Letterip

Dear Editor:

On March 23rd, the Engineering Executive Board submitted a recommendation to the Student Council that a voting booth be placed in the Mechanical Arts Building for the spring elections. On March 31st, the Student Council gave this recommendation unfavorable action.

That recommendation was made originally in the form of a motion to the Engineering Executive Board, with the idea in mind of making the opportunity to vote easily available to more students. It seemed desirable that not only engineering students, but all students who spend most of their time in the west end of the campus should have a voting booth more conveniently located than the one at the Student Union. Yet our Student Council decided that this was showing favoritism. This is the Council which has been "Beating the Drums" claiming they are interested in larger turn outs at elections, and that they wish to represent the whole student body. It they are truly interested in securing a large vote, why don't they place voting booths at other locations than in the Student Union. Why not put voting booths in at least one building of each and every college on the campus? This would not be favoritism.

We believe that the Student Council should not ask the students to come to them—they should go to the students. Can one voting booth take care of 9000 students? Evidently the Council does not expect everyone to vote. Everyone knows that most of the elections on this campus are nothing but a farce and represent a very small percent of the student body. Can a vote of 500 to 2000 claim to be representative of 9000 students? In a city election, is there only one voting place for the whole city?

The above are some questions the Student Council had better honestly ask themselves. If they are interested in having a representative vote. This is a problem for not only the Engineering College, but also students of every other department and college on the campus. Let's have the reactions of some of these other groups on this subject! Above all, let's have some sane action on the part of the Student Council!

Sincerely,
Arnold I. Johnson

Dear Editor:

We heartily endorse the suggestion of the University of Nebraska Young Democrats and the University of Nebraska Stassen for President club that those possessing the franchise use it more fully. We further advocate that the democratic right of participation in governmental processes should not be denied to any citizen regardless of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, ability to pay a poll tax, or the threat of militant coercion.

As Wallace supporters, we oppose any unprovoked aggression on the part of any national state, be it German, Russian, or American. The Russian rape of Czechoslovakia, and the American support of a fascist Chinese tyrant are equally abominable, and should, we believe, be dealt with by an international agency in the same manner.

We further support the right of peoples everywhere to choose for themselves any type of government or economy they so desire, as guaranteed in the Atlantic Charter.

Mr. Morrow and Mr. Ells ably pointed out in their letter of yesterday that both the Republican and Democratic parties "present a united front of foreign policy." The course of the bi-partisan foreign policy has been only too clearly and tragically spelled out for all to see. America supports a Greek fascism, supplying the arms and munitions to secure a regime which with U. S. approval has imposed the death penalty on strikers. In Germany America's policy is one of restoring power and war potential. American wealth and power is used to coerce the governments of Western Europe. Fascists are allowed to remain in office. Food relief is denied to governments which fail to take orders. Both parties embrace fascist governments like Argentina's. Both parties are planning to aid Franco Spain, and France's DeGaulle climbs back towards power on American dollars.

The answers to these issues are not found by the malicious smearing of individuals or groups as "reds" and "communist sympathizers." The answer lies in Democratic rational thought and discussion. We do, therefore, challenge the Young Democrats, the Young Republicans, or their coalition to a public debate on these vital issues.

STUDENTS FOR WALLACE.

Let Them Be Heard . . .

Not to be forgotten in the whirl of national politics which will engulf the campus and the state during the next two weeks, is the annual university spring election.

At this year's election, as in years past, student council members will be chosen, an ivy day orator will be named and student members of the publications board will be selected. In addition, Ag campus voters will determine members of several Ag College governing groups.

The Daily Nebraskan intends to devote considerable attention to these elections, especially to the student council portion of the ballot, in order to furnish students with more information about the candidates. For the past several years the election has come and gone with the paper uttering little more than an urgent plea for students to vote.

This year The Daily Nebraskan will devote several pages to interviews and thumbnail sketches of candidates for the council positions. With campaigning held to a minimum by council election rules, we think it necessary that all candidates be allowed some chance to express their views on campus problems and present to the campus electorate any ideas and proposals they may have.

Pro and con discussion on the question of affiliation with the National Student Association stirred up a number of proposals which seemed to receive sizeable support. It seems logical to suppose that some of these proposals will come into student council deliberating next year. Hence The Daily Nebraskan will present the platforms of the various student council candidates to the student body.

Also to be considered are the junior student council members. Eight of the present junior members will be elected to holdover positions on the 1948-49 student governing group by the present council members. These junior members of the council too will have a chance to declare their intentions along with the would-be council candidates.

Student council elections have been carried on without adequate student interest for too many years. The Daily Nebraskan hopes that its survey of the candidates will help to produce a greater interest and increased participation in student elections.

Vets' Descendants From World War I Offered Awards

Descendants of World war I veterans were asked Tuesday to apply for LaVerne Noyes scholarships at the university before June 15.

Lee Chatfield, assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs, said the scholarships amount to a maximum of $60 per semester for successful applicants. They were awarded on the basis of scholarship, need, and direct blood relationship to a World war I vetereran. The awards are available for eligible entering freshmen students as well as upper classmen.

TAFT . . . (from Page 1)—a government, he said, that is not "apologetic for the U. S. system" but one which will teach the world how that system works and what it has achieved.

Senator Taft, with rival Republican presidential candidates Harold Stassen and Thomas Dewey, is campaigning in Nebraska this week. He did not mention either Stassen or Dewey in his speech Tuesday.
