

IOWA ST. -VS- NEBRASKA

IT SHOULD BE JUST A LOCAL SHOWER THIS YEAR, BERNIE!

BEWARE CYCLONE BREEDING GROUNDS! BIG HURDY!

SEVERAL EX-CORNHUSKERS ARE ON THE CYCLONE'S ROSTER THIS YEAR! BUDDY!

SINCE 1891 THE HUSKERS WON 33 CONTESTS, THE CYCLONES TOOK 2 AND IN 1911 THEY FOUGHT TO A TIE.

THE CYCLONES WASHED-OUT THE HUSKERS IN THE LAST THREE TUSSELS BY COMFORTABLE MARGINS, BUT "REVENGE" IS THE WATCHWORD THIS YEAR!

HUSKER HIGHLIGHTS

By George Miller

Sooner Back Tops League Point Makers

Joe Golding, ace Oklahoma back, scored two touchdowns for the Sooners against Kansas to boost his scoring total to 48 points as he went far in front in the Big Six scoring race.

The elusive Sooner is 18 points ahead of his nearest rivals, Lloyd Brinkman and Howie Bonnett of Missouri, who have 30 points apiece.

Dick Hutton, Nebraska's top point maker, is tied for fourth with Bud French of Kansas, Jack Mitchell of Oklahoma and Dick Howard of Iowa State. Each back has scored four touchdowns, one more than has been tallied by Husker Bill Moomey or Bob Hopkins of Missouri.

Dave Wallace, Oklahoma place kicker, is next in line with 17 points, the result of 14 points after touchdown and one field goal.

The leading scorers:

Name	tds	pts	fg	pts
Golding, Okla.	8	48	0	48
Brinkman, Mo.	5	30	0	30
Bonnett, Mo.	5	30	0	30
HUTTON, NEB.	4	24	0	24
French, Kas.	4	24	0	24
Mitchell, Okla.	4	24	0	24
Howard, Ia. State	4	24	0	24
MOOMEY, NEB.	3	18	0	18
Hopkins, Mo.	3	18	0	18
Wallace, Okla.	0	17	1	17
Rollinger, Ia. State	0	15	3	15
Fambrough, Kas.	0	13	0	13
Merriman, Kas. State	2	12	0	12
Kloofwyk, Ia. State	2	12	0	12
Davis, Okla.	2	12	0	12
Alsup, Okla.	2	12	0	12
McNutt, Kansas	2	12	0	12
Palmer, Kansas	2	12	0	12
Evans, Kansas	2	12	0	12
Schnellbacher, Kansas	2	12	0	12
Teel, Mo.	2	12	0	12
MOORE, NEB.	2	12	0	12

Sports

SPORTS NEBRASKA
FEB. 15, 1899

Cornhuskers Need Win Over Cyclones

An estimated crowd of 30,000 fans is expected to be in the stands Saturday when the Cornhuskers make their last home start against the Iowa State Cyclones in a Big Six conference engagement.

Athletic Director A. J. Lewandowski has announced that a knothole section will be open for the game which has taken on added importance since the Kansas win over Oklahoma. The Jayhawk triumph leaves the Huskers still very much in the thick of the loop battle for first place and a win over the Ames outfit is necessary if the Scarlet gridders are to keep alive any hopes of a championship.

—Courtesy Lincoln Journal
FRED LORENZ—Veteran guard will return to his starting spot in the Husker lineup against the Iowa State team on Saturday.

Bernie Masterson sent his charges through a short scrimmage against the freshmen Wednesday afternoon and tried out a few new plays. The new formations will add more worries to the brow of Iowa State Coach Mike Michalski who has already stated that according to scout reports the Huskers use more plays in a game than the Cyclones have unveiled all year.

Three New Backs
With Fred Metheny, Bill Moomey and Wally Hopp expected to get the call at three of the backfield spots, the starting lineup will be quite different than the combination that took the field at kickoff time against Missouri. Only left half Dick Hutton is still a member of the first string backfield quartette.

Gordie Hall and Gene Wilkins are expected to open in the line in place of Vern Stiner and Ed Schwartzkopf, with Freddie Lorenz moving back to his usual guard spot after being out of the opening unit against the Tigers on November 2.

Frank "Junior" Collopy, Scotts-bluff back who has been shifted back to fullback after a whirl at the right half position, has been missing from practice due to the heavy snowfall in the western part of the state. Collopy has been marooned since the weekend but is expected to be on hand today.

Dad's Day
As a part of the "Dads' Day" celebration, fathers of the players will be honored at a luncheon Saturday noon at the Student Union, and will sit on the sidelines next to the players benches for the game.

The game will be the last of the season for Iowa State which has had a rough road this year. Thus far the Cyclones have won two games, against Iowa Teachers and Kansas State, and tied Drake, while losing the rest.

Turkey Race Next on Card

The cross-country race is the next big event on the intramural sports list. The race, scheduled for Monday, Nov. 25, is expected to attract a large number of competitors, who will shoot for ten big prizes.

This event was introduced on the Nebraska campus by Lou Means, director of intramurals last year when over 200 men participated. It is a grueling 7/8 of a mile trek over well-worn campus trails ending in front of the reviewing columns.

All organizations and individuals desiring to enter must meet the deadline of Nov. 22. Awards include championship trophy to the first-place group, and an IM medal plus a turkey to the individual champ.

Davis Won in '45.
Last year, R. H. Davis won the race, with Bill Morhouse coming in second. Both men were then inexperienced trackmen, and went on to win letters on the Husker track team.

All signs point to a concerted attack through the airways by the Iowa State team when they tangle with the Nebraska gridders Saturday afternoon in the Huskers' last home game.

Included on the Cyclone roster is Dean Laun, pass-grabbing end, who ranks fourth in the nation 22 catches in eight games for a gain of 302 yards.

More evidence to back up such a prediction is contained in Big Six statistics which show that Ron Norman is the passingest back in the loop. He has thrown 70 passes and completed 29 for a gain of 323 yards which gives him the lead in this department. Two more Cyclones, Willerw and Farni rank eighth and ninth in pass ratings.

Team statistics indicate that passes in eight games and 60 have been completed for a percentage of .357 and a gain of 775 yards.

Nebraska's gain on passes in six games amounts to 324 yards, the result of 23 completions in 70 attempts for a .302 percentage.

However the Huskers may step up their aerial game after looking at the Iowa State record against passes. Although not quite as vulnerable as the Scarlet defenders, the Ames outfit has allowed opponents to complete more than half of the passes attempted for a gain of 683 yards.

Cyclone foes have connected on 44 of 87 attempts for a .505 percentage, not far the Husker opponents' record of 48 successes in 90 tries which produces a .533 mark.

Two of the Nebraska passers, Sam Vacanti and Fred Metheny, rank in the top ten among conference tossers. Vacanti has completed 12 of 35 heaves for 229 yards, good for third place behind the Cyclones' Norman and Ray Evans of Kansas, while Metheny is in sixth position.

Kansas university football coaches fear the woman's touch more than any possible rough-and-tough handling of a mere football team, according to word from the Kansas State campus.

George Sauer and staff refused an invitation from the Mannattan school which asked that a few of the biggest Jayhawks visit the K-State campus for the purpose of judging 15 Wildcat beauty queen candidates.

Faced with the refusal, Kansas State pep officials have lined up three faculty members and three photographers to take care of the judging.

The Jayhawks are taking no chances, since it is the Wildcats who they will meet on Saturday in a Big Six game vital to the KU title hopes.

only one part of the Kansas State football performance which was worth praise. That was the punting department which has been the Wildcats' strong suit, through necessity, all season long.

Incidentally, air sickness took a heavy toll of the K State players on the flight to the coast for their game with San Francisco U. Even several air corps vets were under the weather.

Three Nebraskans and possibly a fourth are included in the list of Iowa State gridders who will bow out the collegiate competition with Saturday's game.

Chuck Wright, Omaha, guard; Carter Kokjer, Sidney, center and Harry Kraus, Sargent, back, are the three seniors, while Dick Cole, Omaha, tackle, is a junior who may graduate before all of his eligibility is used up.

Along with these four there are six home-grown Iowa players who will wind up their play in Cyclone togs.

Injured Cyclone Works Harder Than Regulars

AMES, Ia.—Maybe some of the fans thought their favorite gridder did the hardest work in Saturday's Iowa State-Drake football game—but the hardest working man there wasn't in uniform.

Ed Farni, regular quarterback on the Cyclone eleven until sidelined by injuries, was out of his first game since the season started and he fussed, fidgeted, and sweated harder being a spectator than he ever could have in the game with the Bulldogs.

Farni pulled a pair of ribs loose in the Oklahoma game and re-injured them against Kansas State. When both his personal physician and the college doctors warned him that serious injury would follow his insistence on playing he went to the sidelines for the season.

But the hard-working ex-Army flier isn't too sure it wouldn't be easier to play than to watch after his "workout" against Drake as a spectator.

Classified

FOR SALE—Tuxedo, size about 37 short, in perfect condition. Call 5-7128.

WILL the person who picked up wrong notebook in 103 Temple on Monday, Nov. 4, please return it to Student Union office or call 3-1316. Enclosed official papers urgently needed.

LOST—Pair glasses between Andrews and Nebraska hall, last Wed. night. Reward. Call 5-6936

For Sale—Alcazar slide trombone. Call 3-1678 after 5. E. B. Weisenreder.

It's a FREEMAN shoe

For clean-cut style and sound quality shoemaking, this new Royal Rogue — by Freeman — is outstanding. It's good to welcome back this rich premium leather... the old-time top calfskin slow tanned to preserve its pliability for the long life of the shoe. "Extravagant" styles like this with double-welted, heavy soles were banned during the war — enjoy them again now.

1275

Men's Shoes, Second Floor

Ben Simon & Sons

OPEN THURS. 'TIL NINE!

West coast papers could find