

Semifinal Matches Next in Wrestle Meet

BY DOC RINGLER.

The all university wrestling tournament has reached the semi-final stage with over 80 contests completed. The tourney has been packed with some pleasant surprises with several "unknowns" upsetting the dope bucket. Fifty-one matches have been won via the fall route and the competition is steadily growing keener.

Big Mike DiBaise applied the sudden death treatment to Mort Trackenbarg in 1:06 without a hint of possible trouble. Jim Johnson surprised Hal Weinstein and pinned him in 2:30 after a hard battle.

Harvey West turned in a sparkling performance when he threw Bob Gravath, but lost a hair-raising overtime decision to Andy Marinkovich, 1-0. Marshall Boker won the quickest fall of the tourney thus far as he subdued Jerome Cohen in 32 seconds. Howard Crom proved his class by pinning Sam Morris in 55 seconds to advance into the semi-finals. Chick Thorne wasted little time in disposing of John Sterverson, Joe Bolker, and Bob Kratochvil in three straight falls and looks like the man to beat in the 165 pound class.

Bouts to Come.

Five or six bouts must be held as yet to determine the semi-final matches in the 121, 128, 155, 165, 175, and heavyweight divisions. In the 136 pound class Jack Barrett will meet Don Taylor and Marlin Watt will meet Luther Haskins in the semi-finals; in the 145 class it will be Hal Haldeman versus Sam Kals and Dick Hill versus Jack Brown. Semi-final matches will be held Monday, Dec. 9, at the Coliseum.

Close Races Rage Among IM Keglers

Close battles for first place honors are raging in four intramural Bowling leagues as the teams head into the home stretch of league competition.

The action of the past week has resulted in the beraking of the three way tie in League I, leaving Alpha Tau Omega and Kappa Sigma tied for first place and Sigma Alpha Mu running a close third.

A review of League II finds Sigma Nu alone atop the pack, while Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Delta Tau Delta are still tied for runner-up honors. In League III, the only eight team league, the Phi Psi has come through to snatch the first place spot away from the Phi Deltis who are only one game back. The Independent League has remained the same with the Lillies and YMCA in a tie for the number one position.

Keen Competition.

Thus far competition has been very keen with teams in the various leagues evenly matched, as is shown by the closeness in the standings. The outcome of the games to be played during the next two weeks should prove interesting as the four leagues conclude play.

Standings:

League I.
Alpha Tau Omega	9 3

Book of Authorities," associate publication of "Who's Who."

Dr. Baker has been collecting football data as a hobby since 1934 and is frequently called upon by newspapers and magazines for out-of-the-way information. It is said that he has never been stumped for an answer. Last year he published "Football: Facts and Figures," which is encyclopedic in its variety of material.

Finally—One All-American Grid Outfit

The All-American team selected by the American Football Coaches Association probably will become the No. 1 honor array in the country, according to Dr. L. H. Baker, noted football historian. The Coaches All-American was picked for the first time last year.

Dr. Baker, whose football records are regarded the most complete anywhere, makes this observation in his latest book, "Do You Know Your Football?" (A. S. Barnes, New York.) In reply to the question "What All-American selection, originated in 1945, may become the No. 1 list?" Dr. Baker gives this answer: "The choices of the American Football Coaches Association published in the Saturday Evening Post."

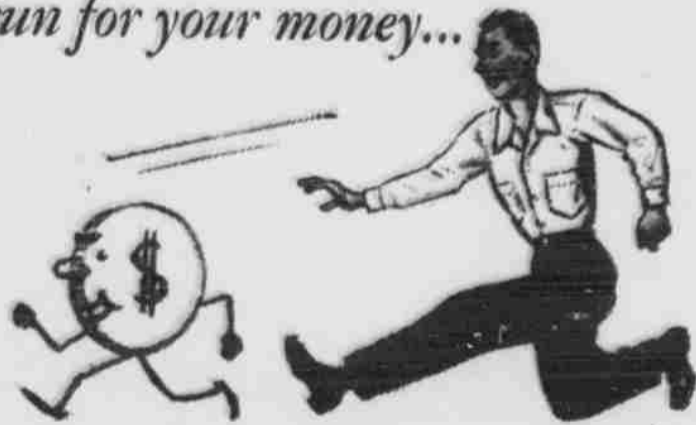

In a chapter devoted to All-American teams, Dr. Baker points out that "no one knows" how many All-American are picked annually. "New lists are started almost every year," he writes, "and from time to time old selections abandon the effort. Probably five or six are all that receive widespread acceptance."

He notes that as many as 35 different "All" teams appeared in the Official Football Guide for 1909.

The Coaches' All-American is picked by the association's active membership of 475, covering the nation. Weekly balloting is conducted throughout the season and final selections, made late in November, appear in a December issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

Dr. Baker, a medical specialist and holder of three Yale degrees, is listed in the July 1946 supplement of "Who's Who in America" as an outstanding football historian. He is accorded the same distinction in "Who Knows—the

Jayhawk Mentor Tabs OU As Team To Beat

LAWRENCE, Kas.—Dr. F. C. "Phog" Allen, who likes to pick a rival to win the Big Six basketball championship, then beat him to the wire, unflinchingly tabs Oklahoma as the team to beat in this year's conference milling.

Allen admits that his Kansas club will be tough, but doesn't class it with the powerhouse Bruce Drake is building down at Norman.

"Those Sooners look great," the Tireless Tactician commented as he shook his big squad through the fog end of a workout. "They have everything it takes to make a great basketball team. Gerald Tucker is at least thirty-percent of that club and he is one of the best basketball players you'll find anywhere. And look at the rest of that gang, Reich, Paine, Courty, Fryor, Buelow, Hines, Landon, and Spaulding. Why, I'd give the title to Oklahoma right now without going through all the struggle except for the fact that I'm getting paid to coach. It will be Drake's best team."

Another thing that will help Oklahoma is that they have no football players who also will play a major part in their basketball successes, Allen explained. Both Kansas and Missouri will have the problem of fitting men just out of a bruising grid campaign into their lineups.

Below Oklahoma the veteran KU mentor looks for one of the tightest races in Big Six annals.

Huskers Improved.

"I look for Missouri and Nebraska to be very much improved," he commented. "There always is a new enthusiasm and spirit under a new coaching regime, and I have plenty of respect for Suarky Stalcup and Harry Good."

Allen thinks Iowa State and Kansas State should floor their best teams in many years. The Cyclones will figure in the title picture with the return of the Webbe twins, Ray and Roy, and the torrid Jim Myers. Holdovers from last season will include Jim Buck and the highly capable Ron Norman. Louie Menze also will pick up Leo Schneider, an elongated guard of top-notch all-around ability.

"I think Jack Gardner will have the best team he's coached since coming to Kansas State,"

Allen continued. "He has some really capable players in Bruce Holman, Lloyd Krone, Harold Howey, and Ki Thomas."

Asked about his own club the wily Jayhawker tutor would say little. The Jayhawkers will field a squad containing 43 veterans, but most of the interest will center around a trio of Charlie Black, Otto Schnellbacher and Ray Evans. This threesome will give Allen the best triple-punch in the conference.

Top Athlete To Receive Adam Award

Sportsmanship and Americanism take the lead in college activities throuout the nation in the form of "Outstanding Athlete Trophy" contests which are being sponsored by Jack Dempsey's Adam Hat Welfare Committee. The committee, conducting a national campaign to promote the welfare of youth with the former heavyweight champ as its chairman and sports director, established Jack Dempsey-Adam Hat Sports Welfare Trophy awards to stimulate sports participation.

To date 400 universities including representation such as:

Purdue, Villanova, St. Francis College, Duke, U. S. Merchant Marine Academy, U. S. Coast Guard Academy, Louisiana State University, University of Oklahoma—have accepted invitations to select their "Outstanding Athlete." The awards are to be made during this spring semester when student body balloting will determine the winner. In many instances colleges have added this Jack Dempsey-Adam Hat sports welfare trophy to their already organized sports awards.

Oddly enough, attainment rates last among the requisites outlined on the contest ballot. Enthusiasm, co-operation and sportsmanship are the primary qualifications in this competition which is designed to foster the embracing of democratic fundamentals in athletic programs along with active participation.
