

M. B.'s Promise Laughs at Variety Show

BY NADINE ANDERSON

If you don't like a lot of laughs, don't bother to come to the newest and biggest affair on campus. If you're not interested in winning a cashmere sweater, meeting the new football coach, seeing the winning Coed Follies skits, seeing activities honored or a big dance, you won't want to attend.

In case you're wondering what this innovation to campus affairs really is, it's the Black Masque Ade, sponsored by the Mortar Boards. The Black Masque Ade will be presented in the Union ballroom on March 11 from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m.

TICKETS ARE 25 cents, but that isn't all. Each ticket means a chance on a cashmere sweater. The swears will be given in proportion to the number of tickets.

For you gentlemen readers, the Mortar Boards have arranged to present the two winning Coed Follies acts. This is the first time in the history of the University that an act has been lifted from the show. The acts are being given in their entirety and no red-blooded American male can afford to miss them.

FOR THE SPORTS-MINDED, and who isn't, Bill Glassford has consented to come over to say a few words and meet the students. Activities also play an important part on the Black Masque Ade agenda. In order to recognize senior men and women who have knocked themselves out in activities but who didn't become Innocents or Mortar Boards, awards will be given to outstanding seniors in activities. The list is long but select, so no one will want to miss the presentation.

A TROPHY WILL be given to the activity which has given the greatest service to the University this year. The activity will be chosen by a board composed of Mortar Boards and faculty advisors. Two honorable mentions will also be given.

In case none of the preceding attractions are in your line (but how could they miss) there will be dancing. The Black Masque Ade is not a date affair.

Tickets are now on sale from any Mortar Board or Tassel. But hold onto yours tightly, as it is worth a cashmere sweater. And where else can you get a cashmere sweater for 25 cents?
