

Dean Beutel Tells Of New Program For Law College

After being closed for two years during the war, a complete new reopening program will be offered in the law college, according to Dean Frederick K. Beutel, in his address to the Lincoln Bar association Monday night.

The two immediate aims of the college will be to educate veterans whose legal schooling was interrupted by the war, and to offer refresher courses to lawyers who were in the service.

Outlines Requirements.

In outlining the requirements for the new courses, Dean Beutel said:

"To take care of the returning veteran students, the law school has temporarily lowered its entrance requirements to two years of college work, and is offering an accelerated program beginning January 3 and ending in July, during which time the students will be given intensive review work and a complete academic year's instruction. This will make it possible for any veteran who was in school before entering the service to complete his legal education by June, 1947."

Long Term Program.

Dean Beutel continued by telling of the importance of a long

Glenn Presnell Coaches '46 Husker Backs

Glenn Presnell, Husker head coach in 1942, will return to the Nebraska football scene as backfield coach in 1946, Athletic Director A. J. Lewandowski announced yesterday, following a meeting of the athletic board.

Presnell was backfield coach during Biff Jones' period as head coach, beginning in 1937 after playing professional football as a backfield star with the Detroit Lions.

He stepped into the head coach position following Jones' departure and served for one year. At present Presnell is with the navy, but expects to be discharged soon.

term program of legal education with special emphasis on modern problems. He stated: "It would be a grave mistake if a present reduction in standards to aid the veterans were to become permanently established.

In conclusion, Dean Beutel spoke of the value of the cooperation between the bar association and the law college in arranging refresher courses, seminars, and clinical work for the students.

Scholars Behave Normally Says Perry Branch

Traditional notions about university scholarship winners usually range from shell rimmed glasses and a brief case, all of which pedals to class on a bicycle, announced Mr. Perry Branch, director of the university foundation.

Picture Changes

"Maybe this was a pretty apt description years ago, but it doesn't fit the picture nowadays. They're all perfectly normal looking and acting students," continued Mr. Branch. Adding that many of the university scholarship holders were prominent in student activities and campus affairs, Mr. Branch said that the foundation is assisting 52 students with scholarships this year. The awards range in value from $50 to $750, and go to undergraduates as well as graduate students.

Loan Funds Available

In addition to the awards, 76 student loan funds are available to students. The Foundation directly aids students with scholarships, contributes in other ways such as supplying funds for research by graduate students, books for the various campus libraries and equipment for various other colleges and departments of the university.

Ag Forms Group To Study Campus Leadership Traits

Phi Upsilon Omicron, honorary agricultural sorority, and Dr. Katherine Maurer, home ec family life specialist, are collaborating in studying qualities of campus leadership, testing and evaluating them.

This project is one of Dr. Maurer's studies which will extend into all parts of the state. Dr. Maurer feels that the lack of men students during the war has created an unusual opportunity to study leadership qualities in women, who have taken over campus organizations to a large extent.

The coeds will be available on Friday and Saturday nights until 12 p. m. and on Sunday night until 10 p. m. Some coeds will be able to care for children on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and a few on week-day afternoons.
