

Huskies March Over Ottumwa

33 Players Get In for Nebraska

BY GEORGE MILLER.

Although the Nebraska football season ended on the last day of November, Coach Harry Good still had the pigskin idea at least as far as numbers were concerned, for 33 Husker cagers got into the fray against the Ottumwa Navy Station five Saturday night at the coliseum as the Scarlet team racked up its second consecutive win of the baby 1946-47 season by a 65-45 count.

Except for Joe Brown, every man on the Nebraska squad, which included a number of athletes who performed in the preliminary game, saw service against the hard-trying Sailors.

Brown was sidelined with a bad floor burn picked up in the South Dakota battle and Bob Korte, letterman from Fairbury, took over his place on the starting five.

The usual regulars, Claude Retherford, Rodney Cox, Don McArthur and Joe Loisel, were the other starters, but this combination remained in the game for only the first nine minutes. At the time of their departure, the regulars were sporting a 16-7 lead.

Gayle Lebsack, a member of the third unit, topped the Nebraska scorers with ten points, all of them coming early in the second half during his five minute sojourn on the floor. Retherford was next in line with eight counters.

Ottumwa Tries.

During the parade of NU cagers the Ottumwa outfit kept firing away at the basket, and were notably unsuccessful on their close-in efforts. In the second half the visitors began to connect on long shots and at one time pulled to within 11 points of the Scarlet.

Walter McCurdy and K. H. Woodbury paced the Ottumwa point makers with 12 and 9 points respectively, while Carl Santti and John Grieve played better-than-average floor games.

Nebraska's first combination was a far cry from the smooth-working aggregation which befuddled South Dakota, but last night the reserves were able to hold up their share of the game and no matter which bunch Coach Good would send onto the floor, the Huskers cagers were always able to pick up enough points to keep a safe margin between them and the Sailors.

In the second five for Nebraska were Paul Shields and Matt Keating at forwards, Waldo Winter at center and Bob Means and Dale Livingston at guards. Every member of this group broke into the scoring column, Shields leading with five points.

Lebsack Hot.

Lebsack and Bob Cerv, Weston, Neb., hot shot, were the big guns of the No. 3 outfit which also included Don Waite, Al Kirlin and Jim Sandstedt. A badly twisted knee forced Sandstedt to the sidelines in the second half and Anton Lawry replaced him in the lineup.

With ten minutes left in the game, more players joined Lawry to continue the march against the visitors. Lupe Arenas, Ken Anderson, Thurman Wright and Don McArthur, who re-entered the game, carried the burden for the next five minutes. During this time McArthur managed to tally a field goal to keep from being shuf out in the scoring tabulation.

Team No. 5 consisting of players who had entertained the fans in the preliminary tilt then took over. Bill Denker and Bernie Beiterman were at guards, Dick Schielegier at center and Tom Miliken and Fred Simpson at forwards.

The score stood at 54-39 when still another quintet made its appearance. Srb, Swanson, Dedrick, Rice and Dietrich were the members of this group, with Rice doing most of the scoring. He garnered six points within three minutes against the tiring Ottumwa five.

Four more hoopsters wound up the parade, getting in just before the final gun. They were Busskohl, Williams, Van Burgh and Kostielny.

Whites Nudge Red Cagers In Preliminary

In a preliminary exhibition game between two teams composed of university "B" team members, the white jerseyed cagers eked out a 51-46 victory over the Reds. The game was fast all the way, and the boys did a fine job of sharpening the basketball appetites of the fans in the coliseum.

"B" team coach Tony Sharpe used four complete bunches of five, placing two teams on each squad. Three other players also saw action, bringing the total number of participants to 23.

The Whites started out fast and soon had an eight point lead, but the Reds tied it up with a flurry of swishers, sunk mainly by Dedrick and Kostielny. For the rest of the way, it was a see-saw affair, with one team forging to the front by five points and then the other team pulling up to a tie and then going ahead.

Each team had a like number of field goals, 20, so the Whites won on free throws. They plunked 1 out of 18 while the best the Reds could do was to get six out of the same total. Main cogs in the Red attack were Kostielny, Dedrick, and Busskohl, while Rice, Srb, Saler, Schielegier, and Bieterman led the Whites.

High Scorers.

High scorers for the night were Kostielny of the Reds and Rice and Srb of the Whites, each with ten points. Following them were Saler eight, Schielegier six, Bieterman seven, and Dedrick five. In addition, Bergquist, Meginnis, and Van Burgh of the Whites and Simpson, Denker, and Robison of the Reds deserve some credit for their sterling work at the guard posts.

Drake To Be Next NU Foe; Game Monday

Drake University will provide the Nebraska basketball team with some stern competition when the Bulldogs come to town on Monday for the Huskers' next home game.

In two starts to date against Big Six teams, the Drake five has bowed to Missouri by a 49-41 count and lost a close 43-40 tilt to the Kansas State Wildcats.

New Drake Mentor.

Coach Forrest Anderson, who served as playing coach for the Great Lakes navy team during part of the time that team was in existence, has a doughty band of sharpshooters assembled at the Des Moines school.

Forward Gene Oelrich is the scoring ace for the Drake team, and is assisted by Center Flick, he Bulldogs have an ample supply of height and will give the Scarlet hoopsters an interesting evening.

Following the Drake game Coach Harry Good's Huskers will go to Kansas City to compete in the pre-season Big Six tournament which is scheduled for December 12, 13 and 14.

Turnabout Gives Males Opportunity To Gain Revenge

Nebraska coeds are eagerly awaiting the actions of their so-called dates, come next Friday—the day of the Mortar Board Ball. Tension among the freshmen has risen to a new high after listening to tales of the ancients and their previous experiences.

Start meditating now, girls, on your social sins and misbehaviors. Will your date wear hose and insist on straightening the seams in the middle of the floor? If such a situation should occur, the suggestion has been submitted that you reverse the embarrassment and politely say, "Let me help; I've had more experience."

It would be an unusual evening, indeed, if at some time you did not stick your foot through the trailing folds of his new tuxedo cuffs. Solution number one of stock excuses—murmur coyly, "Pardon me, please," pick up the pieces, and waltz on. It's been done for years.

And when the whole glamorous evening is ending, and words will not express your feelings, remember the worn-out "See you around" phrase. Here is your yearly chance to leave a fellow wondering.
