

Nubbins Tilt Postponed Until Nov. 22

The Nebraska University B team football game with Midland College, scheduled for this Friday at Fremont, has been postponed until November 22. The request for a change in the date was made by the Warriors, who desire an open week-end to prepare for future conference engagements.

Kansas University's reserve squad will provide the next opposition for the Nubbins in a November 9th contest in Lincoln. By comparative scores the Jayhawks should be a stiff hurdle for the Huskers, for they handed the Kansas State B team a two touchdown defeat, while the Wildcats in two games with the Nubbins dropped a decision by the same margin and then in the second game held the Nebraskans to a 14-14 tie.

The open date will also give Coach Ray Prochaska an opportunity to smooth out the rough spots apparent in the tie game of last Friday.

Poor Defense.

Especially noticeable was the poor pass defenses and ball handling of the Nubbins. Both Kansas scores were set up on long pass completions, while the Husker attack suffered because of the loose manner in which the ball was handled.

Although their perfect record was blemished by the tie, the Nubbins are still undefeated and rank as one of the best reserve teams in this section of the country. The last two games with Kansas and Midland will go a long way in determining just how much the Huskers have improved or slipped since the beginning of the season.

The loss of many of their early season stars, either to the varsity or by way of injuries, have hurt the Nubbins, but the play of several freshman performers such as halfback Bob Ackerman and Dale Adams, and End Mickey Allen have enabled them to maintain their undefeated status.

Oscar Mussman, stellar tackle of the Nubbins, has recently been working with the varsity and may remain there for the rest of the season.

Masterson Juggles Cornhusker Lineup

Bernie Masterson sent his Husker footballers through offensive and defensive sessions against the Nubbins Wednesday afternoon as he prepared his squad for the encounter with the Missouri Tigers on Saturday.

Two more promotions were added to the three advancements which came about Tuesday, for Gene Wilkins of Omaha and Frankie Leik of Hastings were running with the first string at the guard positions.

Both are rugged veterans who will add more poundage to the center of the Husker line, something the Scarlet team will be needing if it is to be able to handle ponderous Jim Kekeris and the rest of the Tiger forward wall.

Three lineup changes which occurred Tuesday were still holding as two varsity outfits tangled with Ray Prochaska's and Bob Kahler's Nubbins.

Frank "Junior" Collopy, Scottsbluff back who started the season as a fullback was running at right halfback with one crew which included Wally Hopp, Dick Hutton and either Sam Vacanti or Dick Thompson as the other backfield members.

The move was designed to strengthen the Husker defense which proved to be woefully inadequate against passes thrown by the opposition last week. Collopy alternated with Bill Moomey against Indiana, playing when Nebraska was on the defensive.

Gordon Hall, scrappy Lincoln tackle, was another Husker to advance as the Missouri game nears. Injuries to Vern Stiner have left the right tackle spot weakened and Hall moved into the vacancy.

Willard Bunker, back in playing condition after a knee injury had hampered him since the Kansas State contest, was named at the left end post in place of Jack Hazen who is still troubled by a bad shoulder.

In Wednesday's session Fritz Mandula and Hazen were alternating at led end, Carl Samuelson held down left tackle, Frannie Leik was at left guard and Joe Partington, game captain for the Mizzou tussle was playing center. On the right side of the line were Gene Wilkins, Hall and Jack Pesek.

Collopy and Dick Hutton were at the halfback spots, Wally Hopp ran from the fullback position and Vacanti and Dick Thompson took turns at the signal calling duties.

Different Eleven.

On another combination Ed Nyden and Bob Schleiger took care of the terminal posts, Stiner, still favoring injuries, and John Sedlacek saw duty at the tackle slots, Ed Schwartzkopf and Fred Lorenz took care of the guard duties and Jim Thomson was at center.

Fred Metheny handled the quarterbacking, Jim Myers and Bill Moomey were at the halfbacks and Tom Novak was in at fullback.

Another member of the ailing list, Cletus Fischer, was working out in sweat clothes. The St. Edward right halfback was hurt early in the year and has viewed the last several games from the sidelines.

Missouri will use a T formation against the Huskers, but in Don Faurot's version the quarterback is often the man in motion, deserting his spot under the center. With Bus Entsminger, regular signal caller, expected to be bothered by injuries sustained in the Southern Methodist game, Nebraskans can expect to see plenty of little Len Brown, the pint-sized quarterback who caused so much grief last year.

Missouri Hopes to Repeat Last Year's Win Over UN

Columbia, Mo.—Intent on spoiling the Nebraska Homecoming this Saturday, the Missouri Tigers are concentrating on their third conference game at Lincoln with the Cornhuskers.

Currently tied with the Scarlet and Oklahoma for the loop lead, the charges of Coach Don Faurot are setting their sights on a repeat performance of last season's Big Six championship. With victories over Kansas State, 26 to 0, and Iowa State, 33 to 0, coupled with a 19 to 14 triumph over St. Louis, a 13-13 tie with Ohio State and a 42 to 0 loss to Texas in the season's opener, the Missouri maulers hope to nudge the Cornhuskers for their second win in two years.

One Common Foe.

The only game with which to judge the two teams were the contests with Kansas State. The Huskers mowed down the Wildcats to the tune of 31 to 0, while a week later the Tigers continued their streak with a 26 to 0 victory. Both teams looked sloppy against the Wildcats, however, so that no real comparison is possible.

With 284-pound Jim Kekeris in the tackle slot leading the forward wall, the Tigers will offer staunch opposition to the Husker ground attack. Marshall Shurnas and Rollie Oakes at the ends, Bob Stone at the other tackle, Verlie Abrams and John Reginato at the guards and Ralph Stewart at center will round out the starting line.

In the backfield, the men from Columbia will find a quartet composed of Loyd Brinkman and Bob Hopkins at the halves, Harold Entsminger at the quarterback spot, and Lee Bowman at fullback. With Brinkman the runner-up in the conference ground-gaining race, the Tigers will have a double-barreled attack leveled at the Cornhuskers. The Missouri air attack has netted 38 completions out of 77 attempts to account for two-fifths of their 1,630 yards gained.

Injury Tale.

Injuries, however, may keep Entsminger and Shurnas from seeing much action against the Huskers. The return of Fred Bouldin, regular fullback, who has been sidelined with a broken hand, will help to offset the possible loss of the other two men.

Something new in the way of school support for the football team will be inaugurated at Washington State this fall. A seven-part glee club consisting of several thousand voices will harmonize to cheer the Huskies in the homecoming grid scrap with California, Oct. 26. It is expected to produce one of the most unique, cheering sections yet devised, and if the venture proves successful, may be established as a tradition.

Football Teams Begin Final Playoff Games

The intramural football season has entered its final phase as teams have started to battle for the coveted championship which will give precious points for the Jack Best trophy.

Sigma Chi was on the spot last night in its game with Phi Delta Theta, after being defeated by Delta Upsilon in the first league playoff. The Phi Deltas are favored to win on the basis of their all-victorious record and an average of over 16 points per game.

In a League I playoff for third place, Sigma Nu battled a stubborn Kappa Sigma team, finally winning 2-0. Another hotly-contested game found Phi Gamma Delta registering its first win by defeating Brown Palace Co-op, 1-0. The playoff of the tie found both teams losing yardage in their efforts to gain. Brown Palace lost 8 yards while the Phi Gams lost 7 1/2.

YMCA continued their winning habit by stopping Presbyterian House, 12-7. Cranston and Parker scored for the Y's. The V-9's twin mighty midgets, Flasnik and Tom-sik led their team to an impressive 12-0 victory over Delta Sigma Pi. The paid kept their opponents baffled with runs, passes, and laterals that took them all over the field.
