Crossfire

By Norm Leger

Ah, our public! Read this choice bit that we found in our mailbox yesterday morning:

"Your column Missfire that I read this A. M. really ruined my breakfast.

"You asked for particularly good reasons for not going to the rally. As Professor—" (We won't stick our neck out again so soon)" said, in thanking students for their presence in class, "Rallying is alright, but there are some people who never do anything more important than rally."

That's only part of the card—the rest had something to do with our being a rah-rah boy.

An Apology.

To the writer of the card we apologize for having ruined his breakfast for him. That's the chance one takes in reading Daily Nebraskan columns.

However, we would like to say that, although we agree to a point with what the student's professor said, it should be made clear that while "some never do anything more important than rally" there are others who do and have done a lot more.

May we point to the former Dorothy Weirich, graduate of '43? Miss Weirich served as vice president of Tassels, a campus "rah-rah" organization, but found time to preside over Mortar Board and make Phi Beta Kappa as well.

Last year she could be found teaching English classes in Andrews. We'll wager that Miss Weirich has been at a few rallies.

Gone but well remembered Bob Fast, one-time Corn Cob, probably went to a few rallies, too. Anything more important? Well, he won a Bizad William Gold Key and made PBK, if that's worth mentioning. Innocents, too.

No, need, however, to go very far in the past. Only last year the woman who wore the Tassel prexy gavel was one of the highest graduating seniors. And that's speaking scholastically. Joy Hill was probably one of UN's most enthusiastic pepsters.

What happened Monday is so much water under the bridge, and we realize that there are valid arguments both pro and con as to whether or not a rally should be held at a time when classes are in session. We're concerned with that no longer.

What we have to say here will be so much bunk to the academic sophisticates who look down upon extra-curricular activity. However, we believe that the best kind of life for the student is one that includes learning through experiences outside the classroom as well as gaining knowledge from lectures and books. If we name a rally as one of the "outside experiences" we'll promptly be told that its educational value is doubtful.

Nevertheless, we contend that with the proper student frame of mind a rally can have a place in campus life and serve a purpose, even if on infrequent occasions one comes by necessity during the classroom hours.

Enough about rallies. Enough for the column, in fact, except to say that if you want to take us to task for something we've said, whether or not you're unlucky enough to know us personally, we'll appreciate seeing you a great deal more than we will your scrawlings on a postcard.
