underdog margin ever tabbed on a Cornhusker eleven.

Saturday's battle renews an 11-year series between the two schools. Both clubs own five wins while one struggle ended in a scoreless deadlock.

And more than a renewal of a top grid rivalry it will be the beginning of a coaching rivalry between two native Nebraskans—Masterson, a former Lincoln high and Husker grid great and Leahy, an O'Neill native.

The Huskers enter the Irish fracas in stronger physical condition than they have entered any of their three previous battles. With the exception of Quarterback Dick Thompson, still favoring an injured knee, the Scarlet Crew will not be hampered seriously by injuries.

Letterip

The Daily Nebraskan
Dear Sir:

If you want to know one of the reasons why the Nebraska football team has not done better than it has, just read your article in the Sunday edition reporting the game against Iowa State. This article bristles with expressions like "without doing anything to aid their cause," "the scarlet offensive machinery bogged down completely," "unspirited exhibition," "more pitiful state," and "a new low in helplessness." If you are expecting the Nebraska football team to do well with that kind of support from the college newspaper, you are going to be disappointed.

All athletic teams have off days—Nebraska was entitled to one after its tough games with Indiana and Minnesota. The fact that they held a tough and inspired Ames team to 93 yards on the ground, and defeated them should be a cause for rejoicing—not mud-slinging.

You referred to the blocked punt as "a similar lucky break." In my book, blocked punts are simply damn good football, not lucky breaks. The Nebraska team did the same to the powerful Minnesota eleven and made a score the same way. I recall that when the Nebraska Rose Bowl squad played Ames, they were 14 to 0 behind at the half—and that was with one of the best football teams Nebraska ever had. So beating Ames by a narrow margin is nothing new in Cornhusker history.

If the Nebraska students and its student newspaper would back the team the way that Iowa State boys backed their team, it would really go places. But there wasn't a single Nebraska rooter at the train when the team came home from Ames even tho they won the game. I was there.

So the Daily Nebraskan and the student body had better get up some enthusiasm about the team and give them some encouragement if they expect them to do anything important in the Big Six. The players have to have a pat on the back and a kind word if you expect them to play really good football. They certainly are not going to do it in the face of such uncalled for criticism as your article discloses.

If the student body and your paper will get behind the team and give the boys a big sendoff, I think they are quite capable of making a good showing at least against Notre Dame. I hope that you will soon adopt the Cornhusker attitude that made so many championship teams in the past

Student Directory Check Continues

The names of students for whom information for the Student Directory is missing will be run daily by the Student Foundation. This is the second group of names; please check carefully each day as not all the list will be in alphabetical order.

Corrections can be made at the Student Foundation office during the afternoon or at a booth in the Union on Thursday and Friday.

The Straight Skinny

BY BARBARA BUSH

Ex pin-mates Shirley Wallace and Johnny Rushton seem to be doing all right without each other. Johnny was seen with Bette Heckenlively and we hear that Shirley is dated up every night for the next two weeks.

The triple Deltas are holding Open House for the entire campus this Saturday night. Don Rice and his combo will be on hand to furnish the dance music.

Birthdays should come more often according to Roy Dinsdale. Why? He received four roses from his girl for his 21st.

Mystery of the week!! Who's meeting Katie Pfeiffer and June Gable at Southbend this weekend. Inspector parlay Charlay is on their trail.

Also attending the Notre Dame game are Helen Kirk and Buckie Ironfield, who aren't taking any chances on Indiana blind dates.

It's still picnic time for the Adelphis. They took advantage of old man weather's nice evenings to hold their weekly meeting around a camp fire. Who did you meet, girls?

Betty Hubcaps keeps rolling along from man to man. Clive Ostenberg has priority now but keep your eye on Ed Hiber.

Catching up fast are the Kappa Deltas. Donna Johnson brought back Dick Lineberg's pin to score another one for the new gals on Uni terrace.

Looking forward to the weekend are Winnie Wolf and Jack Meehan. This is a new combination that bears watching.

Baldy Goodwin is giving the Chicago girls a thrill this weekend. Think that you'll make it to the game, Baldy?

Dawson, Pep Squad Cheer Husker Team

The Cornhusker football team was surprised Wednesday night at their training table on the third floor in the Union by an impromptu cheer session, by the cheerleaders, Corn Cobs and Tassels.

By this action, the pepsters showed the squad that the student body was still behind them. It is of actions like this that school, and team, spirit is developed and nourished.

In another attempt to get the Huskers into a fighting mood for the game, Fred T. Dawson, Nebraska coach in 1922 and 1923, was invited over to grid practice to talk to the team.

His inspirational speech related the similarity in campus gloom that faced the teams then as now. He said that the players and himself agreed to talk to no one about the game and not to read any paper, so that they could go into the clash with an open mind.

"Had the parents of Notre Dame players endowed their boys with better blood than ours? We didn't think so," Dawson said.

"We proved it .oo," as the Huskers won both the 1922 and 1923 games by one touchdown, although we were the underdog in each.
