Associated Concert Bureau Extends Entry Time; Nebraskan Now Finalist

Due to numerous requests, the Associated Concert Bureau of New York City announced an extension of time for entries in their third annual nationwide auditions in piano, violin and voice. The final date for entries is now set for Sept. 30.

The 16 finalists of last year's (1947-48) auditions will be presented at Carnegie Hall, New York, on Oct. 1. These 16 were selected from 96 artists who appeared in 12 remi-final concerts at Carnegie hall last winter and spring. Among the finalists is Robert Andersen, basso from the University of Nebraska, Finalists are from various sections of the country and are represent-ative of America's finest talent.

Expands Plans. This year, the Associated Concert bureau is expanding its plans for providing opportunities for American artists. The or-ganization of regional placement centers has previously been an-nounced. This plan for organi-zation has now evolved into a more definite one which will offer more immediate appearances for qualified artists.

The main activity for providing opportunities for American artists will be lyric arts productions, which will be a chain of local operatic companies thruout the United States. This program of operatic performances will be under the direct supervision of Anton Schubel, adjudicator of the Associated Concert Bureau's annual nationwide auditions, with the help of the leaders of regional placement centers. In those cities where interest in a local opera company warrants, Schubel will spend a number of days arranging directorial personnel and laying out a working Artists auditioning for the Associated Concert bureau will at the same time be auditioning for eligibility for operatic appearances with lyric arts productions.

Schubel's Training. Schubel is a graduate of the Berlin conservatory of music; he had intensive training in drama under the late Max Reinhardt; he was for 14 years with the Metropolitan Opera company; he has been stage manager of opera in Europe and was for many years highly successful in solo concert tours in this country and abroad.

Opportunities will be provided for pianists, violinists and vocalists to appear in concert, also as guest soloists with symphony orchestras and choral groups, and in local radio and television progams. This phase of the national program American artists will be handled thru regional placement centers.

It is the plan of the Associated Concert bureau that by next spring, after preliminary auditions have been conducted on a nationwide scale, a number of local branches of Lyric Arts productions will be well under way toward producing annual operatic performances given exclusively by American artists. Detailed information or entry blanks may be obtained by writing to the Associated Concert bu-reau, Inc., Suite 853, 1775 Broad-way, New York 19, N. Y.
