General John J. Pershing Dies; Formerly at NU

Announcement was made last week of the death of General of the Armies John J. Pershing, who led America's forces in World War I. He died at Walter Reed hospital in Washington at the age of 87.

Pershing commanded the University of Nebraska cadet corps for four years and maintained legal residence in Lincoln. According to his wishes, the general was buried Monday in Arlington national military cemetery in the midst of the World War I section, where he had selected his own grave site.

Highest Rank.

As general of the armies, he was America's highest-ranking military man. George Washington was the only other man to ever hold that title.

He came to the University of Nebraska in 1891 from West Point to command the cadets and teach mathematics at the university prep school. The Nebraska law school granted him a bachelor of laws degree in 1893.

During the time he was at Nebraska, Pershing was promoted from a second lieutenant in the Sixth cavalry to a first lieutenant in the Tenth cavalry. This regiment gave him the nickname "Black Jack" by which he was well known in 1918.

Kiwanis Award.

The Kiwanis club awarded him their medal for distinguished citizenship in December, 1931. He was a member of Lincoln Lodge No. 19 of the A. F. & A. M.

Pershing was born near the frontier town of LaCade, Mo., in 1860 and spent most of his life soldiering. After being graduated from West Point military academy, he fought Indians in the west, Spaniards in Cuba, Moro tribesmen in the Philippines, Mexican bandits on the United States-Mexican border, and Germans in France.

He retired from active service in September, 1924, but congress kept him on active duty for the record as a tribute to his stature as a soldier.
