

Ragged Edges

BY PAT TOOF.

Crib notes picked up from booth-hopping in the Union bring to light various newsbits possibly not heard before . . .

Understand muscle-bound journalist, Jerry Jacupke, has another unidentified admirer, a sweet young thing in bobby sox and heels who was overheard in English class murmuring, "but he's so-o-o-o cute!"

The Phi Gams say that Norrie Anderson has been receiving a number of airmail special deliveries since his return from California. This undoubtedly does not meet with the approval of a certain little Alpha Phi . . . namely Georgie Withers.

What strange attraction the punch had for the fellows and their dates at the Sig Ep house party Saturday night. No one seems to know who attended . . . the invariable answer is, "Sorry, it was too dark."

New Steady Combinations.

"Gung" steady seems to be routine on campus lately . . . Marianne Srb and Bill Kiefer joined the throng Sunday night, an affair which has been building up to this point for quite some time. Al Casey took a step further and hung his ATO pin beside Meredith Bowhay's Theta kite last weekend . . . also, it's being whispered about that Bill Lear is debating the same idea with Ellie Lykke.

Pat Felger found it hard to make the decision, but has finally agreed to constant dating with Harvey Stroud.

For filler, we extend our sympathies to Tom Noble, who suffered injuries over the weekend.

Faculty Men Plan to Attend Ohio Meeting

Three university staff members, Dean Nels A. Bengston, Dr. Leslie Hewes and Chester F. Cole will discuss geographic problems at the joint meeting of the National Council of Geography Teachers, the American Society for Professional Geographers and the Association of American Geographers to be held in Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 27 to 31.

Dean Bengston, who will serve as chairman of a section of the joint meeting, will speak on "Geography Aspects of Pump Irrigation on Nebraska Loess Plain in Relation to Subsurface Physiography."

"A Summary of a Survey of Dissertations in Geography," will be Dr. Hewes' topic, and Mr. Cole will present a paper on "Factors Relative to Settlement in the Columbia Basin Reclamation Project."

Other faculty members planning to attend the conference are Dr. E. E. Lackey, Dr. Esther S. Anderson and Byron Barton.

McKay, Carey Capture Third Bridge Contest

Kay McKay and Jack Carey were the winning team in the third contract bridge tournament sponsored by the Union this year. Runner-up team was Walter Wolfert and Orville Schmieding. Eighteen tables, pairing 36 teams, participated in the tournament held last Saturday.

In January a fourth tournament will be held which will be an invitational tournament with only the top scoring teams of the previous tournaments to compete. From this tournament which will be run in duplicate style, the four best teams will be chosen to represent the university in the Inter-collegiate Bridge Tournament this spring.

The last advanced contract bridge class this semester will be held in the Union room 313 at 4:00 p. m., Thursday, December 19 with Dale Ball acting as instructor.
