

Ag Service Holds Open House Here

The university's agricultural extension service will open its annual conference in Lincoln today. It will continue through November 20 and will draw county extension workers from all parts of the state.

Director W. H. Brokaw will preside over the opening session at the Union Friday. Leading speakers will be M. L. Wilson, director of the extension service in the U. S. department of agriculture, and Miss Gladys Gallup of the Department of Agriculture.

Saturday will be open house at the college of agriculture for the outstate visitors, and the group State football game Saturday afternoon.

Visual aids will be emphasized at the Monday morning session. Chancellor R. G. Gustavson and Extension Editor Lisle Longsdorf of Kansas State college will be the principal speakers. The annual extension dinner is scheduled at the Union on Monday night.
