and that the satisfaction of sharing in the development of a bigger and better state in these post-war years will in the final analysis be of greater value than the glamour of the eastern press.

Coeds Find The World Is Stage As Shakespeare Said

BY JEANNE KERRIGAN.

My roommate just screamed hysterically, "Oh, no! Not one of those horrible things!" when I casually mentioned that I was going to compose a so-called feature. (She just doesn't appreciate me.) Of course, as I told her, I haven't the vaguest notion of what to write about so will just rattle on and hope that something comes of it—a stroke of genius perhaps. That would do the trick.

Now if I could just find a genius with a stroke, everything would be all set. I realize, however, that there is no such thing as a genius in Lincoln and we will have to get along without the stroke.

Booth Babblings.

You know, if you just sit still long enough, you eventually see everyone and everything going on. So, we've decided to rent a permanent booth in the Crib (plug) and watch the big wheels go by.

For the last three and one-half minutes, I've been watching some poor, misguided girl try to light a cigaret. She and her escort have wasted three and one-half minutes of my time and theirs (10 1/2 minutes altogether) and 14 matches and have exhausted all of his patience. By now, her face has turned several violent shades of red, purple and green. Is she embarrassed! Let me tell you how embarrassed she is! Ha. (Maybe someone should tell her not to blow out on the cigaret.)

Six Mortar Boards just marched in and seated themselves right across from us . . . A period of reverent silence . . . Crash, bang—excuse me while I pick up my dental work that just dropped out when my mouth fell open with utmost and respectful awe. This shattering encounter will probably leave me weak for daze.

Awgwan Angles.

Just saw a certain Awgwan staff member (guess who) apparently propounding one of his pet theories to some helpless victim. In fact he had her tied and gagged. Coming a little closer we accidentally overheard that the lowly person has it all figured out who the Mortar Boards and Big Wheels are going to be on this campus for the next two or three years.

Anyone interested in finding out his future may make an appointment and be enlightened for a small fee. I will leave you now biting your nails, tearing your hair, studying for exams (how'd that get in here! and worrying about your future.
