

Big Seven Crown Rests on OU-NU Clash

DON McCLOSKEY—Sensational sophomore swimmer from Oklahoma, preparing for the Big Seven meet this weekend. McCloskey has bettered the conference record in the backstroke already this season. He will also be out to set a record in the 150-yard individual medley.

Students Must Show ID Cards At OU Game

Any student activity books not presented by their proper owners at the Oklahoma-Nebraska game will be confiscated!

That was the warning issued Wednesday by the athletic business office. A capacity crowd is expected for the contest, and the business department wants to assure legitimate holders the best seats possible.

Saturday Win Would Give Huskers Sole Possession

By Jerry Ewing
Asst. Sports Editor

Sole possession of the Big Seven conference cage title will be at stake for the Nebraska Cornhuskers when they engage Oklahoma at the Coliseum Saturday night.

The win would give Coach Harry Good's five the first clear title won by a Nebraska team in loop history. Nebraska shared the crown with Kansas in 1937.

Three Huskers will be making their last appearance at the Coliseum. Claude Retherford, Rod Cox and Ken Anderson complete their eligibility this season.

The Scarlet cagers missed a chance to cinch a tie Tuesday night when they dropped a 53-28 decision to Kansas State. The Wildcats, smarting from a 70-48 whipping by the Huskers earlier in the season, were well-rested and primed to upset NU. Nebraska showed signs of the pressure that has been put on them the past few weeks and having just returned from the game at Boulder Saturday had little time to prepare for the Kansans.

Oklahoma, pre-season favorites, have been running hot and cold through most of the campaign. The Sooners took wins from Oklahoma A. & M. and Nebraska on one of their best week-ends, then lost to Kansas State and Missouri.

Most of O. U.'s victories in conference play have been by narrow margins. Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa State, Missouri, and Colorado have dropped contests to the Sooners by margins of four points or less.

Sooner Coach Bruce Drake will start an All Western lineup against the Huskers, backed up by a reserve squad composed of four lettermen and one sophomore.

Paul Courty, conference scoring leader last season, will captain the invaders. He was named on almost all Big Seven all-star selections in 1948. Joe Malacek stopped the 6-3 Courty in the game at Norman, holding him scoreless from the floor.

Other consistent performers in the Sooner lineup include Ken Pryor and Wayne Glasgow. Pryor is probably the best set shot artist in the loop, and Glasgow besides being a scoring threat, is a key man in the Sooner floor play.

Only non-letterman on the Oklahoma squad is sophomore center Marcus Freiburger. Freiburger, 6-11, is the tallest player in the conference, and has been battling all season with Bill Waters for the starting center berth.

Coach Good indicated he would use the same starters who faced Kansas State Tuesday. The team has been drilling on stopping the Sooner attack as well as stepping up their own.

Claude Retherford, held to six points Tuesday, will be attempting to boost his conference scoring lead against Oklahoma. Retherford has a 13-point lead over Gene Peterson of Kansas, and needs 30 points in the last two games to reach the three hundred mark against all opponents.

Students are again reminded to have their ID cards along with their activity books ready for the checkers at the doors. Probable starters:

Nebraska	Oklahoma
Malacek	Courty
Cox	Glasgow
Whitehead	Waters
Retherford	Pryor
Cery	Merchant

Museum Seeks Display Ideas For Collections

The staff of the University State Museum is offering awards for ideas to improve the displays of the museums collections of minerals and rocks.

The Museum staff is planning to rearrange its mineral and rock collection, and is interested in learning the viewpoints of the students as well as those of the public.

The University Foundation, on co-operation with the Museum, offers the following prizes to the four geology students who submit the best papers on an improved exhibition of mineralogic and petrologic material shown on the lower floor of Morrill hall.

The following points will be considered by the judges:

1. The arrangement to present a clear, concise and interesting story of the various processes of physical geology.
2. The relationship of geology to the cultural development and everyday life of man.
3. The value of geology to the people of Nebraska.
4. The degree to which the proposed arrangement pleases the eye.

Entries must be in to 101 Morrill hall before noon of April 26, 1949. Additional information may be secured in Room 101.
