Males Voice Protest; Ask For Sovereigns

BY EUGENE BERMAN.

"Prospective UN Queens Announced" and "Deadline Set for Colonel Candidates" are two of the headlines that appeared on the first page of Wednesday's Rag. Such things may very well put one to wondering what is becoming of the male animal? Why should the Cornhusker devote so much time to the judging of women candidates in a beauty contest and overlook the poor men? Why should a female be given top honors at a Military Ball?

For a long time it has been true that women were given all the beauty honors, but such false thoughts have been undergoing a process of change, thanks to time, Charles Atlas, Van Johnson, and Frank Sinatra. Men are slowly coming to be recognized as superior in the physical as well as in the intellectual realm. Nevertheless, women are still chosen Queens and Honorary Colonels for affairs here on the university campus.

How About It?

It is about time that a King be chosen for some sort of affair. If women are assumed to be men's political equals, it should certainly be logical to assume that men are the social equals of women. To coin a phrase, we men must federate to preserve and maintain our natural rights. Is it logical for men to be forced to send corsages and pay the bills, then in return be regarded as the inferiors of women in society? What do the females have that men lack?

At some time during the school year when the drums roll and the lights dim to dramatize the presentation of the guest of honor, the spotlight should be brought to focus on the intoxicating form of a man, "Isn't he handsome?" and "So masculine looking," will be the exclamations that will arise from the feminine multitudes as they gaze upon the lion skin-clad form of a male student.

As men were forced to grant equal suffrage to women, women in turn should be forced to grant equal social rights to their protectors and bread-winners. The time has come for the oppressed to throw off the yoke of oppression. It is inhuman to keep men in their places of business working for a living, while the women rule society with an iron hand!

One of the bright "N" sweaters accompanies them on the Steinway piano which arrives through the courtesy of the tap-dancing Nicholas brothers who are apparently janitors in the building. The "N" sweater, it develops, is worn by Frankie Carle who dashes off a boogie-woogie arrangement of "There Is No Place Like Nebraska." On the last chorus, the class, led by their litterbugging professor, dance out of the building in a conga line.

There was more, but at this point they woke us up to tell us the library was closing. And we still have that Ec assignment to do.
