

UN Soloist Enters Finals At Carnegie

Robert Anderson has been named one of the two finalists in the basso section of the Carnegie Hall audition contest. The Associated Concert Bureau of New York, sponsor of the second annual competition, announced the two winners in each of the eight divisions yesterday.

Anderson was one of three Nebraska representatives sent to the national auditions, after being selected from a large number of state entrants.

16 Finalists.

The sixteen finalists in the nation-wide search for vocal and instrumental talent will appear in Carnegie Hall, New York City, New York, sometime in July, said Anderson. The winner chosen then from each division will receive $500 for being the national winner. The other finalist, second place winner, will be awarded a prize of $250.

The other basso division finalist is Wilson Jones of New York City.

Active in Music.

Anderson, Teachers college senior, has been active in music circles. Last year he was named the winner of the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra audition, and he placed ninth in the Atwater Kent auditions several years ago, in which 1,500 people participated. He has sung in campus and local musical events, such as "The Messiah," "The Creation," "Carmen," "Pagliacci," and others. During the war, he participated in Navy entertainment, working with Robert B. Mitchell, famed leader of the Mitchell Boys' Choir.

Drama Cavalcade to Open With 'Servant in the House'

On Monday night, May 17, the Actors' Lab "Cavalcade of Drama" will open with a one-night production of Charles Rann Kennedy's "The Servant in the House," directed by Don Johannes. The five-act drama will be presented in the Experimental Theatre (Room 201); curtain time will be 8 p.m. and there is no admission charge.

Although "The Servant in the House" is frequently mentioned in books on the American theatre, few playgoers of the present generation have had an opportunity to see it staged. However, the play has had at least one previous production at the University of Nebraska.

Given 35 Years Ago

Research into University Theatre scrapbooks has shown that the first Temple Theatre production of "The Servant in the House" was given nearly 35 years ago, in December of 1913. Miss Alice Howell, theatre director at that time, maintained a correspondence with the playwright, Charles Rann Kennedy, throughout the production period. A letter from Kennedy acknowledged permission to produce the play and expressed concern lest the meaning of the play be lost or warped in presentation. A later card from him, dated January 1, 1914, extended congratulations to Miss Howell on a production which was apparently very successful.

Charles Rann Kennedy, the play's author, was born in England in 1871 but made his home in the United States. "The Ser-

2 Will Study On Exchange Scholarships

Two University students have been awarded scholarships to study abroad next year, the Institute of International Education informed Dr. George W. Rosenlof, University admissions director Thursday.

The students are Wallace C. Peterson and Otto A. Kral.

Mr. Peterson, taking advanced work in the Graduate college, was one of few students in the U. S. awarded an exchange scholarship to the School of Economics and Public Administration in St. Gallen, Switzerland. The scholarship is worth 1,000 Swiss francs plus free tuition for one year.

Mr. Kral, a senior in the engineering and architecture college, has been awarded a scholarship to Czechoslovakia which provides free tuition and subsistence for one year.

Robert D. Coonley and Frank M. Hallgren have been accepted as alternates for the scholarship to Switzerland.

Both scholarships are dependent upon the University of Nebraska accepting a student from each of these countries on the same basis, Dr. Rosenlof said.

Esther Lisius Wins Award For Grad Study

Esther Lisius

Miss Esther Lisius, senior in the College of Arts and Sciences, was awarded a $1,000.00 scholarship for graduate study in medical social service by the Wheat Ridge Foundation, Wheat Ridge, Colorado.

Miss Lisius is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Kappa Delta, Gamma Delta and the Y.W.C.A.

The Wheat Ridge Foundation is an organization which functions in the field of tuberculosis control. For over forty years it has maintained the Lutheran Sanatorium at Wheat Ridge, Colorado, where Lutherans from all parts of the United States may receive treatment for tuberculosis on a free basis.

Dental Group Sponsors Drive, Sends Supplies to Denmark

J. G. Shaw and Wally Dean, members of Delta Sigma Delta, professional dental fraternity, look over dental supplies to be sent to the Copenhagen College of Dentistry in Denmark. Shaw is chairman of the state-wide campaign to collect funds for the purchase of this equipment.

BY M. J. MELICK

Delta Sigma Delta, professional dental fraternity, is sponsoring its own friendship program for Europe, in the form of a shipment of dental supplies to Denmark.

The collection of dental equipment and funds for the purchase of equipment has been going on for nearly two years in a state-wide campaign sponsored by Delta Sigma Delta. The materials assembled in this and succeeding campaigns will replace materials destroyed during the war and now irreplaceable.

The present shipment of supplies will be sent directly to the Copenhagen Dental College.

The supplies include nearly all essential tools of dental science and valuable apparatus such as a gold casting unit and silver amalgamating machine. Recently developed medicinal agents will be included in the gift.

The dental equipment will be shipped immediately in order that it may reach Denmark in time for use in the fall term.

The collection will be followed by other drives to restore depleted dental stocks in other European countries, it was announced by J. S. Shaw, chairman of the project.

Maj. Gen. Pick to Speak At Ag Convocation Monday

Dean W. W. Burr will introduce Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick at the Ag college convocation Monday at 10:10 a. m. in the College Activities building.

Speaking here on the Nebraska campus for the second time, Gen. Pick's appearance here is sponsored by Alpha Zeta, agricultural honorary fraternity. All Ag college classes will be dismissed. Students on the city campus who are interested are also invited to attend, according to Ned Raun, chairman for the convocation.

Pick-Sloan Originator

Originator of the Pick-Sloan plan for flood control, Gen. Pick is now Missouri river division engineer. Under his direction the past three years, the Missouri valley project has let contracts for construction work on five large reservoirs for flood control, irrigation, hydroelectric power and allied benefits.

Gen. Pick has participated in both world wars, having been decorated both in the United States and abroad for his outstanding work in wartime engineering projects.

Gains Recognition

Gaining international recognition for his work on the Ledo Road between China and India, Gen. Pick returned after spending 24 months overseas to his post as Missouri river division engineer. He resumed the office in December, 1945. He has had wide experience in Corps of Engineers civil works in addition to his service in both wars.

He has served as district engineer at New Orleans, executive officer to the division engineer, Cincinnati, and division engineer at Omaha.

The convocation is scheduled to end at 11:30 a. m.

Pharmacy College Honors Student Scholars at Recognition Banquet

Twenty-five pharmacy students were honored for high scholarship at the college's annual honors banquet held Friday night.

Top ranking student was Hugh D. Bryan. He was recognized for superior scholarship, ranking in the upper three per cent of the university's senior class for four years; for high scholarship in the senior class in the pharmacy college; for associate membership in Sigma Xi, honorary scientific society; and as recipient of the Lohn and Fink Medal, and the Franklin E. and Orinda M. Johnson Scholarship.

The banquet was sponsored by the student branch of the American Pharmaceutical association. Miss Helena I. Redford, resident pharmacist and pharmacy instructor for many years who retires next September 1, was honored by the students.
