Harrison, Stimfig Will Play Star Roles in 'Yes and No'

Nanci Harrison and Tom Stimfig have been cast in the leading roles of Jo Jarrow and Adrian Marsh in the University Theater's final production of the year, Kenneth Horne's "Yes and No." The comedy will be presented at the Wesleyan Plainsman theater, Friday, April 8 and Saturday, April 9.

In announcing the cast, Director Dallas Williams termed the play "a domestic farce-comedy of situation." The plot centers around the Jarrow family, "a definitely eccentric group of people."

THE REST OF the cast includes John Woodin as the Reverend Richard Jarrow, Elizabeth Fullaway as his wife, Emma; Helen Prince as another daughter, Sally; Twila Walker as Mrs. Webb, and Jack Norman as the Reverend Mr. Bagshott. "The family," explained director Williams, "is blessed with several quirks of nature. The father is hopelessly forgetful, the mother is hopelessly inefficient, and the daughters although pleasant and wholesome are hopelessly tactless and naive," he explained. "Still," added Dr. William, "the daughters are different in that Jo is dramatic while Sally is always the practical one. The play shows the situations, arising from Adrian's proposing to Jo.

HE THEN EXPLAINED that the comedy is divided into two acts and a brief epilogue. The first act tells what would happen if Jo said "Yes," to the proposal. The second act shows what would happen if Jo said "No." The short epilogue then tells what really happened.

"The play," concluded Dr. Williams, "is very amusing. The characters are well-drawn, though farcical. The situations, although oft-times ludicrous, are extremely funny."

Fifteen Groups Support Drive For D.P. Funds

Fifteen groups have now swelled the fund for displaced persons.

The Interfraternity council and Sigma Phi Epsilon have added pledges to the contributions already made by thirteen houses and organizations.

The Council voted to give $330 to the D.P. committee for rooms for three persons for one year in the men's dorms. Members are now making arrangements with dormitory heads for the proposed facilities.

Sigma Phi Epsilon has promised to give room and board in its house for a student for one year.

Tickets on Sale For Engineers' Annual Report

Engineer's week banquet tickets are now on sale thru representatives of the individual engineering societies.

The 1949 banquet will be held April 29 in the Union ballroom. A feature not incorporated for some time is this year's plan for a dinner dance. Johnny Cox's orchestra will play.

TICKETS WILL be sold by couples only, and because of limited space, only 370 tickets can be issued. These will be available to more than 1,100 students. Ticket sales were early this year in order to give everyone a chance before the end of the month.

"Reservations have already been made for tickets by many students," Al Henry, banquet committee chairman, said. "There can only be 370 tickets, so get yours early."

A system of apportionment was used in issuing tickets in order to give the fairest distribution to all departments. Tickets will remain on sale until April 15.

AT THAT TIME they will be recalled and re-issued after Easter vacation, according to the number of tickets sold by respective departments. By this plan, it is hoped tickets will be placed according to demand.

Men selling the tickets by departments are: Ag E, Dean Hansen; Arch E, Marshal Baker; Chem E, Jim Stoddart; C. E., Dale Schoenleber; E. E., Howard Backlar and Paul Albro; and M. E., Dwight Pearson.

Lindquist Named Secretary; Seven to Serve in Planning

The machinery for the mock constitutional assembly is set up.

The assembly, proposed by The Daily Nebraskan and submitted to the Student Council, received a negative vote at Wednesday's Council meeting. The Daily Nebraskan, however, will go ahead with plans for the assembly.

Bob Wallace has been elected chairman of the project by The Daily Nebraskan staff. Wallace is the Student Council member who proposed the constitutional assembly on the Coun-temporary secretary for the project.

The staff also selected eight persons to serve on a temporary steering committee. This committee will plan the sessions and determine the dates on which they are to be held.

The members of the committee are Laverna Acker, Ag junior; Phyllis Cadwallader, Arts and Science junior; Rod Lindwall, Engineers junior; Verniel Lindquist, Teachers senior; Bill Plank, Biz Ad junior; Audrey Rosenbaum, Arts and Science sophomore and Ted Sorenson, Law sophomore

ACCORDING to the outline set forth in The Daily Nebraskan, representation in the assembly will be based upon petitions signed by 25 persons. Any student may represent any group of 25 individuals. This provision and others announced in the original proposal will be subject to change by temporary steering committee.

The assembly will meet in a series of sessions to discuss student government. It will discuss methods of representation and suggest methods of changing the machinery now in operation under the present Student Council constitution.

Had it received authority from the Student Council, the assembly could have drawn-up a new Council constitution. However, under the present situation it will be possible for the assembly to draw up a constitution which, with the signatures of 100 students, will be placed on the ballot at spring elections.

AGR's Named Estes Carnival Booth Winners

A gala atmosphere took over the College Activities building Friday evening during the Estes Carnival, sponsored by the Ag YM and YW. Nearly 200 people were present to enjoy the booths and concessions set up by organizations and houses on Ag campus.

The traveling cup, given for the most original booth entered in the carnival, was awarded to Alpha Gamma Rho for their unique game of skill, "Sock Sally Out of the Sack." The AGR's have been in possession of the prize cup for the past year. Jack McDill was chairman of the prize-winning booth.
