women's division of the chamber of commerce. The tickets also entitle purchasers to attend all experimental theater productions including the two one-act plays calendared for October 18. The price of the tickets is $2.60.

"Ways and Means," first of the one-act plays, will feature Mimi Hahn, Columbus, and Bill Fain, NROTC from Chicago, in the leading roles. Southern France in the push days before the war is the scene of the play, which will director, Marilyn Stahl has taken the position as director of clerical work and Claire Dudley is her assistant.

Receipts.

Receipts from the AUF drive will be divided proportionately among the National War Fund, Nebraskans for Servicemen and World Student Service Fund. The national war fund drive all over the nation also begins tomorrow and extends until October 10. This fund provides money for the USO, War Prisoner's Aid, and United Nations relief.

Nebraskans for Servicemen and WSSF are university-sponsored projects. Nebraskans for Servicemen are special editions of The Nebraskan sent free to all Nebraska men in the armed forces. The WSSF is the only way in which American students can help rebuild universities and schools in war-torn countries and provide books, teachers and relief for students in those lands.
