

Bridge Cry Rings Even in Desert

There's always a joker! At least there was a joker in the crowd at a down town movie last week. The film playing showed a host of men crossing a desert. Scene by scene more men died of hunger and thirst, dragged to an agonizing length. At least only three men were left staggering across the scene. At this point a voice from the crowd piped up with "fourth for bridge?"

The reason why my gal reminds me of a switchboard is because when she walks all her lines are busy.

Colorado Fliers Have Glider Club

Here's an idea for activity minded N Ustudents. The University of Colorado has a gliding club sponsored by one of its physics instructors. They report that last summer several "flights-without-power" were made to altitudes of more than 15,000 feet by making use of the rising thermals. Gliding equipment is available to those in the club and consists of an Army surplus sail plane and tow winch. Sounds like a good idea for all air-minded but economical college students.

Miss America Judges Livestock

Prof. P. S. Shearer, head of the Iowa State animal husbandry department, tells of this enviable experience he had recently in North Dakota. He had just finished his task of judging Angus and Shorthorn entries at the Valley City, N. D., Winter show. He was informed that he would be assisted in picking the show champion by a woman. The woman was none other than "Beebe" Schopp, Miss America of 1948. Anybody want to enroll in A. H.?

As I Was Saying...

"Once upon a time"—an ATO gave a storybook ball and the party is now a top tradition on campus. This Saturday night guests will enter the Cornhusker ballroom through the back of a huge storybook. They will then mount a slide in the shape of a glass slipper and make a grand entrance to the middle of the dance floor.

Decorations for the biennial ball will be murals portraying storybook characters. Some of the characters themselves will be Georgia Lemon and Van Duling as Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy. Pat Boyd and Winton Buckley as clowns, and Chic Chamberlain and Bill Olson as Spaniards. Costumes will be judged on cleverness, originality and relation to plot.

It's Interstate

People are coming from far and wide to sit on the miniature tree stumps and dance to Nat Towles and orchestra. Bill Hancock will import a date from New York—and may also part with his pin. George Mackey's date is from Colorado and Don Barrett's is from Wyoming. A repinning is predicted between Rod Riggs and his girl from Iowa.

Mike Gustavson has been looking very knowing all afternoon which may mean he knows something about the Ak-Sar-Ben court to be presented at the Junior Ak-Sar-Ben dance on Ag Friday night. A few curious couples on the way to the party are Pat Hanlon and Fred Kinghorn, Eileen Dering and Bob Raun, Mary Marshall and Darrell Heiss.

It's also a big week-end for the white star boys. Friday night they

Again this year as in pre-war years Nebraska students choose the Best Dressed Man on the Campus. The judges, representative of this school will be a group of university coeds and faculty members. They will select the 1949 B.D.O.C., a regular fellow who knows how to wear appropriate clothes for University life. This year as in former years, he will be a man typifying the smart and easy manner of dress on this campus.

Twenty signatures of male students—signatures not appearing on any other nomination blank—are necessary to nominate a candidate for the title. For further information, contact Jim McDermott and Harry McGinnis, contest managers.

A likely nomination for such a title is carefully groomed Bill Kane. With a navy blue suit, Bill wears a white shirt with a wide-spread collar and French cuffs. His cuff links are dark maroon and gold, and his necktie is a bold maroon print. The Scotch-grain shoes are a dark mahogany red.

For casual hours, Fig Flagg finds a tan rabbit fur sport coat comfortable and good-looking. Grey flannel slacks and a bold look shirt are complements to such a noteworthy jacket. Ever comfortable brown calf loafers win this young man's vote as footwear.

Byron Krasne is of the opinion that variety is needed in suit styles and colors, while accessories should be fairly consistent. Floyd Pettigrew believes firmly that a well-dressed college man will own clothes of such quality that, despite years of service, will hold shape and gain character.

A reminder that spring is just around the corner, Jack Schirmer teams grey slacks with a matching sweater, and underscores the whole thing with a pair of grey suede crepe-soled shoes. Notes of interest are the canary yellow socks.

On the feminine side of the picture, according to the earliest fashion shows and reviews here in Lincoln, skirts have risen a good inch or two. Coeds will also be interested to learn of the emphasis on large hats. Colors this spring are more brilliant and contrasts are bolder than they have been since the first post-war splurge.

You don't have to travel to try Pal Hollow Ground. Say Pal Double Edge or Single Edge at your local store. You still get 4 blades for 10¢, 10 for 25¢, 21 for 49¢, 44 for 98¢. Join the millions who swear by Pal Hollow Ground.
