

Debate Issues Announced For UNESCO Conference

Proposals and the agenda for the model UNESCO conference, Feb. 16, 17 and 18, were announced today by Eloise Paus-tian, chairman of the committee on procedure.

Archibald MacLeish, noted statesman and poet, will open the session on Feb. 16 with an afternoon meeting. After the address by MacLeish, the chairman will receive petitions for admission to UNESCO. Countries desiring admission should supply one mimeographed copy of their reasons for application.

WEDNESDAY night Chancellor Gustavson will speak, and following the chancellor's talk these proposals will be considered.

Resolved: That an international code to provide for placement of surplus labor throughout the world be established; that such administrative action be taken as would be necessary to establish minimum standards of wages, child labor requirements, housing facilities, social security benefits, health, welfare and recreational service; and that an international agency to enforce this code be established.

Constance Roach, educational director of the United States UNESCO commission, will speak on the work of the U. S. delegation, on the afternoon of Feb. 7. The floor will then be open to debate on the following topic.

Resolved: That an international code governing the laws of copyright be drawn up and ratified by all the nations of the world thereby insuring all individuals of copyright protection; that said code would be applicable to all nations ratifying therefore, and would be enforced among the parties thereupon entered; that said code would provide for the establishment of an international copyright office; that said code would provide for the establishment of an international reference library of internationally copyrighted material; that said code would provide that the initial expense involved in establishing international copyright would be assessed to individual nations, and that maintenance expense be provided thru individuals seeking international copyright protection; that said code would thereby aid the purpose of UNESCO by providing the world protected publication of journalistic literature, music, films and other copyrighted material, thru which ideas can be exchanged on a world basis, thereby promoting world understanding.

On Thursday evening the Fine Arts department will present a pageant.

WALTER LAVES, former assistant director general of UNESCO, will speak on Friday afternoon. The debate following his talk will include:

Resolved: That a commission be organized to provide a board of technical experts who would serve as an advisory committee to member countries seeking technical assistance in improving their utilities, agriculture and industry; with member nations to provide the living expenses and operating costs of the board of experts during the time each nation uses the services of the board.

Resolved: That the communications commissions in each of the member nations recommend to their governments the issue of a postage stamp with a UNESCO theme.

Resolved: That UNESCO set up a series of international radio programs, to be broadcast one hour per week, pertaining to cultural, economic and social subjects, to be carried by all major radio networks and radio stations in member nations, and that the member nations provide for translations of these programs.

Resolved: That from the funds of UNESCO an agency be set up whereby the member nations may exchange representative films of national life; and that this agency, with the advice of technical experts from the member nations, supervise the filming of further representative material.

AFTER THESE proposals have been considered, petitions for membership and resolutions presented by petition at the first session may be considered. Petitions may be presented to the chairman at the opening session. They must have the signatures of not less than 15 countries. At least two copies of each bill must be presented.

Countries interested in upholding or opposing certain proposals should notify the executive board, or Marian Crook. Time will be allotted for them to speak.

A vote will be taken at the end of the debate on each measure, with majority rule prevailing. Each country should determine its stand on the respective issues; at least one member representing each country should be present at the conference at all times to cast that country's vote.

And the chemistry prof was trying to explain to a co-ed in his class about preservatives.

"Paint is a preservative," he said, looking at the girl's rosy cheeks. "That should explain why you'll probably live longer than your husband."

Council Plans International Dinner Feb. 9

The International Friendship dinner will be held at 6 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 9, in the Student Union ballroom. All students and faculty members are invited to attend and American students and faculty are asked to bring a foreign student as a guest. It is also suggested that several students and/or faculty members invite a foreign student or students as guests.

The dinner will be informal and reservations are to be in the YWCA office in Ellen Smith hall not later than 5 p.m. today. Tickets may be purchased at Ellen Smith hall or at the door. The dinner is open to anyone wishing to attend and foreign students are especially invited.

The dinner, an annual affair sponsored by the Religious Welfare council, was resumed last year for the first time since 1944.

There were 23 countries, excluding the United States, represented. Foods from different countries, prepared by the foreign students, were presented with American food as a smorgasbord. Entertainment, provided by the students, included solo and group singing in native languages, solos on native instruments and games directed by the foreign students.

Phi U to Sponsor Picture Loaning

Prints of famous pictures will again be loaned out to students this semester for use in their rooms, according to Phyllis Ross, president of Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary.

Sponsored for the second time by Phi U, the project was begun second semester last year and many students borrowed the pictures to hang in their rooms. All pictures to be loaned are hanging in Room 115 in the Home Economics building.

A booth will be located in the Home Economics building where students may check out pictures on Feb. 9 and 10. Pictures may be borrowed for one semester, but students who keep a picture for a semester may arrange to check them out for another term.

Rental charges of 25 cents per picture are made by Phi U, which will be added to the general picture fund for enlarging the collection.

admissions at the University, will be the master of ceremonies this year and will introduce the countries represented by the guests.

There is a list of foreign students in the YW office in Ellen Smith hall and if you have no special foreign friend to invite, you are urged to choose one from the list to be your guest at the International Friendship dinner tomorrow night.

Truth or Consequences?

At a college examination a professor asked: "Does the question embarrass you?"

"Not at all, sir," replied the student, "not at all it is quite clear. It is the answer that bothers me!"

"WILL IT RAIN TONIGHT?"

... everyone wants to know, but military and air-line pilots must know and know promptly!

To help transmit this information, the Bell System maintains the largest facsimile transmission system in the world ... a network nearly 20,000 miles long.

Over these wires the United States Air Force, in cooperation with the United States Weather Bureau and other government agencies, is able to send up-to-the-minute weather charts and maps to many points simultaneously. Each receives a faithful reproduction of the originals. The chance for error is eliminated, valuable time is saved.

This network is a part of America's vast communications system—the finest in the world. The job of maintaining and improving this system, of keeping the cost of telephone service as low as possible, never ends.
