

HUSKER HIGHLIGHTS

By George Miller

Sunday's National Football League results indicated that several of the professional players now established stars in the play for pay ranks were former standouts in the Big Six.

Pitchin' Paul Christman of Missouri turned in the best performance when he led the Chicago Cards to a win over the Los Angeles Rams, defending champions.

The former Missouri ace passed for two touchdowns and scored another himself. It was Christman who tossed the passes that beat Nebraska a couple of times, and against the Rams his tosses were good for 221 yards.

Another name well known to Husker fans also popped into prominence. Agile Charlie Brock, aging center for the Green Bay Packers, was up to his old ball stealing tricks against the Detroit Lions. The ex-Scarlet pivot man pilfered the pigskin from Fullback Camp Wilson, Detroit ball carrier and ran to the Lion 21-yard line to set up the Packer's winning touchdown.

Brock established himself as one of the standout centers in the pro loop and has spent all of his time with the Green Bay team where another one-time UN standout, Halfback Herman Rohrig, cavorts at a right halfback spot.

Still another Husker broke into the limelight with the New York Giants as Stout Steve Ofens' outfit tumbled the hitherto unbeaten Chicago Bears 14 to 0. Joe Byler, husky Alma tackle, saw plenty of duty with the Giants, replacing DeWitt Coulter who was hampered with an injury.

Fans are still scratching their heads in wonderment about that second Indiana touchdown. Just who had the ball before Raimondi got off his pass to Pete Pihos is quite a question.

Accounts of the play in various newspapers are dissimilar in varying degrees, the only agreement being that it was Pihos who caught the ball and went across the goal.

However the accepted version of the formation seems to be as follows: It was Pihos who took the ball on a direct snap from center, and as he went into the line, he handed the ball to Cowan who flipped a lateral out to Raimondi. As the passer faded back a bit, Pihos put on burst of speed and got to the 25-yard line, just 15 yards beyond the line of scrimmage without being noticed.

When Bennie threw at Pete had to do was hang onto the ball and loaf across the goal line. The Huskers secondary evidently forgot about Pihos after they saw him cross the line of scrimmage empty-handed.

GAMES THIS WEEK

Iowa State at Kansas State.
Oklahoma at Texas Christian
Missouri at Nebraska.
Oklahoma A. & M. at Kansas.

RESULTS LAST WEEK

Oklahoma 63, Iowa State 0.
Southern Methodist 17, Missouri 0.
Indiana 27, Nebraska 7.
Tulsa 56, Kansas 0.

With the beginning of November, Big Six teams will turn in earnest to the task of determining the league leader and the two games scheduled in the conference this week will go a long way toward determining the final positions of several teams.

Most important is the Nebraska-Missouri engagement at Lincoln. Both ball clubs are unbeaten in conference play and both suffered decisive defeats at the hands of non-loop opponents last week.

The Huskers, victorious in conference games against Kansas and Kansas State, must get past the Tigers to merit any further title consideration.

The winner of the Bengal-Nebraska fracas will get the doubtful honor of contesting the right to first place with the power-laden Oklahoma Sooners who are also undefeated in Big Six play.

Tigers Lose.

Last Saturday the Missouri team absorbed a 17 to 0 defeat from an unheralded Southern Methodist aggregation which should have piled up more of a margin when the caliber of the Mizzou performance is considered. Don Faurot's charges were guilty of frequent fumbles which set up the Mustang scoring opportunities.

As for the Husker showing, the less said the better. Nebraska's pass defense was no obstacle to the Hoosiers' sharp shooter, Bullet Ben Raimondi, who increased his stature as the nation's top flipper in leading Bo McMillin's team to a 27-7 win.

are scrapping for a share of first place, Iowa State and Kansas

State will be fighting to stay out of the cellar. Neither team has scored a triumph in loop play and the loser of Saturday's game at Manhattan will probably end up at the bottom of the standings.

Oklahoma will meet its third Southwestern Conference rival when the Sooners face Texas Christian at Fort Worth. Following this game Jim Tatum's crew will enter the Big Six campaign in a big way, meeting Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska on successive week ends.

Huge Score

Against Iowa State the Sooners ran up the amazing total of 63 points, 47 in the last half, to indicate that they must be considered the team to beat for conference laurels.

George Sauer's Kansas team didn't realize how lucky they were against Nebraska, for Saturday the Golden Hurricane of Tulsa roared through and over the Jayhawk defense for a 56 to 0 win.

The KU club will test another Missouri Valley foe this week when the Oklahoma A. & M. outfit, led by Bobby Fenimore, visits Mount Oread.
