

Prof's, Alums Contribute To 'Schooner'

Several present and former university faculty members have contributed to the winter issue of "Prairie Schooner," the university literary quarterly recently published.

Loren C. Eiseley, who wrote "Missing Link or Hybrid—Which?" was formerly connected with the anthropology department and is now chairman of the Oberlin college department of sociology.

Floyd W. Hoover, assistant director of admissions, drew on his store of experiences as a Montana teacher for his humorous article, "The Cowboy Still Rides." Satire is provided by F. L. Christensen, an associate editor of "Prairie Schooner," in "Time and the Frog."

There is a series of poems, "Breaks in Oregon," by a professor in the English department writing under the pen name, "Conrad Pendleton." Bernice Slote, also of the English department, has a poem, "Apothecary Shop," in the publication.

Robert Aldrich, university alumnus and son of Bess Streeter Aldrich, offers a satire, "How to Write a How-To Book."

Home Economics Club Holds Sign Off Party Tonite

The Home Economics Club will hold its last meeting of the semester today, Jan. 14, in the parlors of the Home Economics building, at 4:45 p. m., according to President Marilyn Hartsook.

This last meeting has been appropriately called the Sign Off party. A discussion of the year's activity will be discussed and nominees for club second semester officers will be presented. Election of officers for both the Home Ec Club and Ag YWCA will be held at the same time in the Home Ec building, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mary Louise Helt and Vivian Frasier are in charge of arrangements and refreshments, and Priscilla Flagg is in charge of the program for the evening.

March of Time Film Shown Today

Today's siesta film hour will feature a March of Time reel on "The Philippine Republic." In addition, there will be several novel short features and cartoons. The film hour is held in the lounge of the Union.

A documentary film entitled "True Glory" will be shown in the Union ball room tomorrow afternoon at 4 p. m. The picture, said to be one of the best documentary films produced, is made up of highlights of the American GI's in World War II.
