Sixteen semi-finalists were selected Thursday to compete for the eight university Beauty Queen titles. The queens will be chosen by Jon Whitcomb, New York illustrator.

Judging the semi-finalists were Mrs. Imogene Foristel, Charles Lowe and Ed Nicholls, all of Omaha.

Do You Feel Limp and Tired? Beware of Fall Fervor Malady

BY TOTTIE FIDDOCK.

It isn't spring, but I have a fever anyhow. The symptoms are similar, but this new disease has drawbacks all its own, and it will have to be called Fall Fervor—until someone thinks of a better name.

Fall Fervor is something everyone should watch out for, because it falls into the strictly undesirable category of "ugh." If you haven't been feeling too sharp lately, take care that you are not a victim of this dread malady!

Signs of Illness.

Do you have pains in your brain? Do you feel limp when you walk home from Ag campus? Does everything go black when you close your eyes? Are you tired when you wake up in the morning? You have it!

The pains in your brain are the result of too much studying. You will have to give up this altogether until you improve considerably. Spend the time you usually study to find a date for the next week end. You'll find the treatment most effective, and may wish to continue with it, even after you are cured.

If you are limp when you arrive home on foot from Ag campus, you will have to start taking the bus. No doubt your father will be displeased when you ask for a raise, but if you explain the circumstances to him, he will probably be glad to help in your health crusade.

Early Stages.

When you close your eyes and see nothing but blackness, you are indeed unfortunate. This is one of the earlier stages of the disease. Wait until later when you see continued serials every night.

If you are tired when you arise from your downy couch of a morning, worry no more. Simply stay in bed and sleep until you feel like getting up. Perhaps the first few days you will wish to stay in bed until night so that you won't be so tired on your date for the evening. Later on, however, you'll discover that you can easily get by with 10 hours sleep, and life will lagain be beautiful.

One last word of warning—professors are known to be carriers of this fervor—they carry it in assignment books. So to avoid illness, and be mistaken for Charles Atlas, stay away from assignments!

Ragged Edges

One more Homecoming fades into the past—but congratulations to the new '46-'47 Pep Queen and the prizewinners for the most original homecoming decorations are in order. The first postwar celebration brought many alums from all over to NU and the open houses were well attended.

Friday night at the Pike brought singular honor to the DU's when Frankie Masters invited any members present to advance and shake hands with a brother. A congenial foursome enjoying the music were Nancy Pierson, "Gummy" Fenton, Jo Guenzel and frequent partner, Bruce Allen. Tom Nye, who is again visiting the campus on furlough, escorted his usual coed, Kay Kinsey.

Borden Portwood seems to have occupied a good share of "Hink" Aasen's time over the week end—escorting her to the Pike Friday and again to the Sig Ep breakfast Saturday. Not much of a lull for Hink.

Brothers, after quizzing Dick Fuller last Monday night, discovered that he parted with his white star over the week end. The proud owner of the symbol is none other than Shirley Nason—cigars are in order, so they say.

Hallowe'en Capers

Hallowe'en was anything but dull—when the capers Kappas found that letting air out of the tires of the cars of their three neighbors across the way, did not go unnoticed. The fellows collaborated and saw that the girls were properly showered for their trick. The Phi Deltis apparently had no debt to repay other than the little boy coming out in them, when they carried away "Buckshot" Cain, Sandy Motter, Anni's Gilmore and Ellie Swanson for a soaking. The Pi Phis had more than their share of trouble when they studied by candlelight due to the theft of their fuses. The Phi Gams were up to their old tricks of leaf distributing. Taking the opportunity to celebrate were Bill Korf and Marge Farrell and Ellie Lykke with Don Papez.

Claude Rutherford reportedly has been dating a girl named Rosalie, however, her exact identity is a big mystery.

A twosome which is picking up momentum rapidly is that of Mickey Weldin and Pat Mack. After meeting last week end at an hour dance, they have been seeing each other regularly, and Friday night they enjoyed themselves at Kings. A steady couple faring smoothly, until now unmentioned is Bill Blythe and Phyllis FGriswold.

Blue Prints

All Engineers may pick up their Blue Prints at the Blue Print office, Room 306 of the Union, before 5:00 Monday evening.

Faculty Plans Third Recital For Today

Three men from the school of music faculty will appear Sunday in the third of the faculty recital series at 4 p. m. in the Union ballroom. Offering a program of vocal and instrumental music, they are violinist Emanuel Wishnow, baritone David Foltz and pianist John Blyth. Earnest Harrison will accompany Mr. Foltz and Mr. Wishnow.

Program.

Opening the program with four violin selections, Mr. Wishnow will place his emphasis on the moderns including Gershwin, Ernest Bloch and Ravel. He will play one of Gershwin's piano preludes transcribed for violin by Jascha Heifetz.

Among Mr. Foltz' numbers are Beethoven's "In Questa Tomba," an oratorio aria from Haydn's "The Creation," and two less familiar songs by Olmstead and Yon.

A group of three piano numbers by Mr. Blyth will close the program. Debussy's descriptive piece about goldfish, "Poisson d'or," Mozart's "C Minor Fantasy" and Marescott's "Fantasque" compromise the group.

As usual, the faculty recital is open to the general public and is free of charge. Members of Phi Mu Alpha-Sinfonia will usher.

Randolph Scott will play the male lead in the next Pine-Thomas film, "Albuquerque."

Nation-wide Service Exams To Be Offered

Service-wide competitive examinations for an officer training plan which will reach enlisted men in the navy and marine corps, including reserves on active duty, have been announced by the Lincoln navy recruiting station.

The tests which will include the officer candidate training corps and naval aviation college program will be given Jan. 18.

Requirements.

Requirements for applicants are that the candidates for naval reserve officers training corps must be under 21 years of age on June 30, 1947, and for the aviation program, under 19 at the same date. Physical requirements for entrance to the naval academy must be met and all candidates must be citizens of the United States with a high school education or its equivalent.

The same competitive examinations will be given to high school graduates as to the naval and marine corps personnel.

Reserve officers corps candidates will receive their training at colleges. The aviation program trainees will choose their college.

Officers are now being commissioned for the civil engineers corps by the offices of naval officer procurement. A college degree, three years of experience or its equivalent, a standard physical test, and an age restriction of from 24 to 30 years are the requirements.

Pledges Plus Tigers-- Homecoming Displays

BY ELLIE SWANSON.

Don't get me wrong . . . I thought the Homecoming decorations were sensational. I was just a little disappointed that some of my more original ideas didn't appear in front of some house.

For example, why didn't someone think of having a live tiger tied to a tree and throw pledges dressed in scarlet and cream football suits in to fight him? Of course, you would undoubtedly loose a few weaker pledges that way, but what good is a pledge if he can't outfight a tiger?

Perhaps you think that this idea is a bit extreme . . . well, relax! I have another. You would have thought that someone would have had a live pledge tied up and throw tigers dressed in gold and black football suits in to fight them? I'll admit that the ideas are a bit similar, but a good basic creation like this just can't be overdone.

For Those Dissenters.

In every large group there are always a few people with little or no imagination. For the few dissenters I suggest a big sign: "Let's Beat Missouri!"

Well, enough about my ideas. At least you can never say next year that someone didn't give you some good ideas that have never been used. Perhaps you've wondered what goes on behind the scenes before the monstrosity appears in public.

Naturally someone has to get in the mood of the thing. Therefore, the pledge class is lined up on the roof (3 stories preferably) and instructed to leap to the lawn in alphabetical order. The one that best survives the fall is automatically the one for the mood.

Behind the Scenes.

There are different methods used at this point, but a popular plan used by many houses to bring out the worst in its guinea pig is a concoction whose name and recipe cannot be divulged in this paper. It is, however, very similar to Mama Yokum's celebrated product, and may be used for bunions, crossed eyes, hangnails, dirty hair, and is extremely effective in waking up actives for 8 o'clocks.

As soon as it stops perculating and the sky within a few blocks radius has cleared up, it is applied to the pledge. Several whiffs serve perfectly as a muffler (violence, you know) and one or two more and she gives way completely to a drone buss . . . then comes the wee small voice. "Yes, master, what is your bidding?" "Think of a clever idea for a homecoming decoration, stupid."

Next follows a gurgle, a babble, a burp, and the decoration idea. Maybe some of you don't believe what I've just said. It could be possible that I have been carried away by the hilarity of the celebrations, and also, that concoction I just mentioned is a little hard on one.

Miss Marylouise Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Caldwell Goodwin, became the bride of Harold Raymond Bookstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fred Bookstrom, in a ceremony performed at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church. Dr. Arthur L. Miller received the marriage vows. Mrs. Bookstrom was a member of Pi Beta Phi and Theta Sigma Phi when she attended the university. Mr. Bookstrom was affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Temporary List Of 'Hello Girl' Nominees Told

An incomplete list of 15 "hello" girl candidates was released Saturday by the B.A.B.W. organization.

The typical Barb coed will be presented at a dance in the Union, Nov. 9.

Candidates and the organized groups each represents are: Jo Kellenbarger, Wilson Hall; Mary Agnes Grosserode, Howard Hall; Cleo Schmoldt, Cox Hall; Ann Proper, Carl Hall; Margaret Siemmers, International House; Vivian Frasier, Loomis Hall; Lorraine Hardt, Rosa Bouton; Patricia Vermaas, 33 Club; Ardyce Stava, Terrace Hall; Sue iFshwood, Love Co-op; Jeanne Bowling, Northeast Hall; Renee Stokely, Towne Club; Erdice Luke, Hesperia; Betty Beckner, Amikita; and Evelyn Caha, Barb at Large.

When Ray Milland returns from Europe in December he'll try to get an acting-directing contract at Paramount in lieu of his current pact.

Priest . . .

Agg. (from Gregorian University, Rome).

Jesuit Priest.

A Jesuit priest, he organized and directed the Kansas State Sodality Union, with 6,000 members from various colleges, high schools and Newman Clubs. He has been spiritual counsellor of the Newman Club, at Kansas State College, and is former director of the Newman Club at Kansas University, Lawrence. At present he is national chaplain of Phi Kappa.

He has conducted missions and retreats recently at Iowa State, University of Wisconsin, University of Kansas, Illinois University, and at Kansas State College.
