The dental college is also proud to add to their list of newly-weds Marilyn Boettcher and Fred Hecox. If you meet a couple of particularly beaming faces between classes in Andrews it might be any one of these "two can live as cheaply as one" theorists.

We who are suffering from green demons in our blessed oneness think that a lot of people have this same theory. I'll never jeopardize my career, we keep yelling, all the time thinking secret wifful thoughts of young un like Pauly Martz and Dick Buck, of piano fame, giddily selling shoes in Kearney. And this, my single friends isn't the half of it. Beth Montgomery and Fred Metheny followed up a "spring is in the air" romance with promises to love, honor and obey —or is it cherish now, since woman sufferage has come into its own. Well, anyway, it should be! Joining sister Beth were Peg Miles and Mary Lancaster when they said their "I do's" to Al O'Connor and Bob Hopkins. Lucky people!

And there are those who are still open-mouthed at Sallie Emerson's most recent announcement that she will be ex-Marine Jack Rice's inspiration while he's knocking off hours towards graduation. Phi J. J. Van Horne decided that Ivan Hasek had more to offer than the classroom grind and

None of these men competed on last year's championship squad which was defeated by graduation and service calls.

And just in case I haven't convinced you that this stuff—can't get enough of this wonderful—can be catching, Janet Krause took Jack Westerdahl for better or worse a few days after she left the U. of N. with a brand-new degree.

Still working on same is Ginny Turner while working still harder on keeping husband Art Jettters happy. Kappa prexy Jeanne Guenzel is doing duty as an Army wife after her marriage to Don Stewart, still wearing the uniform. Still in the ranks—the student ranks that is, are "Doc" Atkinson and Lila Latham who tied the knot this summer.

Oh, and there are more—lots more—but there's no doubt left in my mind—even if there is in yours—that the old American custom of marriage may eventually replace the putt putt!

Fred Astaire dropped ten pounds rehearsing and executing his last screen dance, "Puttin' on the Ritz" for "Blue Skies". He announced his retirement from movies after the Technicolor musical was finished.
