

Ragged Edges

BY SARAH MURRY.

Fraternity pledges must love the actives or else they are getting them in a good mood to hurry initiation . . . anyway the highlight of several fraternities seems to center around the fact that the pledges are giving chapter parties this week-end . . . Phi Psi's are withholding the theme of theirs, but by the looks of the beards the fellows are attempting, it seems obvious that it will be rugged and rare.

Milton Mack will be there with Donna Wagner and Bill Ernst with Dot Jones, Jack Wilson with Sally Stuht, and Van Kessler with Betty Ann Taylor . . . and then there is Carl Glen who will import home-town steady for the affair.

Five O'Clock Shadows.

Really going in for beards in a big way are the Sigma Nu's for their Gold Rush party Saturday. Babs Stenger will be there with Ivan Haseck and Kathy Shaeker with Harry Pagles . . . The Delt and Kappa Sig pledges will be hosts the same night to such people as Ann Reinhardt and Harry Neaser, Phyllis Westcott and Bernie Weyent, and Bob Galloway

Hallet Abend Will Speak At UN Convo

Hallet Abend, chief far eastern correspondent for the New York Times in 1926, will speak on "Asia, the World's Tinderbox," at a university convocation in the Union ballroom at 11 a. m., March 19.

Abend has just returned from an extended tour of the globe, sponsored by the war department. He visited North Africa, Jerusalem, Iran, India, China, Burma, Ceylon, Italy and Germany and met the leaders of all those countries.

Speaking on the hopes for a permanent peace in Europe and present international policies, the correspondent will tell his views concerning the probability of permanent peace being achieved thru allied policies in Japan. He is sharply critical of policies that have been left so many European nations resentful, it is pointed out, and tells of reasons for unrest in those countries based on his observation.

His books, "Treaty Ports," "Ramparts of the Pacific," "Pacific Charter," and "My Life in China," were written concerning his 15 years spent in the far east.

He first went to the far east in 1926 on a six months round trip as a vacation from scenario writing in Hollywood and a series of newspaper posts up and down the west coast. Staying up to write special dispatches for the North American Newspaper Alliance, he joined the New York Times' far eastern staff.

Art Show Gives Prize Stories To Newspapers

Winning stories written in connection with the Nebraska Art association's show now in progress at Morrill hall will be submitted to the Daily Nebraskan and to Lincoln newspapers, according to Dwight Kirsch, university art galleries director.

Stories for the contest, which was announced in the Nebraskan March 5, should be concerned with the value of this art exhibition to a university student. Especially desired are stories by students who have had no art courses, as reactions based on a fresh, unbiased outlook are valuable, Mr. Kirsch said.

Gallery Folks.

Open to all university students, reference material on the exhibition, individual artists and pictures may be found in writeups posted beside each item on exhibit. Additional material is available for reference in the art reading room, 202 Morrill hall. Students entering the competition may also wish to attend some of the gallery talks, a schedule of which is posted in the union and in Morrill hall.

Original pictures donated by art department faculty members will be awarded writers of the three best stories, which may be written in any style the writer prefers.

Full details of the contest are posted in Morrill hall at the exhibition, which is free to students at all times.
