

Dean Sanders of Reading university, England, right, shakes hands with Ag College Dean Lambert just after Sanders concluded his talk to a large group of students in the Ag union Wednesday morning

Sanders Depicts English Agriculture at Convocation

Similarities between English and United States agriculture were pointed out by Harold Sanders, English horticulturist, in an all-University convocation Wednesday in the Ag Union.

Speaking to over 300 students and faculty members, Professor Sanders explained the agricultural educational system in England and, in particular, that at Reading University, where he is dean of faculty of agriculture, horticulture and dairying.

"THE TWO things we argue about most," said Dean Sanders, "are how scientific a course in agriculture should be and how long a degree course should be."

Under the present system in England, most colleges give a B.Sc. degree after three years, he explained. A fourth year is offered for a post-graduate diploma, during which students "get a chance to catch up on readings after three hectic years," the dean said.

REFERRING TO science, the dean remarked "that the more scientific you get, the more high-falutin' you get." "However, at Reading," he said, "anybody who teaches must do research on the theory that otherwise it may be cheaper to get a gramophone."

A plan for training ex-servicemen in agriculture is supported by the government, Dean Sanders said. Veterans are placed on farms under county committee supervision, he said. On the basis of selection, they are admitted to county institutes after a year for a nine-months course, he explained.

Both veteran and college graduates use their training to work on the farm, with commercial firms, with extension, or as a basis for further training, he said.

DEAN SANDERS explained that the majority of farming in England was done by tenants under their system of ownership. During the war, farming was greatly mechanized through shipments of machinery by the United States through the lend-lease program, he said. A great change in the attitude of farmers is taking place and they are beginning to accept scientific training, Sanders added.

Immediately after the convocation, the Union sponsored a coffee hour in the Union lounge during which Dean Sanders visited informally with students. The dean is currently on a two-month tour

Young to Speak On Russian Ag

Gladwin Young, who recently visited Russia, will speak on "Russia" at a meeting of the combined animal science clubs tonight. The meeting, at 7:30 in room 301 Dairy Husbandry building, will be in charge of the Poultry club.

Mr. Young, who will include facts on Russian agriculture in his talk, will also show films taken in Russia.

After the combined meeting, the three clubs, Block and Bridle, Dairy and Poultry, will retire to conduct their individual business meetings.

Ag Ak-Sar-Ben Show to Honor Lambert, Wife

The 15th annual Junior Ak-Sar-Ben show to be held Saturday, March 25, will honor Dean and Mrs. W. V. Lambert of the College of Agriculture.

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson, Dean C. W. Borgmann, the Board of Regents and Gov. Val Peterson have been invited to sit in a special section with Dean and Mrs. Lambert at the show.

ESPECIALLY dedicated to Dean and Mrs. Lambert will be the performance of "Applejack," national sweepstake winner for jumpers at the National Western Livestock show for three years. The prize jumper belongs to the father of Morton Porter, University student from Nebraska City. Porter will ride the horse in the sheep.

Featured in the show will be a coed riding contest displaying western style horsemanship. A ladies invitational 3-gaited exhibition will be held for outsiders.

Other features include a cow cutting contest and a sheep cutting contest with the Ag college dog, "Susie," guiding the sheep.

The junior Ak-Sar-Ben ball will be held Friday, March 25, in the Ag Union. The ball will be informal.

Women Nominate Ivy Queen Today

Ivy Day Queen will be nominated by Junior and Senior women today.

Polls will be open from 9 to 5 p. m. in Ellen Smith hall and the Ag Union. Voters will name five candidates for the honor. Each ballot must contain the names of five senior women in order to be valid.

Senior women with a 6 average are eligible for Ivy Day Queen. A list of eligible women will be available at the polls.

The Queen will be elected from the five nominees at a general election March 17.

KAM Opens Photography Competition

Campus camera addicts have until April 30 to meet the deadline for the fourth annual Kappa Alpha Mu International Collegiate Photography contest.

Any student enrolled in the University is eligible to compete. Prints must be 8x10 inches or larger and must be mounted on standard 16 by 20-inch photo-mounts.

Major prizes will be awarded in five classes: News, sports, feature, pictorial and industrial. The best picture in the entire lot will be awarded the grand prize. Prizes will be announced at a later date. Prominent news photographers will judge the contest during Journalism week at the University of Missouri, May 3-7.

Ten prints in each division will be selected for a traveling exhibit to be called "The Kappa Alpha Mu 50-Print Show." This show will appear at colleges and camera clubs throughout the nation. For further information regarding the contest all interested photographers should contact Phil Raynard, president of the campus chapter of Kappa Alpha Mu.

Masque Ade Tickets

Tassels and Mortar Boards can get more tickets for the Black Masque Ade from Joan Farrar. Ticket sales must be turned in by Friday noon at the Tassel office.

Contest Winner

The winner of The Daily Nebraskan beauty contest will be revealed in a full page feature in the Friday issue of The Daily Nebraskan. The results of the all-campus poll are being tabulated by the staff. Finalists are: Beverly Deal, Sue Eastergard, Molly Huston, Juanita Rediger, M. J. Rooney and Margaret Thomsen.

A "commercial" sidelight will be a drawing for cashmere sweaters. Each 25c ticket to the Black Masque Ade carries a number for the drawing.

The big afternoon fun-fest will be held in the Union ballroom from 3:30 to 5:30 Friday afternoon. Though it is not a date affair, there will be plenty of opportunities for dancing.

Tickets can be purchased from Mortar Boards and Tassels. Proceeds will go to Mortar Board scholarships.

Council Unable to Reach Decision on Reorganization

Political Party Approved; Faculty Hearing Requested

A stormy Council session Wednesday night ended with the question of Council re-organization still unsettled. Several corollary measures were passed and the Council wound up its session with definite statements of opinions from all sides of the issue.

Council members must serve their own consciences.

This was the essence of a statement by Dale Ball to the Student Council, in speaking of the administration proposal that the Council be made "more representative."

"I do not want to see this Council forced to do anything they are not in favor of. I believe that this is a question must be settled in the minds of each Council member. If the members feel, honestly, that there is a need for a change in representation then it should be made. If the Council does not feel there is such a need it should report its inability to comply with the administration's suggestion and permit the administration to take whatever steps its feels are necessary," Ball said.

"This must not be misconstrued to mean that I am opposed to the administration's proposal for such is not the case. But I do believe that we should not take action simply because we are requested to do so. We can never reach a satisfactory solution to the problem of representation unless we honestly believe that such a problem exists and that we are obligated to conquer it," Ball concluded.

BALL'S REMARKS came after a discussion between members of the Council and Miss Mary Mielenz, faculty advisor, on faculty and student sentiment towards the proposed re-organization.

Ball's statement was immediately countered by Dick Schleusener who stated that such an attitude "is not practical."

"The administration has asked us to correct a situation and we must do so. We are not in a position to decide whether we believe in the adjustment we are to make," Schleusener said.

Daily Nebraskan

Faculty action on a Daily Nebraskan appeal of the decision against the freshman beauty queen was reported by Paul Weltchek. Weltchek and Louise McMill attended a meeting of the faculty committee on student organizations and social functions.

Weltchek's report stated that the faculty re-affirmed their decision that the project was detrimental to the dignity of the University and unwise. According to Weltchek the committee felt that Lincoln merchants were being shown a preference by such action.

Faculty Senate

A report of the decisions reached at the open hearing held by the council judiciary committee Tuesday night was submitted by Dick Schleusener and Bill Schenck. The report stated that some 25 persons representing "various shades of student opinion" were present.

Those present at the hearing reached a series of decisions and raised a number of questions which they wish presented to the faculty.

These statements will be submitted to Dr. G. W. Rosenlof, secretary of the faculty senate by Schenck and Schleusener.

THEY ARE:

1. What, specifically, is the problem addressed to the Student Council—representation, or the "The faction must go?"
2. The only means of solution,

Morrow to Speak At Religious Meet

The Rev. O. L. Morrow, pastor of the Alliance church in Havelock, will speak to the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship group at 7:30 p. m. in the Union, Room 315.

Formerly chaplain of the Le Tourneau plant in Peoria, Ill., the Rev. Morrow also has the distinction of having been pastor of the highest church in the world—11,500 feet altitude—in the Rocky Mountains.

Special music will include a solo by Wilma Reiner.

Dale Ball

as we see it, is an open party system. Does this solution satisfy your groups, representing, as it should, faculty opinion?

3. If not, what solution do you offer?

4. Does inability of the students to take more than these steps portend an end of student government on campus?

5. Will the solving of this problem mean that more consideration will be given student Council requests for authority, i. e. liaison representation on the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs and Social Functions?

6. Representing the above mentioned group of students, we the undersigned, hereby request an open meeting hearing with the faculty senate, which will be open to the student body, at which time answers to the above questions will be given, and any questions from the floor can be discussed.

The constitutions committee submitted a constitution of a political party to be called the Student Party. Under the present constitution this party will be able to participate in the spring elections.

Political Party

The constitutions committee also presented a constitution of Trident, honorary naval fraternity.

Both constitutions were approved by the Council.

Displaced Persons

The Council project to bring D. P.'s to the campus was reported by Ros Howard. He stated that the committee had held a meeting with representatives of organized houses and religious groups.

As a result of the meeting, the Council has been assured that transportation for foreign students will be provided by the International Religious Organization. The Presbyterian Student House has pledged the funds to pay for transportation of such students to Nebraska.

"TUITION HAS practically been promised by the administration," Howard said.

The biggest problem now facing the committee, Howard stated, is housing these students after they arrive. Dr. Rosenlof has sent letters to all organized houses asking for room and board, or room, for one student for a year. So far the response has been slight, Howard continued.

Alpha Chi Omega and Beta Theta Pi are the only organized groups which have promised to give free room and board to a such a student.

NSA

A district NSA representative will appear before the Council to explain the functions of NSA March 23, Ben Sievers reported. The representative, Gib Eggen of Doane college, is regional NSA president.

Miss Sievers stated that NSA information will be available to interested students before the representative appears.
