

HUSKER HIGHLIGHTS

By George Miller

A flock of pigskin predictions:
Nebraska vs. Iowa—The Hawk-eyes will be looking for a chance to revenge last year's loss. With versatile Emlen Tunnell in the backfield, as well as a host of experienced linemen, the Western conference team looks to be a couple of touchdowns better than the Huskers.

Missouri vs. Kansas State—Here's where the Huskers get some company at the top of the Big Six standings. The Wildcats are in for another long afternoon.

Kansas at Iowa State—The possibilities of a horse meat diet might spur the Cyclones to great heights in the hopes that the training table menu will be forgotten, but Ray Evans and his mates should squeeze thru in a game that can very well be one of the closest of the day.

Oklahoma vs. Texas—Big Six competition will be a welcome relief for the Sooners after they receive the full fury of the Longhorn offense tomorrow. Coach Jim Tatum's boys won't even have enough energy left to take care of the schedule maker after Saturday's game. The result will furnish a comparison of Army and Texas strength.

Army vs. Michigan: Altho the game will be the Cadet's most strenuous 60 minutes thus far, my vote rides with Blanchard and Davis.

Illinois vs. Indiana: A Big Ten contest in which Bo McMillin's team will be striving for another win on the comeback trail. However the Hoosiers seem to be in for another setback.

Notre Dame vs. Purdue: The Boilermakers have been disappointing this season, but will have no chance to enhance their record against the power laden Irish outfit.

Northwestern vs. Minnesota: Last week's surprisingly decisive win over Wisconsin makes the Wildcats one of the best in the Big Ten nine. Looks like another loss for the Gophers.

Wisconsin vs. Ohio State: Both teams have trounced Pacific Coast opponents and both appear to be afflicted with streaks of uncertainty, but the Buckeyes won their game last week and should be able to keep rolling.

Yale vs. Columbia: One of the day's top games in the Ivy league where some of the nation's best teams are located, Lou Little's club dropped Navy, and on the basis of having met tougher foes, they get the nod over Old Eli.

Duke vs. Navy: A meeting of the mighty who have fallen. The Middies dropped before Columbia and Tennessee won over the Blue Devils. Both teams will be trying hard to get back on the winning trail.

U.C.L.A. vs. Stanford: At this early date this game looks like it will have a lot to do with deciding the Pacific Coast championship. The Uclans' two team system should pay off with a victory.

Penn vs. Dartmouth: One of the east's powerhouses, Penn ought to make the Indians wish they were back in the safety of the Green Mountains.

L.S.U. vs. Texas A. & M.: The bayou Tigers are potentially strong altho they have not shown well in two starts. Texas A. & M. has yet to win, and will have to wait another week.

Southern California vs. Oregon State: Last week's loss to Ohio State should cause the Trojans to pour it on against Oregon State. The U.S.C. team has not conceded that Rose Bowl spot to their crosstown rivals.

The lavish ballroom sequence in the Bing Crosby-Joan Fontaine picture "The Emperor Waltz," required one of the largest sets in Paramount history.

PICTURE SCHEDULE.
 A change has been made in the picture schedule for the fraternity section of the 1947 Cornhusker, according to Dean Skokan, business manager. The Delta Sigma Pi Pictures will be scheduled for the week, December 9-14 instead of the previous week. Two other fraternities have just been scheduled for that week; they are Alpha Gamma Rho and Farm House.
