

Straight Stuff

By Chuck and Jake.

Bull Dickey Skog, heavyweight wrestler, used a full nelson with a half twist to pin Lois Chantry in the final minutes of their Sunday match. In the semi-windup, midwest Plymouth coupe wrestling champ Bill Galbraith pinned Gwen Taylor by default. His only comment was—"It was a tough fight—I'm a little stale."

Motor Hook Up.

Bob "They'll never hook me" Baker got Mortar Boarded into slipping a rock on Mary "I'll never say" Dye. Bob has also moved off campus in order to be closer to Mary and further away from the finance company.

An outside, inside, up and downside concoction for dating was originated by Pat "I'm going to the Military Ball with Boots Gardner, but I want to take Lenny Mayer to the Mortar Board Ball" Kinsey.

Dear Commodius.

Tom Callan got a big, fat letter this week and inside skin-dorva indicates that he and his sympathetic buddy Ajax O'Meana will be snapping out again these week-ends. "Dear John—I hardly know how to tell you this . . ."

The Pi Phi formal Saturday night inspired Harriet Houston and Russ Carter to start going steady. What a blow to the Mortar Board tradition. . . Winnie Wulf Wulf escorted Russ to that big affair Friday night but it looks like she spent that time in vain.

Cupcake Crumbles.

Jerry Jacupke has been seen at the Pike and other underworld spots lately with his moll, Skeeter House. Looks like Jerry might break up the old gang and go straight!

Lincoln Symphony Presents Season's First Concert Tonite

The Lincoln Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Rudolf Fellner, will present the first full concert of the season tonight at 8:30 p.m., at the Stuart Theater.

The concert will mark the first appearance in a number of years of the entire orchestra on a program without the addition of a guest artist. When the 1947-48 concert series was planned this date was set aside for a performance exclusively by the orchestra.

The program scheduled for tonight will offer a variety of numbers which have as a common denominator the ability to entertain both musicians and the laymen.

The orchestra will open with the "Pastorale Symphony," one of Beethoven's delightful compositions. Except for one serious excerpt, The Storm, every measure of this work is cheerful. The composer has conveniently sub-titled his sixth symphony "Impressions On Arriving in the Country," "By the Brook," "The Storm," "The Peasants' Gay Gathering," and the Shepherd's Song.

The second number, Johann Strauss's "The Bat," is another work in a light and fanciful mood. Equally well-known by its original title, "Die Fledermaus," this overture is a subtle piece of musical humor. One of Dvorak's Slavonic dances from a group of "folk tune" works follows.

Saint-Saens' "Dance Macabre," interpretation of Henri Calais picture of the fiddler calling the skeletons to dance at the witching hour, concludes the musical picture with the cocking of the crow which dispells the macabre merry-makers.

A Martinique dance by Milhaud will conclude the program.

German Students Plan Christmas Pageant Dec. 17

Students in advanced German classes will resume a long-standing campus tradition when they present a sixteenth-century Christmas play Wednesday, Dec. 17, in Temple theatre.

Wednesday will be the first performance of the pageant since the annual series was interrupted by the war. It will be directed by Miss M. F. Lau.

The play is a story of the Nativity, based on the mystery plays that were presented by monks and peasants at the Christmas season in the churches during the Middle Ages and early Renaissance times.

Between scenes H. H. Diers will direct German Christmas carols a capella, and Prof W. K. Pfeiler will deliver a scripture reading.

The pageant is open to faculty members, students and interested townspeople. There is no admission charge.
