

Nebraska Gridders Work Out

Cornhusker football players resumed their gridiron chores Wednesday after two days of rest, and ran through a short drill featuring touch football with the emphasis of plenty of running.

The Nebraska injury list, a lengthy roster, began to shrink when Guard Eddie Schwartzkopf insisted that he would be ready to go in the Iowa State game on November 16.

Nyden Improves.

End Ed Nyden who has been hospitalized with a kidney injury since the Missouri game is also reported to be improving.

All of the Huskers got by the first scholastic barrier successfully, every squadman negotiating the first six weeks of school without being halted by ineligibility.

While the Scarlet gridders are idle this weekend, Frosh Coach Pop Klein will be in Ames scouting the Iowa State Cyclones, the Huskers' next foe, when they go against the University of Los Angeles. The Iowa State game has been designated as Dad's Day and the fathers of Nebraska footballers will be honored at a luncheon at the Student Union.

Nubbins-Jayhawk Scrap Cancelled

One of the rare occasions when neither the Cornhusker varsity nor the Nubbins football teams are in action will occur this weekend. The varsity has an open date in which to prepare for the Iowa State contest on Nov. 16, while the game between the Nubbins and the University of Kansas B team was cancelled by the Jayhawks.

Altho the reason offered by the Kansas was that they cannot afford to play Oklahoma in Lawrence and at the same time send their B squad to Lincoln, it appears that the deciding factor is that several members of the Kansas team cannot be both in Lawrence and in Lincoln on Saturday afternoon.

Negotiations with Doane College for a game to replace the cancelled contest failed to materialize.

The next and last contest for the Nubbins will be the Nov. 22 encounter with Midland College at Fremont.

Freshmen Games

First round games in the freshman intra-squad football tournament produced several routs and one nip and tuck game.

On Monday, Harvard scored on an intercepted pass to eke out a 7-0 win over Princeton, and on Tuesday Rutgers ran over Lafayette to the tune of 19-7, while Yale was trouncing Columbia, 20-0.

Harvard Wins.

Although Princeton outplayed Harvard throughout most of the game, the Crimson managed to push across the only touchdown when Charles Taylor, diminutive halfback from Lincoln, intercepted a Princeton pass and returned it for a touchdown. Princeton was knocking at their opponents goal line in the waning moments of the game and a desperation pass on the last play fell incomplete in the end zone.

The other two games were less closely contested as Yale and Rutgers had things pretty much their own way.

Wednesday's soaking rain caused postponement of second round games, originally scheduled for Thursday, until next Monday and Tuesday. Monday Harvard will play Columbia and Rutgers will go against Princeton. Tuesday will find Yale playing Lafayette.

The starting time of all games has been moved up from 4:30 to 4:15. Games are played on the practice fields northeast of the coliseum and are free to the public.

Coed Athletic Abilities Noted In PE Trials

The average University of Nebraska coed can broad jump 64 inches, throw a basketball 35 1/2 feet and run an obstacle race in 22.7 seconds.

These are the results tabulated after 600 freshmen girls completed general motor ability tests given under the direction of Dr. Aileen Lockhart. Marks turned in by the Nebraska coeds are approximately the same as those recorded at other schools.

Girls with scores over 200 points, the university average is 138, were Lois Cooper, Pat Black, Shirley Wyss, Angeline Liakos, Sally Ivener, Dixie Scott, Dolores Blackstone, Audrey Althouse, Shirley Dahl, Janet Stratton, Georgianna Rediger, Marilyn Beyer and Marilyn Barta.

Opening Cage Contest Only Months Away

Cuts in the basketball roster have reduced the squad to the workable number of 50 in the past few weeks, but Coach Harry Good must still drop ten more to bring his team to a 20 man traveling squad and a 20 man "B" team. The traveling squad will probably be reduced even more, according to Good.

Outstanding Performers

Thus far Ken Anderson of Omaha, letterman Joe Brown, Red Cox of Lincoln, Joe Loisel, Don McArthur of Lincoln, Neal Mosser from Hebron, Claude Rutherford of French Lick, Ind., Paul Shields, also from the Hoosier state, Matt Keating of Omaha, Bob Korts, letterman from last year's squad, Bob Means, who played for Army, Jim Sandstedt, another letter winner, Dick Srb, of Lincoln, Thurman Wright from Richmond, Ind., and two 6' 4" players, Waldo Winter and Don Waite, have stood out in practices.

With the opening game with the University of South Dakota only months away, Good is still experimenting with the fast break, with the idea of utilizing it at advantageous moments. Erratic passing has been the chief cause for grief on the squad.

More Harriers Join Huskers For KS Race

Two additional starters will be on the Nebraska squad when the Husker two-milers face the Kansas State team this afternoon at Memorial Stadium at 4:30. Bob Tobin of Talmage and Lee Schluter of Fremont have been added to the Scarlet runners.

Previously slated to compete are Bobby Ginn of Madison; Don Morrison, Lincoln; Harold Kopf, Lexington; Jim Martin, Omaha; Phil Myers, Nelson, and Blaine "Okie" Young, North Platte.

Today's race will be the last for both squads until the conference race at Norman, Oklahoma, on November 16. Both the Cats and the Huskers will use the race as a tryout for new men, but only the first five finishers on each team will count, in the scoring.
