

MARYLA JONAS.

Maryla Jonas Will Play Here Tonight

BY SAM WARREN.

Maryla Jonas, the young Polish pianist who was unknown to American audiences before her electrifying debut last spring, will play for the Lincoln Symphony series audience in the Stuart theater tonight the same Carnegie Hall program that prompted "Newsweek's" critic to say, "She can make a piano sing and whisper as have few in our time."

The rave notices occasioned by her first poorly-attended recital were a tribute to the influence of the press, for her second recital five weeks later drew a packed house with all the critics poised in their pews. Miss Jonas was amused by a public attitude so different from that of Europeans, and quipped that while her first recital was European in aspect, the second was strictly American.

First Concert.

"My first concert," she told a "Time" reporter, "is European. Come one artist in old dress, no photogenic, no smiling. Then come complications. The criticisms are too good. Come snobs, I play too pianissimo, too fortissimo, my hair, I am too fat, my dress. My second concert is American concert."

Three Senior Girls Present Recital Today

The weekly school of music recital series today presents the senior recital of contralto Donna Peters, pianist Shirley Scott and soprano Joyce Stuve. The program which begins at 4 p. m. in Temple theater, is open to all students.

Miss Peters, who will sing songs by Rachmaninoff and Sibelius among others, appeared as Mama Lucia in last year's production of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and has done much solo work with Plymouth Congregational choir. She will close her group with an aria from Ponchielli's opera "La Gioconda." Florence Nerenberg will accompany her.

For her selections, Miss Scott has chosen a movement from a Mozart sonata, a Brahms capriccio and a prelude by the contemporary Russian composer Shostakovich.

Elijah Solo

Miss Stuve, who sang soprano solos last year in the "Elijah" and the annual University Singers' Christmas carol concert, will offer five numbers that have proved to be favorites with coloratura sopranos. One of them is Jacobson's adaptation of a melody reputedly written by Marie Antoinette, while another is Saint-Saens' wordless song "The Nightingale and the Rose." Accompanied by Peggy Shelley, she will close the recital with the second-act aria from "Rigoletto," "Caro Nome."

World Peace Is Possible Says Hambro

Giving one of the most interesting and enlightening speeches heard in recent years at the university, Dr. C. J. Hambro, Norwegian delegate to the United Nations, president of the Norwegian Parliament and former secretary to the League of Nations, addressed an all-university convocation yesterday in the union on "World Government in Our Time."

Dr. Hambro, a greying political veteran of international affairs for the past 30 years, stressed that fact of America's participation in international politics since the turn of the century and how this entry had caused little effect on the popular concepts of sovereignty. After nearly every point the senior statesman raised, he re-emphasized the necessity for a change in the thinking of the peoples of the world in connection with an international organization.

U. N. Scepticism

"Don't be skeptical or discouraged when discussions at the Paris Peace Conference or the Security Council have become heated," Hambro admonished, "We are embarking on something new." These and other comments, were all pointed toward an attempt by the Norwegian leader to convince his audience of the plausibility and eventual success of the United Nations.
