THE FINEST SPIRIT

One of the finest expressions of Cornhusker spirit this writer has ever seen was given Wednesday when the entire travelling football squad and managers held a testimonial dinner for Coach Bernie Masterson.

With few drills and no fanfare, Bernie's men said goodbye to him after presenting both he and his wife with gifts. There were no outsiders present, just a group of men who are bound together in friendship and the Cornhusker spirit.

Now a days, it's the stylish thing to be tough. Sentiment is thrown overboard in bigtime football. But here were tough men, hardened by quite a few seasons of football, doing a fine and beautiful thing.

The entire football squad had invited Bernie to dinner to tell him of their regrets that he is leaving the university. Little was said when the time for speeches came because the same spirit that had moved Bernie's men to ask him to dinner conveyed itself to everyone present. There was no need for long speeches.

Alex Cochran spoke for the team. Then he presented Masterson with the gifts. Bernie stood up, read Kipling's poem "If" and set down after a few words. Then, all these university men stood and sang "The Cornhusker." The team members and Bernie filed from the room scarcely a dry-eye in the group.

This was a great gesture. A beautiful gesture. It should be told and retold. Added to the myriad stories that go to making the Cornhusker legend, it will help to make the university ever greater.

Letterip

Dear G. M.:

After reading your editorial in this morning's Daily Nebraskan, I can't help but write my comments. Does G. M. realize how his words of "danger", "fear", and "worry" stuck out in his editorial?

I would like to ask how far would this university get if high school graduates were "worried" or "feared" the dangers of attending a university? And goodness knows there's enough of them; excessive drinking, excessive smoking, dirty campus politics, (as the YWCA election), agnostic professors, even communistic speakers (the history department tells us). Or if the professors and coaches were "worried" or "feared" the Omaha gang and boards of directors? I'm afraid we wouldn't have a university because students and professors alike would be staying home because of the fears and dangers involved in coming to the campus. Where would anyone have gained anything by heeding to their fears and worries?

Where would the church be if the minister and laymen were "afraid" of ridicule or the wrong group running the church, and just stayed away? What would happen to the last sane organization in our civilization?

The time has come when we must decide to have a national organization or not—to take a step forward or back. Who is going to be the loser if we don't join the NSA, the other 47 affiliated member schools, or Nebraska university?

Before I close I want to make it clear I am not communistic and I do not believe in their principles of coercion but instead of being "afraid" or "worried" about the "dangers" of communists, I am taking my stand positively on the side of Christianity based on Christian principles to fight this menace.

I think we should take this step forward and join the N.S.A. and help make it the kind of an organization a democratic country can produce—which will have an answer to communism, rather than be frightened back into a barbaric, unsocial, not-even-trying to-get-along, attitude!
