

Memorial Fund To Create Law Scholarships

The University has received a gift of $10,195 to provide scholarships for students seeking law degrees, John K. Selleck, university business manager, announced Friday.

The gift was from the estate of Mrs. Mary M. Hafner and will memorialize her first husband, William O. Hambel, prominent Fairbury attorney who was killed in a Rock Island train wreck in July, 1894.

Income from the fund, which has been invested in government bonds, will be used to "assist and reward worthy and deserving young men and women to attend and graduate from law college."

Mrs. Hafner remarried after her first husband's death and in the early 1900's went to Germany to live. Just prior to World War I they moved to Italy, where she died in 1918. Her husband, Paul Hafner, died in Sicily about two years ago. The will was filed for probate in Jefferson county.

New Delta Chi's Receive Charter

The original charter of the Nebraska Chapter of Delta Chi fraternity, was received Thursday night by Russel Baade, Lincoln, president of the newly reactivated chapter, from Warren W. Etchison, assistant executive secretary at a banquet in the Persian room of the Cornhusker.

Delta Chi, which was founded as a legal fraternity in 1890 and in 1921 became a social fraternity, returned to the university campus with this formal ceremony. Dr. C. Woody Thompson, Dean of Students at the University of Iowa was the main speaker of the evening. Toastmaster was Thomas Chisholm, Dallas, Texas, field secretary for the national office. Lester Dunn, Lincoln, represented the alumni at the speakers table.

Nineteen men were initiated at the ceremony and the other officers elected were: Frank Eastabrooks, vice president; Jack Christianson, secretary; John Bartlett, treasurer.

Among the alumni attending the ceremony and banquet were Lester Dunn, Robert W. Devoe, John E. Curtiss, Judge E. B. Chappell, L. F. Klein, Robert Armstrong, William R. Wright and James A. McEachen all of Lincoln; Judge Leslie Noble, Beatrice and Byron Dorn, Sioux City, Iowa.

Other officers include Dorothy Schneider, vice president; Helen Abdnar, recording secretary; Pat Larsen, corresponding secretary; Helen Murray, treasurer; Mira Hauge, chaplain; Aleta Snell, rush chairman; Roma Johnson, social chairman; Catherine Case, sergeant at arms; Dora Lee Niedenthal, program chairman; and Jean Leisy, editor.

Veterans' Official To Speak Monday

Richard Bolling, national vice-chairman of the American veterans committee, will speak at the Union, Parlor B, Monday evening April 12 at 7:45. Bolling is a 31-year-old veteran of army service in Australia, New Guinea, the Philippines, and Japan.

He was veterans advisor at the University of Kansas following his discharge from the army in 1946, and was elected national vice-chairman of AVC at the national convention in 1947.

Paul Rogers, chairman of the university chapter of AVC, states that the meeting is open to all vets and their friends. Bolling will discuss the readjustment of veterans to civilian life, and the role of veterans' organizations in this process.
