Mock Law Court Begins Thursday

The Thomas Stinson Allan Appellate competition will be held on Thursday, at 7 p. m. in the Supreme Court Room of the State Capitol.

The competition will be held to award medals and recognition to the outstanding seniors in this trial competition. The case on Thursday night will be judged by the three justices of the Nebraska Supreme Court. Senior member is Justice Frederic W. Messmore junior members will be Justice Elwood B. Chappell and Justice Adolph E. Wenke. Court will be run by the Student Board of Advisors consisting of three senior members and six junior members of the law school.

Seniors in competition will be, for the plaintiff and appellee, Elmer J. Jackson of Lincoln, and Earl E. Morgan will be defense counsel and appellant, Budd B. Bornhoff of Wayne. The case to be tried involves the constitutionality of a statute on substituted service on a non-resident, and also involves the question Workmen's Compensation.

As the practice court competition is set up, all law college freshmen are required to compete in practice trials their first semester. Second semester and further competition is voluntary and part of the Thomas Stinson Allan Competition. Only those teams of lawyers are eliminated thus until their senior year when only two teams remain in competition. From these two, the winning team is selected, awarded college keys, and winners' names are inscribed on the

Pre-Law Club Holds Smoker

Professors E. Belshiem and L. B. Orfield will be guest speakers at a Phi Alpha Delta, law fraternity smoker, to be held in Room 315, Student Union, 7:30 pre-law students.

Professor Belshiem will discuss the proposed legal aid clinic, while Professor Orfield's topic will be "The Legislative Function." All pre-law students are expected to attend.

Arts-Science Academy Will Meet Here Next Weekend

57th annual meeting of the Nebraska Academy of Arts and Science will be held on the University's campus on Friday and Saturday, May 2 and 3. Nearly 300 Nebraska scientists will attend.

In addition to these there will be 100 high school students attending the Junior Academy of Arts and Science.

For the senior academy Friday's program will include eight sectional meetings: History of science, mathematics, social sciences, agriculture, anthropology, biology and medical sciences, chemistry, physics and engineering, earth sciences, and the annual banquet. The banquet speaker will be Dr. J. S. Latta, chairman of the Department of Anatomy, whose topic is "Some Comparisons Between Anatomical and Social Organizations."

A general session will be held at 8 p. m. in the Morrill hall auditorium. Earl F. Flanagan of the memorial plaque which hangs in the law college.

Court competition is under the supervision of an advisory board consisting of three seniors and six juniors who fix the time of hearing, and set up cases for team argument. When given a case, teams research and file the brief with the court. After filing, cases are argued orally in an open court. Decisions are based on the quality of the brief and of the oral presentation. A single negative decision eliminates a team from the Allan competition. All cases are individual, and a repetition is never used. A fictitious state is used in question of law.

The public is invited and urged to attend these trials. Entrance on Thursday will be made at the north end ground floor of the State Capitol building.

Fuenning Announces New Health Service Plans

Department Will Double Staff, Increase Treatment

If construction of the Student Health building is completed according to contract, the service will be open to students when classes begin next September, Dr. S. I. Fuenning, director, announced today.

The two story structure, which is being moved from the Hastings Naval depot, is to be erected on south Mall. The dispensary will be housed on the first floor, and the infirmary, on the second.

To provide students with additional facilities, the health fee which is assessed each semester will be increased from $2.50 to $5.00. The Health Service, a self-supporting agency of the university, is maintained by student fees, since no provisions are made for it in the annual budget.

Staff to be Doubled

The staff of the department will be doubled to accommodate patients. Dr. Fuenning announced that there will be an equivalent of three full time doctors, a minimum of three nurses for the infirmary, a minimum of two nurses for the dispensary, as well as student help and nurse aids. Improvements are to be made in the X-ray and laboratory departments when they are moved to the new quarters. Supplementing the regular staff of doctors will be a group of Lincoln specialists who will be available for major cases.

Hospital Care

The 26-bed hospital will be operated on the second floor, and out-patients will receive care on the first floor. Minor surgery to be performed will include treatment for cuts and bruises, lacerations and minor fractures.

The department has not set a maximum number of days that a student may obtain care in the hospital, but plans are being formulated to determine limitations.

The clinic at Ag college will continue to operate as the schedule now stands, and patients who require additional treatment will be taken to the city campus health department.

Filings to Open For Yearbook Staff Positions

The Publication Board will meet Saturday, May 10, at 9 a. m. in the Faculty Lounge to appoint students to fill nine positions open on the paid staff for the Cornhusker.

Anyone interested in a position on the Cornhusker may pick up an appointment form at the School of Journalism office and turn it in to Dr. David Fellman in the Social Science building before 5 p. m. Tuesday, May 6, when the filings close.

The positions open for appointments are: editor, three managing editors, art editor, business manager and three assistant business managers.

taken in the plenary sessions at Madison, Wis.

The Student Council has not as yet announced the names of the delegates who are to represent the university at Wisconsin or at the Augustana Conferences, but it is expected that the selection will be made soon due to the nearness of the regional conference date.

Delta Sigma Rho Contest Announced

Annual Trophies To Be Presented

Competition in the annual intramural extemporaneous speaking contest will begin Monday when representatives from organized houses and individual speakers vie for honors in the Delta Sigma Rho sponsored event.

The winning organization will receive a gavel with its name engraved on it, and the top individual speaker will be awarded an engraved silver loving cup.

This intramural competition is open to both men and women students carrying at least 12 hours of work with passing grades for the current semester, with the exception of members of Delta Sigma Rho, or students who were members of the debate squad on January 1, 1947.

The contest will be extemporaneous speaking on the general subject of current national and international events. Drawings for two speaking topics on the general subject will be held between 4 and 5:30 p. m. of the day preceding the round in room 202 of the Temple. The participant will select one of the topics.

Finalists.

All contestants with the highest accumulative ratings for round one and two will compete in the finals.

The house trophy will go to the organized group whose two speakers have the highest accumulative ratings for the three rounds, and the individual trophy will be presented to the individual whose accumulative rating for the three rounds is the highest.

Entries are to report between 4 and 5:30 p. m., Monday, May 5, to draw for topics for the first round scheduled to be held Tuesday, at 7 p. m. in the Temple.

Deadline for entries is 5 p. m. May 1.
