

Scoreboards Installed at P.E. Building

New electric scoreboards and timing devices have been installed in the physical education building.

The boards will be ready for use as the most extensive intramural basketball season in the history of the University of Nebraska gets under way next Monday, Dec. 6.

Most games will be played in the new building daily at 5 p. m. and after dinner. Some games will also be played in the Coliseum on five nights during December, and a few games will be played at Ag college activities building. Ag college leagues will all be played on that campus.

Means announced today that 110 basketball teams, organized into 18 different leagues will play more than 400 basketball games before this popular sport is wound up about the first of March. Over 2,000 men of the university will play a minimum of at least 6 games each in this gigantic program.

Daily Nebraskan sports experts had a tough time deciding the staff's All Big Seven team.

The experts moved Bob Fuchs to the guard position. The stellar play by the Missouri center forced the experts to move him to guard in order to keep him on the team.

Big Seven champions, Oklahoma, placed three men on the first team while second place Missouri put four men on the initial squad. Kansas had two players worthy of the mention while Nebraska and Colorado placed one man each.

Oklahoma Cage Squad Holds Key to Big Seven

This is the first in a series of articles about future Cornhusker opponents. Other articles will appear from time to time.

This year's Oklahoma basketball team has one of its toughest cage schedules. All the Sooners' opponents are state universities except CCNY and Syracuse.

Sooner Coach Bruce Drake has booked a home-and-home series with Coach Jack Gray's Texas Longhorns, a fast, colorful outfit that runs like prairie quail. The Sooners have also scheduled Illinois of the Big Nine for a home-and-home series, playing at Urbana this season. Illinois was ranked eighth in the nation by Dunkel last year.

Play Aggies

Oklahoma plays Ohio State at Norman, Dec. 18, and meets CCNY, second best team in the east last year and rated seventh nationally by Dunkel, at Madison Square Garden and plays Syracuse's Orangemen on the same trip.

Probably the toughest non-conference foe of all is Hank Iba's Oklahoma Aggies, Missouri Valley conference champions and twice conquerors last year of St. Louis's National Invitational tournament kings.

Then comes competition in the strongest basketball league, from top to bottom, in the nation, the Big Seven—Kansas State, Missouri, Iowa State, Nebraska, Colorado, and Kansas.

13-9 Record

Lack of consistency and of a stabilizer who could hold the team together when the going was tough hurt the green Oklahoma team last year which returned only Paul "Lefty" Courty from the NCAA runners-up starting five of 1947.

The Sooners last year finished with a 13-9 record and were ranked 42nd in the nation by the Converse-Dunkel ratings. The Sooner sophomore crop is reported to be the poorest in years.

Frosh Prospects

Wayne Glasgow, who had a freshman year with Alva, Okla., Teachers, will probably see considerable action. Marcus Freiburger, the leggy, 6-11 lad from Greenville, Tex., high school, is eligible for his first college basketball but is inexperienced.

Losing only Harley Day and Bob Jones, the Sooners, like nearly all their opponents, largely retain their last year's club. But there were 41 college teams in the nation ahead of Oklahoma last year, nearly all of whom retain the same playing personnel that earned them that rank.

Sooners Improved

The Sooners should have improved savvy and poise this season but their position is still much like that of an automobile pinned behind a string of 41 other cars, with very little chance to pull out around them into the main traffic stream.

Oklahoma tied with Missouri for second place in the Big Seven conference last year. This year the Sooners could well take the top position.

Coach Bruce Drake emphasizes careful organization, smart passing and ball control. Drake's squad is noted for its brilliant free-throwing and tight guarding and their ability to vary their strategy for each opponent.

Two things every college man should know!

1. This is a football coach. Unemployed nine months of year. So during season eats everything in sight. Including substitutes. But there is no substitute for a "Manhattan" shirt.

2. This is a "Manhattan" Range shirt. Wearer's never unemployed. Superbly tailored. Extreme, widespread collar. Fabric residual shrinkage 1% or less. At your favorite men's shop today.
