Marine Band Will Appear In Coliseum

BY SAM WARREN.

The United States Marine Band which plays tomorrow evening at the coliseum seems to have a corner on "being there first."

Not only was it the first military band in the nation (it has been performed by official command for every president since George Washington) but it was also the first band to broadcast when radio was born some 25 years ago!

Thru its years of radio contact with countless listeners, it has secured its position among music enthusiasts as the nation's outstanding symphonic military band. During its long history, the band has done considerable touring but this year marks the first tour since the war. As always, special approval by the president was granted the band in order to leave Washington, where its concerts on the steps of the capitol have been highlights of the city's musical life for more than a century.

Soloist Featured.

Featured with the band tomorrow will be Robert Isele, trombone soloist, who is one of the younger members of the band. Because of his technique and musicianship critics have rated him a top trombonist of the day. He has been soloist since his enlistment in 1937.

The band will play for school children of Lincoln at a free concert tomorrow afternoon. Admission tickets have been distributed thru the grade schools.

'All Aboard!'

Tonight when you hear a train whistling, its bell clanging, and the Husker conductor calling loudly, "All aboard, for the Jay Hawk Special" you'll know that Chattanooga has nothing on UN.

With Corn Cobs and Tassels as brakemen and firemen, the miniature special will be waiting in the "depot" at 16th and S at 7 p. m., to lead the rallying passengers on an express trip to the quad, directly north of the library, for a big Husker send-off. Conductor Beindorff and his crew will lead some lively yells and songs, and a pep talk will be given by a "Jay Hawk Special" engineer whose identity will remain a secret until midnight.

The trackless locomotive, decorated with gawdy trimmings and rally placards, will carry as its special cargo the newly painted "fire engine red" victory bell.

In order that hour dances may begin at 8 p. m., the rally will get underway at 7, proceeding down S street to the platform set up on the quad. To avoid traffic congestion, the request has been made to all car owners not to follow behind the rally.

The second half of the migration pep session will be held in Lawrence, Kansas, tomorrow at 12:30 when the Special arrives at the Burlington depot. Everyone attending the game is urged to be there and to bring pennants, plumes and noise makers to add to the spirit of the occasion as the Huskers follow the varsity band into town where a giant rally will be staged.

More KU Tickets

Dodie Easterbrook, migration chairman, has announced that 200 additional reserved seat tickets to the KU game have been ordered, and may be purchased today at the coliseum in the box office. Students may still make reservations on the "Jay Hawk Special," but are urged to do so immediately so that an accurate count of the number of passengers may be reported to train authorities.

"This is a special note to vets," Dodie stated, "With the GI checks now coming in, those who couldn't purchase their tickets before should be informed that they still have a chance to buy both a train ticket and one to the game."

Lueth Speaks To Scottsbluff Medical Group

New motivations to enter the nursing profession must be given young women if the present "alarming decrease" in the number entering is to be halted, Dean Harold C. Lueth of the College of Medicine said in an address given members of the Nebraska State Nurses' Association at Scottsbluff, Thursday.

It is significant, he continued, that despite vexations and uncertainties, the ideal of service has made nurses carry on through the years.

Nursing School

Dean Lueth advised acquainting college women with the possibility of continuing their academic training by entering a school of nursing, and said that a more direct appeal along accepted university teaching principles could be added to nursing courses.

"Much of the older prejudice of vocationalism and trade school technique will be dissipated by these new approaches," he said.

Junior class presidential election results will not be announced until the Student Council judiciary committee rules on the validity of the entire election. Dake Novotny's candidacy was contested after the polls closed yesterday.

The election, held yesterday, was the second of its kind to be conducted, with Dake Novotny and Dee DeVoe running for the office of junior president. The first election was held to be invalid because of discrepancies between the vote and the registration.

The judiciary committee will meet at 3:00 this afternoon in room 213 of Teacher's College to judge as to the final validity of the election. The committee will hear testimony by all interested parties before they come to a decision.

The results of the election, according to Bob Coonley, Student Council president, are: Novotny, 165, and DeVoe, 111. Jackie Tobin withdrew her name from the ballot Wednesday night.

Coeds Have One O'clocks On Saturdays

AWS, after due consideration and consultation with various campus groups, has passed a resolution giving University women until 1 o'clock to be in on Saturday night, Mimi Ann Johnson, AWS president, announced Thursday.

Automatically withdrawing the three 1 o'clocks previously permitted, the half hour was given students in order that they could have ample time to return home when they have social engagements away from campus.

For special events, such as the Mortar Board and Military balls, the 1 o'clock will be Friday instead of Saturday, Miss Johnson said.

Following Dr. Burnham's speech, a short business meeting was held. Mary Ellen Marshall, delegate to Pi Lambda Theta's national convention, will speak at the next meeting.

Music School Faculty Lauds Pianist Novaes

BY SAM WARREN.

The return of Gulomar Novaes to Lincoln has brought forth enthusiastic anticipation of her Monday piano night recital from three school of music faculty members, Elizabeth Tierney, Earnest Harrison and Arothur E. Westbrook, dean of the school.

Caught between her classes in harmony and theory, Miss Tierney looked up from her desk work with a smile to recall that "Novaes was just a young musician when she was here last but she was received with utmost enthusiasm. I didn't get to hear that particular recital because I was called away from the city, and I always regretted it because the reports at that time seemed to forecast her present successes."

Queen Reigns At Ag 'Formal' Dance Tonight

Presentation of the Farmer's Formal Queen and her six attendants at the dance in Activities hall tonight will climax Ag activities for the week.

The queen and her attendants were selected after an election held Wednesday, but their identities will not be revealed until the crowning ceremony.

Playing for the dance will be the Smith-Warren orchestra, and tickets for the event may be purchased at the Union, at the door tonight, or from the Ag Executive Board, which is sponsoring the formal.

The first Farmer's Formal since 1942, girls will wear calico dresses and boys will dress in blue jeans.

Cornhusker Sale Terminates Today

Today is your last chance to get a Cornhusker, announces Dean Skokan, business manager of the Cornhusker.

Any student wishing to buy a Cornhusker should see a Tassel or Corncob before this afternoon. Although present books have been sold, a student placing an order today may still obtain one.

In ordering your Cornhusker, you may either pay the full purchase price of $5.50, or make a down payment of $3. Priority for the Cornhuskers will be given in the order that they are purchased.

The subject of the Brazilian pianist required no thought on the part of piano-teacher Earnest Harrison who responded immediately, "She's especially strong in Chopin, Schumann and the moderns including South American works, of course." Continuing, he exclaimed "She had lots of dash, poetry and fervor!"

Mr. Westbrook, who was none the less hesitant than the others, summed up his regard for the pianist by recalling that her recital here several years ago is among his best remembered musical experiences.

Student tickets, selling for 50c, are available at Walt's Music Store where reserved seats are also available. Mme. Novaes is the third attraction of the Lincoln Newspapers' series.
