

Two Members Added to UN Botany Staff

Two new staff members of the University of Nebraska botany department are Dr. John F. Davidson, formerly of the University of California, and Dr. Robert C. Lommasson, formerly of the city of Iowa.

Dr. Davidson, a native of Scotland, received his doctorate at the University of California last year. He will serve as an assistant professor of botany and as curator of the university's herbarium. He completed his undergraduate and master's work at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver.

Dr. W. W. Ray, chairman of the botany department, said the herbarium eventually will serve as a plant identification center. It can be of considerable help to farm interests when properly developed.

Dr. Lommasson, a native of Kansas, received his bachelor and master's degrees from the University of Kansas. After more than three years as a navy air force pilot during the war, he completed his doctorate at the University of Iowa where he also served as an instructor in botany.

Veterans May Hike Incomes; Ceilings Posted

Veterans attending school full-time under the G.-I. bill will be able to work part-time without having their subsistence allowances reduced, according to the administration.

No reduction in subsistence will be made as long as income and subsistence allowance do not exceed these monthly "ceilings": (1) $210 for a veteran without dependents; (2) $270 for a veteran with one dependent; (3) $290 for a veteran with more than one dependent.

Nebraska vets enrolled in the university are advised by the Veterans Administration to have sufficient funds on hand to meet their personal financial obligations for the first six weeks of the fall term.

Ashley Westmoreland, Lincoln regional office manager, explained that personal funds are desirable because a veteran generally is not entitled to receive a subsistence allowance until he has been in school a full calendar month, and that checks are normally mailed on the last day of the month to cover allowances for the previous training period. This announcement applies only to veterans who are just entering the university or those who failed to register last spring.
