EDITORIAL POLICY . . .

This is an open invitation to all university students and faculty members. An invitation to visit The Daily Nebraskan office, see how your paper is published, and to bring along any accumulated gripes you may have on any phase of life in the university.

It will be the policy of The Daily Nebraskan staff to treat any such complaints with attention and care. According to a statement of policy by the university board of publications, The Daily Nebraskan is free from "editorial censorship." The board's statement adds that members of the staff are personally responsible for what they cause to be printed.

The new staff of The Daily Nebraskan welcomes this freedom and its accompanying responsibilities. We plan to take advantage of it, keeping in mind responsibilities and always trying to make The Daily Nebraskan a credit to the university.

However, there will be no punches pulled when the staff sees or hears something that they believe to be wrong. Complaints received in the editor's office will be carefully investigated and if found to be based on facts, thoroughly aired.

We have no "sacred cows" that will remain immune from close inspection when trouble comes. We plan to maintain the respect due to academic offices and administrative rank, but will maintain such respect only when it is proved to be deserved.

It will not be the practice of The Daily Nebraskan to go off half-cocked. When stories on controversial issues are finally printed, they will be accurate.

Bring down your ideas. Whether they are good or bad, The Daily Nebraskan staff is interested in them. In order to make this a newsworthy, accurate paper, we need your help.

Hobby Display To Be Featured At Open House

A hobby open house will be held Wednesday afternoon from 1-5 p. m. for all students, in Union room 12, Director Duane Lake announced. Displays will be shown and refreshments will be served.

The hobby shop, which is being set up in Room 12 will open Feb. 10 and will continue for the rest of the semester. Students may receive tutoring in their favorite hobbies every Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon, and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Wednesday evenings. The shop will be open every afternoon for students to work without supervision.

Conducting the shop is Marge Cherney. The three instructors are Roland Mills, Don Ellis, and Albert Ostergaard. Leathercraft, silk screening, and block printing are some of the hobbies that will be taught, as well as fingerpainting, monotype, wood-burning, sketching, and textile painting, plastics, metal foil work, and wood carving.

Letterip

ED. NOTE: Letterips should be limited to 300 words or less. All letters must be typed, double spaced, on one side of print all pertinent letters to the editor that do not contain profanity or unwarranted personal comment on individual students. Publication of letters is subject to the discretion of the editorial staff.

Dear Editor:

Nobody can have failed to notice, at the Kansas State-Nebraska game last Saturday night, that some of the K-State rooters were a bit above themselves. Nebraskans, whatever their faults, do not yell and throw apple cores at a member of an opposing team as he prepares to try a free shot. All that was stinking sportsmanship on the part of the Kansans.

We, as students at the U. of N., do not show ourselves up as such lousy sports. But, we certainly don't break any bones showing enthusiastic team support, either. At 7:00, the K-State rooters were all there. When the Kansas State team came out onto the floor, they got such a welcome as hasn't been heard here since the Lincoln-Grand Island game for the state championship.

When Nebraska came out a few moments later, there were 21 Tassels and Cobs—and about 50 others in that section—who, with the help of the east side of the Coliseum, didn't come close to equalling the welcome of cheers that our team got from the Kansas State girls. When the game finally started, the Cobs and Tassels were ready as usual with the most nauseating-looking cheering section it has ever been my misfortune to behold.

Here are some recommendations that may help:

(1) Get everybody in uniform. Make everybody who is in street clothes get out from among the organized section.

(2) Segregate the Cobs from the Tassels. At present it just looks like a hodgepodge—which it is.

(3) Discontinue reserving seats up till game time. If students have to come at 6:00 to get seats at all, can they be expected to respond to leaders who don't even show up to welcome their team, let alone come early enough to cheer next year's players. This old stuff of coming in to a 7:30 game at 7:29, rubbing the sleep out of your eyes must stop.

If the present situation is not changed a motion is in order to change the name of Cobs and Tassels to "Men's and Women's Activity, Social, and Sales Club." Also to abolish their reserved sections.

At present any Pepper or Rockette can outyell the combined Cobs and Tassels sections with a towel stuffed into her mouth.

WAYNE B. SWIFT.
