

Men's Dorm Offers Lounges, Laundry to Lucky Residents

So you want to live in the Men's Dorm! Well, no one can blame you. A brief excursion through any one of the three Men's Dormitories on the campus is sufficient to make any man jealous of the 270 Dormitory residents.

Much of the success of the Dormitories is due to John E. Speas, the ambitious new director of the Men's Residence Halls. Speas is a recent graduate of Colorado A and M. He comes to Nebraska as a well qualified administrator, being a sociology major, and having served as president of the Student Council at Colorado A and M last year. Although he is serving as full-time director of the Dormitories, Speas hopes to take up graduate work on a part-time basis next semester.

Have Efficient Management

Under the direction of Speas, the Dormitories have developed a most efficient system of self-management. Each of the three Residence Halls has a governing unit consisting of a president, secretary, social chairman and athletic chairman. A council, composed of two men, presides over these three bodies combining them into one functioning unit. These two men are: President Norman Zahn, Bizad junior; and Secretary-

Treasurer Tom May, Bizad sophomore.

An extensive athletic program is conducted by the athletic chairmen of the different Dormitories. These men see to it that their Dormitories are represented not only in intramural sports, but in inter-dormitory sports as well. No Dormitory man is lacking for want of an athletic outlet.

Social Program Developed

The social program is as well developed as the athletic program. Similar to other organized houses the Men's Dorms hold hour dances with sororities and exchange dances with the Women's Residence Halls. The most recent social event was a party held last week at the Cornhusker Hotel, which was acclaimed by all as "quite a party." Future events are on the agenda.

Outstanding are the conditions within the Dormitories. Maid service for the rooms is a permanent feature as far as the men are concerned. Other advantages are: lounges within the dormitories, air-conditioned sleeping dorms where sleeping in dorms is necessary, daily laundry service, etc. All of this, and more too, the men have for only $55 per semester in Dorm A, and $75 per semester in Dorms B and C, where the men have individual sleeping quarters.

Future Plans Told

Future plans are being made for more and better Dormitories. Eventually there will be ten dormitories with their own central eating unit and complete self management and administration. These buildings will cover an area of two square blocks in the shape of a huge quadrangle.

At present plans are being made to improve the present Dormitories. Recreation and lounging facilities are being added. Study rooms are being improved. Every effort is being made to make life in the dorm as convenient and

Tri-K to Judge Crop Display In Kansas City

Four members of the Tri-K crops judging team are in Kansas City, Mo., where they will represent the University of Nebraska at the intercollegiate crops contest this week. It will be held in the Livestock Exchange building.

The team, coached by Dave Sander, is composed of Don Smith, Jack Baird, Fendrew Nelson and John Osler. This team will also compete in a similar contest in Chicago on Nov. 29.
